George B. Selden Dead
Name Your Altar
Maternity's Value
Shocking Farm "Bloc"

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

George B. Selden is dead. That means nothing to the average man, a great deal to those that make automobiles. Selden was the inventor of an explosive gasoline engine. It was his patent that Ford fought successfully. The others all paid royalty to Selden. Ford fought it and won. Selden has sailed away on his permanent peace ship, Ford last year made more than a million automobiles. The last court decided that Selden's patent was valid, but that Ford was not using it.

If you built an altar, earthly, not religious, to what would you dedicate it?

In Germany a person named Steiner has attracted many followers who attend occult ceremonies, bowing down before three altars, representing, respectively, wisdom, beauty, force. To what earthly idea would you dedicate your altar, if you built it? What about an altar to common sense, or perseverance, or above all, to just plain JUSTICE?

A truck ran over a little girl seven years old. The doctors said the injuries would forever prevent her having children. The gas company that owned the truck settled with the child's father, paying $15,000 for the child, $2,500 for himself.

This is liberal enough, as such settlements go. But all the money in the world could not supply the happiness that a mother experiences when her first baby is handed to her, washed, dressed, thin hair nicely brushed, ready to begin life with its first breakfast.

Notice the excitement about the "farm bloc"? Many newspapers seek to CONVICT the farmers of presuming to take an interest in government, of pretending even to have rights in it.

Next to an attempt at self-government by workmen, the most horrible thing in the eyes of what Mr. Debs would call "the capitalistic press" is any attempt by the farmers to influence Congress by united action.

All they do is cultivate the soil, pay taxes, produce the sons and daughters that do the successful work in the cities, then feed the entire nation and supply the crops that constitute the real national wealth. But there is nothing in that, apparently, that justifies their playing any really important part in government.

Remember, this is thrift week. The wise, young and old, will think hard about it. Yesterday was "Thrift Day." This is "Budget day." Tomorrow will be "Life Insurance Day." Friday, "Own Your Own Home Day." Saturday, "Pay Your Bills Promptly Day." Next Sunday, "Share With Others Day," and next Monday, "Make a Will Day."

Schwab and Edison put wreaths on Franklin's statue yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Harding announced that they would send their shoes to the cobbler regularly for repairs.

The seven thrift days are well-named. Practice thrift and you have the material for a budget. Life insurance is necessary to make your budget work out to a certainty. Thrift, budget and life insurance combined provide for the owning of a home. Thrifty men pay their bills promptly, and share with others—SOMETIMES. They make a will that they may reach out of the grave, for a little while, and direct after they are dead.

Eight California Indians, representing the remaining twenty-thousand of their race, start for Washington and justice. They say they haven't been paid for the 7,500,000 acres of land, retained under the ancient treaties.

How much are those acres worth now? The difference in value of land is the difference in human beings.

The Indians of the California coast were the most indolent, least energetic of all the races on the continent, too lazy to try to catch rabbits, too timid to go after bigger game, content with grasshoppers and similar food.

In the same magnificent climate live now the most energetic white men, working with desperate energy in spite of the wonderful climate, flowers and fruits that seem to say: "Why don't you sit down and take it quietly, as the Indians used to do?"

Ten thousand years ago man knelt on the ground, begging the lightning not to kill him. Now that lightning, in the form of electricity, is found operating four whiskey stills in New York. We use it also to kill our criminals, press clothes, sweep the floor, cook food, cool refrigerators, turn electric fans and produce the most intense heat in furnaces.

Man's real job is extracting power from his apparent enemies, the forces of nature. He has harnessed the lightning; how soon will he harness the waves, and especially the power of the sun, which pours forth into space power unlimited?

Body of Woman Found in Alley

MYSTERY IN BACK BAY DEATH

Police Investigations Fail to Bear Out Theory of Suicide

Several mysterious circumstances surround the finding of the body today of Miss Hattie M. Davis of No. 23 St. Stephen street, Back Bay, in Public Alley No. 818, directly beneath the window of her room on the third floor of the house.

Investigations made by the police and by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary failed to bear out the theory of suicide. He will perform an autopsy.

Miss Davis, who was scantily clad, was found to have sustained a crushed chest, a fracture of the pelvis and a broken arm.

Articles discovered by a Boston American reporter near the body added to the mystery. These included a cameo pin, the last gift of her dead mother to Miss Davis, which was about 12 feet from the body.

Two feet away from the body was a black button, which matches those on a coat belonging to Miss Davis and which was in her room. A hairpin, like those worn by the dead woman, was also discovered at some distance from her body.

Mis Davis' hair was hanging down her back. The body was clad in a black georgette waist, black skirt, black stockings and a pair of bedroom slippers.

No note was found in Miss Davis' room, nor were there any other indication of contemplated suicide about

Haverhill Couple Married by City Clerk After 5-Day Law Is Waived

Haverhill, Jan. 18.—Haverhill society is interested today in the elopement of Hazel Fitzgerald, an heiress, with Charles H. Stevens, the son of a clerk in the Haverhill National Bank. Miss Fitzgerald, who is the daughter of P. J. Fitzgerald, a rich leather merchant, is twenty years old and Stevens twenty-two.

They secured a five-day waiver in the local court yesterday and were married shortly afterward by City Clerk W. M. Roberts in his office. They then disappeared on a wedding trip.

STATE RESTS CASE AGAINST PELLETIER.

The trial of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, charged with misconduct in office, was today adjourned to Friday morning at 9.30 by Chief Justice Rugg. The adjournment was made at the request of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, chief counsel for Pelletier, who asked for more time. The adjournment was taken immediately after the State rested its case.

TO PRESS ALLIED DEBT BILL, THEN WAR BONUS

Washington, Jan. 18.—Decision to press the first allied debt refunding bill and next a soldiers' bonus bill was reported today by Republican Senators in their first conference of this session of Congress. A second conference was called for tomorrow to discuss details of the two measures.

PARDON IS SOUGHT FOR SPRINGFIELD BIGAMIST

Jeremiah Brown, the Springfield bigamist, was today said to be dying in the Springfield House of Correction. He is serving a two-year term. Chairman Frank A. Brooks of the Parole Board asked the Governor's Council to pardon Brown, in order that he may pass his remaining days with a sister in Vermont.

ALLEN IS ATTACKED BY REED

Pelletier's Counsel Challenges Motives of State on Bank Deposit Evidence

In one of the most impassioned addresses ever heard in the Supreme Court, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, senior counsel for District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier at the latter's trial for alleged official misconduct, announced dramatically today that if it were shown by creditable testimony that his client ever took a cent not his by legal right, the Senator would step out of the case.

The statement was made in the course of a scathing attack on the State, in which Senator Reed declared the attorney-general was introducing inferences as evidence.

It followed the introduction of new testimony regarding Pelletier's bank account, which Reed declared was irrelevant, and said that he would introduce a motion later to have it thrown out.

Senator Reed scored two victories immediately following the opening of court for the nineteenth day of the trial of the district attorney.

These victories were contained in rulings made by Chief Justice Rugg, one of which permitted Senator Reed to question Detective Andrew LeClair, and the other denying the attorney-general the right to take the deposition of Mrs. Agnes Roehl, formerly Mrs. Agnes L. Smith.

ATTACKS STATE.

Senator Reed's attack on the motives of the State, which he charged had not kept faith with the court, came when Attorney McCarthy, one of the public prosecutors, began an examination of Emerson W. Bosworth, assistant cashier of the Old Colony Trust Company.

In reply Attorney-General Allen said he would show the admissibility of the evidence regarding the bank accounts, and was prepared to cite authorities in support of his contention. He said the State would show Pelletier received fractions of the sums paid to Coakley of one-quarter, one-third and one half.

A person, he declared, could stand with his feet on the ground and see money received by one conspirator and a fraction thereof passing into the hands of his co-conspirator.

Attorney McCarthy then stated that he would connect Pelletier with the Coakley withdrawals. He said they would show that Daniel Sugrue, Coakley's "factotum" cashed a check for $5,000 over the counter at the Beacon Trust Company, taking the money in bills, and that Pelletier deposited $5,000 in bills.

Attorney-General Allen challenged the statement that the State had not kept faith, and charged Senator Reed

ARBUCKLE FACES NEW ATTACK

Evidence Used for Defence in First Trial Turned Against Him by State

By International News Service.

San Francisco, Jan. 18.—Taking a page from the book of the defence in the first trial, the State has reversed its procedure in the second trial of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle and is fighting to convict him of manslaughter on testimony which almost won the rotund comedian acquittal in his first trial.

Swinging directly into medical testimony, as soon as the death of Virginia Rappe had been established, in evidence, the State sought to show, through a medical report returned late in the first trial by a commission of experts and hailed at the time as a crowning victory for the defence, that a medical condition existing in the organ examined by the experts from the body of Miss Rappe in no way contributed to the rupture of that organ.

The State contends that the force which caused the rupture and subsequent death of the motion picture actress was applied by Arbuckle and that this force was applied in the course of a felonious assault.

The defence contends that the rupture might have been due to a fit of coughing, sneezing, vomiting or to a hot water bath to which the young woman was subjected by her friends as first aid in Arbuckle's room.

With their own expert, Dr. William Ophuls, on the stand, but also the defence's expert, Dr. Rusk, and Dr. D. M. Ervin, an outside specialist named on the commission by the court, District Attorney Brady brought forth the unanimous statement that the pathological condition found in the organ did not extend to the ruptured portion and two of the three experts declared that, in their opinion, this condition in no wise contributed to the rupture. Dr. Rusk, defence expert, was non-committal on this aspect.

As the second day of testimony taking started today, State attorneys believed by this procedure they had spiked one of the big guns of the defence armament and proceeded to a more orderly presentation of their case. They hoped to be ready to place Zey Prevon and Alice Blake on the stand shortly to tell their eyewitness stories of the gay party and its tragic ending. If the first day is a criterion of the progress to be made in the trial, it may reach the jury early next week. If the present speed is maintained the State will be ready to close Thursday afternoon.

BODY OF GRACE LOGUE, NURSE, EXHUMED

The body of Miss Grace Logue, found in her room in the apartment of Dr. Michael M. Stevens, of Woburn, on last Christmas morning, was exhumed today and placed in a vault at the Glenwood Cemetery, Everett.

It will be transferred to the North Grove street morgue tomorrow for examination.

The exhuming of the body was done at the order of District Attorney Saltonstall of Middlesex County, who is conducting an investigation into mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of the pretty nurse.

The parents of the girl have insisted that she did not die by accident, although death was ascribed by the medical examiner to an overdose of morphine.

LIKENESS NOTED BY WITNESS PAULEY

Resembled Accused "From the Nose Up,' He Admits to Saltonstall

A peculiar looking man, whom he saw standing at "Pole 12 over 7" in Wakefield, where Patrolman James A. Preston was found dead, "resembled Clarence W. Loud from the nose up," Edgar E. Pauley, a defence witness, admitted under cross-examination today at Loud's trial on a charge of murder in East Cambridge Superior Court.

The mysterious stranger frightened him and his wife, Pauley testified, and they left the vicinity speedily.

Dr. Richard Dutton of Wakefield testified he passed Lowell and Vernon streets about 9:20 p. m., driving a sedan numbered 2024. Loud's car war numbered 20,264. By this testimony the defence had shown that another car with a similar number was near the death scene.

When Attorney Feeney called Pauley as a witness in behalf of Loud, he testified that he was near "Pole 12 over 7" shortly after 9 p. m. on the night of April 9. He insisted at the start of his story that the "man of ghostly appearance" whom he saw was not Loud.

Then Pauley passed into the hands of District Attorney Saltonstall for cross-examination. The latter drew

PAULEY TELLS OF SEEING MYSTERIOUS MAN NEAR MURDER SCENE

SEABURY NOTICED CAR UNLIKE LOUD'S NEAR SPOT WHERE PRESTON WAS KILLED

HEFFLER SAYS THE SHOTS HE HEARD WERE NOT FIRED FROM A COLT'S REVOLVER

from him the admission that former District Attorney Tufts had shown him a photograph of Loud while he was preparing the case for trial. Pauley said he told Tufts that "from the nose up this man looked like Loud."

Mr. Saltonstall then shot this question at the witness:

"Do you still say, after having an opportunity to see Mr. Loud in court, that from the nose up the man you saw there looks like Mr. Loud?"

"Yes," the witness answered, as a stir ran around the courtroom.

The man he saw, said Pauley, was five feet eight or nine inches tall. His face was as white as chalk and his eyes were not normal.

He wore, according to Pauley, a double-breasted light coat, something like a raincoat. It was buttoned closely about the neck. The man was of medium build, but Pauley could not give an estimate of his weight.

Witnesses called for the defence were placed on the stand to support the alibi and contradict the testimony produced by the State, as Loud today began his fight to prove an alibi.

One of them, Edward M. Seabury, whose testimony was read to the court by Attorney Feeney, told of seeing an auto near the death spot which bore numbers different than those on Loud's car.

Preston, whom he knew well, was standing, Seabury said, at the door of a sedan car bearing the numbers "938" or "038."

Harry G. Heffler was revealed as the much-discussed "surprise witness."

Heffler, who said he knew firearms through serving in the English army in the South African campaign, declared the shots he heard near the death scene were not those from a single-action .45-calibre Colt revolver.

Attorney Feeney put the question directly to the witness: "Were the shots you heard, in your opinion, fired by a single-action Colt .45?"

"No, never," Heffler replied. With that, Attorney Feeney turned the witness over to the State for cross-examination.

Mrs. Loud and her son Richard were again in court. Mrs. Loud went to the prisoner's cage and kissed her husband just as the session was about to open.

According to Attorney Feeney, twelve witnesses will be placed on the stand by the defence in its effort to prove an alibi for Loud.

If Feeney's plans are carried out all the evidence will be in for Loud by the close of Saturday's session.

Feeney made it clear that Mrs. Loud, the defendant, and Richard, the nineteen-year-old son, will be called to the stand to contradict testimony offered by the State. There is also a possibility fourteen-year-old Doris Loud, and the aged mother of the defendant will testify.

There is much conjecture as to the identity of the woman who Feeney declared was seen talking with Patrolman Preston. It is certain she will be called to testify.

Attorney Feeney, by agreement with District Attorney Saltonstall, read a statement taken from Edward M. Seabury at the Wakefield police station on April 10, the day following Preston's death. It was obtained by Miss Anna Manning, an employe, for former District Attorney Tufts when he was preparing the case.

SAYS HE SAW PRESTON.

Seabury said in the statement that he had seen Patrolman Preston standing by the open door of a small sedan, with his head inside the car. He had seen Preston many times, knew him personally and was positive it was Preston he saw on that occasion.

Seabury said he did not take any particular notice of the number of the sedan, as he was in a bus at the time. He thought the number was "938" or "038."

Seabury thought it was 9:10 or 9:15 p. m. when he passed Preston. He was in Wakefield square at 9:25. Headlights of the car threw a light on the patrolman, he said. He did not see people in the car. Preston, he thought, was talking to a man in the driver's seat. He thought he saw a figure on the opposite side of the car, in the rear.

Seabury could not tell if the patrolman had a flashlight or a book in his hand. He thought he held something, however.

The defence called as its first witness Harry G. Heffler of Quincy. He testified that from August, 1920, to June, 1921, he was employed by the Cambridge Gas Light Company. On April 9 he was paid off by the gas company at 5 p. m.

MRS. EDGAR PAULEY

Mrs. Pauley, one of the witnesses called by the defence in the Loud murder trial, will testify to seeing a man acting suspiciously near Beebe's lane before murder.

Heffler testified he went to Lynnfield on the 5:28 p. m. train from Boston. He missed two trains home and also a jitney, and at 8:45 p. m. started to walk towards Wakefield. He kept on walking until he came to a sign which said "Wakefield 1 mile."

Heffler said at the sign post he saw a policeman. District Attorney Saltonstall objected, declaring he wanted it brought out if the policeman seen was Preston. Attorney Feeney declared he would show by the witness that the policeman was Preston.

TALKED WITH OFFICER.

Witness testified he did not know what street he was on. He crossed the street to speak to the policeman. He described him as being six feet tall and weighing 190 pounds. Heffler talked with the policeman and then walked along the street.

Witness said he saw an auto 150 or 200 yards away from the policeman. When he first saw the policeman he heard a whistle and spoke to the officer.

District Attorney Saltonstall again objected. Judge Brown ruled that, if Attorney Feeney did not bring out that this officer was Preston the testimony would be excluded.

Heffler asked the policeman if that was the fire whistle. He quoted the policeman as replying: "No; it's 9 o'clock." Witness looked at his watch and found it agreed with the whistle.

He saw three people in an auto, and another man coming from the rear of the car. He looked at the latter somewhat closely. The front lights of the car were on, but he saw no rear light.

Heffler walked on and soon saw an auto coming toward him. He did not see who was in it. Witness stepped aside to let the car pass, and lit a cigarette, he said. Then he heard three quick reports, when he was about 500 yards from a house.

He stopped for half a minute and then walked along Lowell street to the lake. He followed the railroad tracks and took a train for Boston at 10 p. m. He had to run to catch it.

WROTE TO MRS. LOUD.

He read no newspapers on the next day, Sunday, but did read of the case on Monday. He wrote a letter to the then District Attorney Tufts and one to the Chief of Police of Wakefield, placing both in the same envelope.

None of the authorities had ever talked with him, the witness declared. Last week he wrote to Mrs. Loud and enclosed a letter to Attorney Feeney. He had never heard of either of them before this case came up.

Witness said he knew the difference between single and double-action Colt revolvers and that the shots he heard were never fired from a single-action Colt.

Heffler was taken in hand by District Attorney Saltonstall. He had told in his direct testimony of having gone to Lynnfield to buy some chickens.

One of the District Attorney's first questions was: "What time do hens go to roost?"

"When the sun goes down," replied Heffler.

Two spectators who laughed loudly at this point were led from the court room by officials.

District Attorney Saltonstall asked the witness if the eggs he bought at Lynnfield hatched out chickens, and witness answered:

"Yes, sir. Come down to Hough's Neck and I'll show them to you."

Saltonstall said he estimated it was 8:47 p. m. when Heffler was at the corner of Lowell and Vernon streets, if the figures of the witness were correct.

Asked how far he had gone when he heard the shots, Heffler said he had got to the second house on the road.

SHOTS AT 9:10 P. M.

Heffler declared it was about 9:10 p. m. when he heard the shots. A jitney passed just before he heard them. He had seen the auto with the three men before the jitney passed. Wtiness said it was a dark night.

"Was it dark as a pocket?" asked the district attorney.

"I never looked in a pocket, sir," responded Heffler, gravely.

Attorney Feeney then began re-direct examination. Witness said he saw but one pedestrian on the road the night of April 9 and that was why he had written to the then District Attorney Tufts.

Judge Malcolm Sturtevant, associate counsel for Loud, took up the examination of the second witness, who was George A. Lewis of Highland avenue, East Northfield, a former Wakefield resident.

Lewis testified that at 9 p. m. on April 9 he was on the way home from Wakefield square. He reached home at 9:10 and sat in a side window in the upper part of his house on Vernon street, watching for the arrival of Dr. Richard Dutton, whom he had called to attend his wife.

Lewis declared he saw three or four autos pass. His attention was particularly attracted by two cars which came along later. The first, a small sedan, passed very rapidly and turned down [illegible]em street. A larger car was directly behind it. This was about 9:20.

Under cross-examination Lewis said he did not see the number of the sedan.

Thomas W. Lawson was among the spectators again today. Judge Brown's son, John F., Jr., also watched the proceedings intently.

Attorney Feeney sprang a surprise when he called to the stand Captain van Amburgh, who had testified earlier in the trial as a gun expert for the State. He had declared then that the Colt was the only revolver with a left hand twist, or grooving, in the barrel.

Questioned today by Attorney Feeney, Captain Van Amburgh admitted he understands the Sauer gun also has a left hand twist.

"Are you sure that the only pistol, not an automatic, with a left hand twist, is a Colt?" asked Attorney Feeney.

Witness said the question was puzzling, that he had never seen a .45-calibre single-action revolver with a left hand twist except a Colt.

Captain Van Amburgh insisted that the bullets which are exhibits in the case were fired from a Colt .45.

Attorney Sturtevant showed the jury several photographs made near the death scene, bringing the total of exhibits in the case up to fifty-eight.

PAULEY ON STAND.

Attorney Feeney exhibited to the jurors a small map of the intersection of Vernon and Lowell streets, and indicating a pole with alarm boxes on it.

Edgar E. Pauley of No. 173 Lowell street, Wakefield, an automobile electrical expert, was called as the next witness.

He testified that on the night of April 9 he was riding his motorcycle with his wife in the side car. They arrived at "Pole 12 over 7" within six, eight or nine minutes after 9 p. m. He saw no auto there.

Pauley testified that he saw a man standing near the pole. The man, he could say now, was not Loud. At the time, he had never seen Loud nor heard of him. The man was five feet eight or nine inches tall. He could not give his weight. He was of medium build and wore a light cloth coat, double-breasted.

At this point Attorney Feeney stopped his questions, announcing that he would recall Pauley later.

Under cross-examination, Pauley said it was a dark night and there were no lights on Lowell street. He was driving slowly at his wife's request. Pauley said he passed neither auto, policeman or small touring car from the head of the lake to his home.

Pauley said he had made a statement to the then District Attorney Tufts that he had seen a peculiar looking man near the post where Preston's body was found, and that the man stood very erect and had a ghostly appearance. "The man scared us and we hurried home," Pauley said in that statement.

The witness testified that the man's face was as white as chalk and his eyes not normal. He wore a light coat, double-breasted, something like a raincoat. The collar was buttoned close.

Pauley said he had reported that night to Police Chief Pollard what he had seen. He knew Preston by sight, but did not see him the night of April 9.

Pauley admitted Tufts had shown him a photograph of Loud and that he had told Tufts that from the nose up the man he had seen looked like Loud.

Q.—Do you still say, after having an opportunity to see Mr. Loud in court, that from the nose up the man you saw there looks like Mr. Loud? A.—Yes.

the apartment. Both windows of the room were opened wide.

Miss Davis was 45 years ald. Friends are trying to find her relatives in Waltham.

The body was found by Patrolmen White and Boland of the Back Bay station. They immediately called an ambulance.

Miss Davis occupied a suite on the third floor at No. 23 St. Stephens street with Miss Lena Stevens. When police entered the suite Miss Stevens knew nothing of the tragedy.

She told the police Miss Davis retired last night about 9 o'clock, but that she sat up and read until about midnight. Before retiring, she stated, she called to Miss Davis and asked her if she were warm enough, to which Miss Davis answered "Yes."

Miss Stevens told the officers that she had heard no noise in the suite during the night and that she had not heard Miss Davis either get up or leave the apartment.

Miss Stevens declared there had been nothing unusual about the behavior of her roommate lately and knew of no troubles which might have caused her to commit an unusual act.

Friends of the dead woman, however, said Miss Davis had trouble recently over property left her by her parents. They say that she has been brooding for some time.

HARVARD TO BAR 'KID' WEDGE? EX-PUGILIST MAKING HARDEST FIGHT

MAY TAKE UP WORK AT COLUMBIA

Frederick R. ("Kid") Wedge, forme prize fighter, "wild" man and school master who worked his way from rizona to Boston on a box car to nter the Harvard Graduate School f Education, is up against the hardest fight of all his career. He is fighting for the Harvard Spirit.

Wedge came here with $10 and a telegraphed permission to enter the Harvard school, in an effort to win the degree of PH.D. Now he finds that because of the publicity given to his career and plans, there is talk of rescinding that permission.

But if the decision is against him, he will not whimper. There are those here who declare that an adverse ruling will leave "The Kid" the victor nd the University in a peculiar light efore the people of the country.

EAR EFFECT ON OTHRS.

Wedge has the original telegram hich he received from Dean Holmes ast April notifying him that the board f admission to the graduate school of education at Harvard considered him fully qualified to become a student there to try for a Master of Education degree or higher. He has letter backing up the telegram, and onsiderable communication with her members of the school's teaching staff under whom he expected to study.

Dean Holmes of the Graduate School will not say that action on Wedge's admission will be rescinded, but does ay that "he may not be permitted to nter."

The attitude of the college authorities is that in no way do they object to the admission of Wedge as a ormer pugilist, but the publicity given is case they fear, might keep away nen who are considering study at Harvard in the future.

Harvard authorities have wired Vest for further information regarding Wedge. The former pugilist has a raft of letters attesting his ability and the respect in which he is held in Arizona, particularly in the State University as well as his home town Benson, where he resigned from a $3,000 position as principal of the high school there to come to Harvard and work his way through in three years in order to prepare as a specialist in psychology.

ACKED BY TEACHERS.

Even at Benson there were some people who worried over the fact that their school principal had been a former "wild man." But they were few. Wedge has with him a petition signed y every pupil of his school asking im to forego his trip to Harvard. As f that were not enough, the students vent before a notary to make it more ffective. The seven teachers under im were a unit in asking him to remain as their boss.

Wedge came East to enter Harvard to specialize in psychology. He not going back to Arizona defeated. e study of psychology preceded his vard aspirations and if the university authorities decide to reject he will plan to enroll at Columbia. e will take any kind of a job n teaching boxing to tutoring, and ects to get a railroad job switching cars in Boston—if his petition is ot turned down.

Wedge has many friends in the gilistic ranks, including "Battling" elson, Bryan Downey, with whose amily he spent an evening while on is box-car trip East; Johnny Kilbane and Joe Nolan, the Cincinnati Enquirer sporting editor. He is also a great admirer of many other boys of the newer generation of boxers.

He was in "Battling" Nelson's camp a number of times helping the Dane to prepare for his fights.

Wedge fought two draws with Clarence English, who held Nelson to two deadlocks also.

When he was in El Paso trying to conquer consumption he was forced into the ring to add to has savings and lost a hairline decision to Tommie Murphy for the welterweight championship of the Southwest.

Baseball Star's Bride Who Has Made Him Quit Diamond

MRS. J. FRANKLIN BAKER.

HOME RUN BAKER MARRIES IN BALTIMORE

Promises Bride He Will Quit Baseball and Enter Business Field

J. Franklin Baker, who won the pseudonym of "Home Run Baker" with Connie Mack's old champion Athletics, playing third base in one of the greatest baseball aggregations that was ever gathered together, is now a benedict.

He was married to Miss Margaret Mitchell at Baltimore and they have gone off for a honeymoon, utterly oblivious to the approach of the training season for big league baseball players. For "Home Run Baker" is going to be "Business Man" Baker from now on.

Mrs. Baker objects to J. Franklin's continuing his career in baseball. She wants to know what he is doing with his time and does not want to travel about the country to keep track of him. So it was put in the nuptial contract that organized baseball would have to get on without J. Franklin Baker. Baker was to have played one more year with the Yankees and his retirement leaves a serious gap in the Yankee lineup.

CHILE AND PERU INVITED TO SEND DELEGATES HERE

Washington, Jan. 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—The American government has intervened in the controversy between Chile and Peru involving the execution of the Treaty of Ancon, inviting the two South American governments to send plenipotentiaries to Washington for a conference.

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—Chile, it was announced today, has accepted an invitation from the United States government to designate a plenipotentiary at Washington to study the form of execution of the Treaty of Ancon under which the Tacna-Arica dispute between Peru and Chile arose. It is said the United States has extended a similar invitation to Peru.

DEFENDS MAN SUED BY HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Agnes McInnes Scouts Charegs in $25,000 Alienation Case

Mrs. Agnes M. McInness, who now lives in Providence, R. I., today testified for the defendant in the $25,000 alienation suit brought by Walter H. McInness of Cambridge against Otis E. Young of Washington street, Malden, now being tried before Chief Justice Aiken and a jury in the Second Session of the Superior Court.

Mrs. McInness said that her relations with Young were only those of a housekeeper, and that he never had attempted to alienate her affections from her husband.

The trouble arose between Mr. and Mrs. McInness, the latter said, began in 1913, when McInness lost his job and was out of work for a long time, during which period he made no provision for her confinement when she gave birth to a son. The result, Mrs. McInness said, was that she was compelled to go to work to support herself and child.

While she was housekeeper for Young at a house on Concord street, Malden, Mrs. McInness said her husband assaulted her and she had him arrested. In August, 1917, while she was living at Winthrop, her husband threatened to kill her with a large knife.

Asked about her second marriage to McInness on October 1, 1917, Mrs. McInness explained that the ceremony was performed to establish the paternity of their child. She never lived with him afterward, and said, "I had no use for my husband under the circumstances."

Mrs. McInness testified that while working in a laundry she had a room at the Washington Chambers, and later Young took a room in the house adjacent to that where she lived. She denied that Young ever was in her room, but said she had been in Young's room when the door was left open.

Describing what happened on the night of March 22, 1920, when McInness, a police officer, two women detectives and counsel for McInness, came to her room at the Washington Chambers, Mrs. McInness aid she har left her window open as was her custom. The proprietor of the house on learning that the raiding party had no warrant ordered them from the premises.

GYPSY SEERS GIVE UP $400 "LIFE-SAVER"

Anna and Rose Adams, members of the Adams family of gypsies, were in court today on the charge of larceny of $400 from Louis Richie of No. 8 Garden court, West End. As Richie's money was refunded the gypsies were given suspended sentences in the House of Correction and released.

Police testified the women ran a fortune-telling establishment on Poplar street and that Richie wanted to learn something about his wife's antecedents. With an egg and a live chicken, the police said, Richie was convinced he was about to die. He gave up $400 as a life-saver. The gypsies were to receive $1,000 more, but Richie's father interfered.

PROBABLY FATALLY HURT BY OWN TRUCK

Thomas Kilduff, No. 147 Magazine street, Cambridge, and a chauffeur for the Ward Baking Company of Cambridge, sustained probably fatal injuries today by his own truck. He was crossing Harvard Bridge when the front end of his truck struck the rear end of a heavier machine owned by the John T. Scully Trucking Company of Cambridge.

The shock knocked off one of the bakery truck's front wheels, throwing Kilduff into the street. The momentum of the truck carried it over Kilduff's body. He was taken to the Cambridge Relief Hospital.

SAYS CARD PARTY WAS SPOILED BY GUN FIGHT

Sylvestre F. St. Julian, a negro, of No. 107 Cabot street, Roxbury, is held by the police of the Roxbury Crossing Station pending investigation of a row between St. Julian and Herbert Burgess, also colored, of No. 77 Kendall street. According to Burgess, St. Julian and others were playing cards when St. Julian pulled a revolver. That broke up the game in a fight, and Burgess says that some one took $40 from him during the scrimmage.

GIRL'S MOTHER ACCUSES RICH SOCIETY MAN

Says He Initiated Daughter Into Secrets of Paris Underworld

By International News Service

Paris, Jan. 18.—Harry W. Nelson, wealthy Virginia society man, will be arraigned Saturday on charges that grew out of a mother's oath to avenge her daughter's honor. The plaintiff is Mrs. Belle Hutchins, formerly the Countess Sasiazzi.

The daughter is Miss Solange Hutchins, 18 years old. Mrs. Hutchins declared that she would press her case against Nelson and attempt to have him deported from France. She accuses him of initiating her daughter into the demoralizing secrets of Montmartre, where now the daughter is a dancer in the famous cabaret, the Moulin Rouge.

After his arrest Nelson filed an answer to the charges, stating he could not be held because Solange was 18 years old and mistress of her own actions. Under the French law, he was released. Nelson pointed out further that he had never lived with the girl and that Solange told him that she left her mother because of cruel treatment.

The Virginian said that Solange had further told him her allowance was cut off. He declared he found work for the girl in the Follies Bergere, where she earned 400 francs a month as a dancer. Nelson said his own income came from the United States and that he had assisted Solange financially at times.

Nelson has ben arrested twice in three weeks on similar charges filed by Mrs. Hutchins. The first time was late in December. He was released on December 31, after proving that Solange was eighteen. The second arrest took place last night.

Nelson is well known in the American colony and is a familiar figure in the restaurants and dance halls of the Montmartre district. Mrs. Hutchins is very wealthy.

DALLINGER TO KEEP UP FIGHT FOR LEVIATHAN

Will Appeal to House Despite Promise of Work at Newport News

Washington, Jan. 18.—The contract for the reconditioning of the Leviathan has been promised the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, according to Representative Dallinger, Republican, Massachusetts, who has been attempting to have the work done at the Boston Navy Yard.

Mr. Dallinger, who has been in conference with officials of the Shipping Board, said in a statement today that the Newport News corporation had submitted the lowest bid for the refitting of the liner and had been given assurance that it would be awarded the contract.

Mr. Dallinger announced he would carry to the floor of the House his fight to have the work done at a navy yard. The dock at Boston, he contended, was the only one large enough on the Atlantic seaboard to accommodate the ship.

An effort to have an amendment attached to the independent offices appropriation bill, reported today, giving navy yards authority to bid in competition with private concerns for the refitting of ships, was of no avail Mr. Dallinger said. He asserted, however, that a determined fight would be made to attach such a provision to the bill before it reaches the President.

At least $1,000,000 could be saved by having the work on the Leviathan done at Boston, according to Mr. Dallinger.

ANNE MORGAN DROPS BOXING FOR "SALOME"

New York, Jan. 18.—Miss Anne Morgan has given up promoting boxing matches for the benefit of the fund for devastated France and the edification of her society friends in Madison Square Garden, she announced on her return from France. Instead she will give benefit performances of "Salome," done by Mary Garden, and give monster bridge parties. She will make a six weeks' tour of the principal cities, beginning next month.

WIFE KILLS SISTER WHO STOLE HUSBAND'S LOVE

Red Bank, N. J., Jan. 18.—Driven by desperation, according to her story, by an unfaithful husband and an ungrateful sister, Mrs. Helmina Renzelman, 31 years old, of South Eatontown, wife of Fred Renzelman, killed her sister, Cesine Wessels, 27 years old, while in her bed early Sunday morning. The woman told the police she found that her husband and her sister had been living together in New York.

Jealousy of Rival's Success Cause of Farrar's Quitting Opera

MME. JERITZA (AT LEFT) AND GERALDINE FARRAR

Former Melrose Girl to Leave Metropolitan After 15 Years Because New Singer Loomed Up in Favorite Roles

Jealousy of a new singer's success in one of her own favorite roles was given today as the real reason why Geraldine Farrar, former Melrose girl, has decided to leave the Metropolitan Opera Company when her contract expires at the end of the present season.

For fifteen years the temperamental Miss Farrar has reigned as prima donna at the Metropolitan. With the opening of the current opera season in New York a new star loomed in the musical firmament. She was Mme. Jeritza, making her operatic debut at the Metropolitan.

General Manager Gatti Casazza entrusted to the new singer the title role in "Tosca." It was one of Miss Farrar's favorites. And Mme. Jeritza made a striking success of it. She was overwhelmed with congratulations. Many critics asserted she was every bit as good in the role as Farrar.

Miss Farrar was consumed by jealousy. A break between the reigning star and the newly-discovered one rapidly developed. It became the talk of the entire Metropolitan cast. Then, suddenly, came Miss Farrar's decision to desert the scene of her many years of triumph. As a consequence, Mme. Jeritza will take over many of Miss Farrar's most important roles.

Miss Farrar will make a concert tour of the United States this year and will visit Cuba next year.

On October 28 Miss Farrar will begin her concert tour in California. She will travel and live in her private car. Charles J. Foley of Boston, her personal manager, will direct the tour.

There have been rumors in inner musical circles for some weeks that Miss Farrar was about to cast aside her opera crown. Some of her friends said they doubted if she would ever return to the Metropolitan or any other opera company.

RECALLS ROMANCE.

Miss Farrar is singing this season as the fifth and last year under a contract negotiated for her by C. E. Ellis of Boston, formerly her manager. It is understood she is guaranteed 50 appearances each opera season at $1,800 a performance. Now she has decided to have no more of this mere $90,000. On tour, she may be able to earn $250,000 in a short season.

Miss Farrar is an admitted genius. In fact her stormy married life with Lou Tellegen is declared to have been due to the fact there was too much genius in one house. When, on February 8, 1916, Tellegen and Farrar were married everyone said: "How charming. At last a perfect union." It was declared to be a super-marriage of beauty and genius on both sides.

Some of her friends declared that Miss Farrar proposed. She married Tellegen, they said, because she could not bear to think of his making love to any other woman—on stage, screen or in real life.

Then, say her friends, jealousy overcame her. She did not want Tellegen even to speak to another woman. When her operatic engagements prevented her being present at Tellegen's theatrical performances, she practically forced him to retire from the stage.

PAPERS SEALED.

The sensational charges which Miss Farrar made against Tellegen may never become public. By court order all the papers in the case have been sealed. Tellegen filed an action for separation, and his wife countered with a suit for divorce.

Recently a friend of the singer's said:

"Miss Farrar and her attorney are prepared to offer to the courts proof that Tellegen's moral derelictions were not of the variety customary in divorce cases. One of these matters concerns a happening in a public place in the presence of witnesses. A youth, whose name Mrs. Farrar's attorneys have, will be called upon to tell of this occurence."

Tellegen made charges of extreme cruelty. He charges that he was frequently beaten and slapped and was locked out of his own home.

NATIONALISTS TO RESUME SEATS IN PARLIAMENT

Belfast, Jan. 18 (By the Associated Press).—As a consequence to developments in connection with the establishment of the Irish Free State, the Irish Nationalists will soon take their seats in the Northern Parliament, which they have boycotted since its establishment, the Belfast Telegraph says today it has learned on good authority.

A conference already has been held to consider such a move, and a coalition of the Sinn Fein and Nationalist forces, under Joseph Devlin, member of Parliament for Belfast, has been suggested. Devlin holds two seats, one of which he must resign if this plan should be worked out.

Louis Walsh, a leading Sinn Feiner of Northeast Ireland, today strongly advocated that the Nationalists should attend the Northern Parliament.

TAKEN FOR GAS METER THEFTS IN WINTHROP

"Inspector" Calls at Tim McCarthy's House; Chief McNeil Does the Rest

Chief William A. McNeil of the Winthrop police today arrested one John S. Bruder of Revere on the charge of stealing quarters out of gas meters. He then got Chief John J. Dwyer of the Revere police on the phone and demanded a box of Havana perfectos.

For three months the Suburban Gas Company, which furnishes gas for both communities, has been finding meters with the money containers broken off in Revere homes. In each case a man entered the house and represented himself to be a meter reader for the water department, thus gaining access to the cellar. The sums taken ranged from 25 cents to $15. The police set many traps for him, but they failed.

A week ago he transferred his operations to Winthrop, so it was a contest between the two chiefs. Chief McNeil claims the credit, but the truth must be told. The credit goes to Tim McCarthy of the Winthrop Water Department.

When Bruder shows up at Tim's house and says he is from the water department and wants to read the meter—but that's what happened.

ADMITS ROBBERY AT WESTWOOD POSTOFFICE

Allen Doyle, 20 years old, of Vernon street, Roxbury, admitted in Federal court today that he had broken into the postoffice at Westwood last December, and was held by U. S. Commissioner Hayes in $1,000. Commissioner Hayes dismissed a similar charge against George Rusk, 17, of No. 9 Mendon street, Roxbury, when Doyle admitted his guilt.

The loot taken at the postoffice amounted to 83 cents in money and $19.82 in stamps.

Joseph Sheeran of Roxbury, also wanted in connection with the robbery, is serving three months at Deer Island for carrying a loaded revolver. Rusk was rearrested on a State charge.

SINN FEINERS WHO STOLE ARMS ARE JAILED

London, Jan. 18.—The trial of five Sinn Feiners charged with complicity in the theft of a number of machine guns and rifles last November from the Victoria Barracks at Windsor and the Chelsea Barracks in London was concluded today.

Two of them were sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, one to six months and the other two were discharged.

TWO MEN INJURED IN BRIGHTON RUNAWAY

Victor Rossi, aged twenty-eight years, of No. 151 Brookline street, and Thomas Todeno, thirty-eight, of No. 19 Homer street, both of Watertown, were injured today when the horse attached to the delivery wagon which they were driving ran away on North Beacon street, near Parson street, Brighton. Both men were thrown to the ground. They were taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

CHICAGO PASTOR IS STRANGELY MISSING

Rev. William F. Taylor Began Life as Boston Office Boy

Boston police have been asked to keep a look out for the Rev. William F. Taylor, pastor of the St. Christopher Episcopal Church, Oak Park, Ill., and former employe of the John Hancock Insurance Company of this city, who has been missing since last Saturday night.

Mr. Taylor had had dinner with his family, and at the end of the meal rose and walked from the house without hat or overcoat. He has not been seen since.

His friends and relatives believe that he may have come to Boston, where he started to work for the insurance company on March 2, 1892, as assistant to the cashier. He worked here for two years and was then transferred to the Chicago office and rose through various grades to the post of manager of the third branch office of that city.

Two years ago he resigned to enter the Episcopal ministry.

Several days ago, according to his brother-in-law, the Rev. George Craig Stewart, pastor of an Evanston, Ill., Episcopal church, Mr. Taylor notified Bishop Anderson of Illinois that he wished to be away from his pastorate for a number of days and asked to have some one sent to take charge of the work in his absence.

Mrs. Taylor is prostrated by the disappearance of her husband, although Mr. Stewart is confident that his brother-in-law will communicate with his family within a short time.

CLASS DAY OFFICERS CHOSEN AT HARVARD

Mitchell Gratwick of Linwood, N. Y., has been elected chairman of the Harvard Class Day Committee. Charles A. Tierney of Dorchester was elected treasurer; Melville P. Baker of Wellesley Hills was placed in charge of arrangements in connection with the Sanders Theatre and the senior spread; Frederick Howard Hovey, Jr., of Montclair, N. APARTMENT INTRUDERS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

William Carnell, eighteen years old, of Huntington avenue and George F. Grace, twenty-nine, of Templeton Way, Dorchester, charged in Brighton District Court with breaking and entering in the daytime the apartment of Miss Dorothy Clark at No. 1126 Commonwealth avenue, pleaded guilty. They were bound over to the Grand Jury by Judge Connelly, in $5,000 each. The men were arrested in the apartment by the police, who found them taking their ease on the lounge in the apartment.

MOTORIST GIVEN ONE MONTH AND 20 DAYS

John Coakley of Newton street, Waltham, charged in Roxbury Court, with drunkenness, operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and operating a machine after his license had been revoked, was sentenced to one month on the charge of operating while under the influence of liquor and ten days on the other two charges. Coakley was arrested by the Roxbury Crossing police after it is alleged he collided with two machines.

FOUR DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE IN SOMERVILLE

A $300 fire in the basement of the dwelling house at No. 196 Pearl street, Somerville, today, forced four persons to make a hurried exit to the street. The fire started from an overturned torch in a wood box and the smoke went through the house. Charles E. Gould, the owner and occupant of the house, discovered the fire and sounded alarm, while Joseph Roberts, Miss Susan Gould and Mrs. Charles E. Gould procured their effects and hurried to the street.

ONE-MAN POLICE FORCE IN EAST LONGMEADOW

The Selectmen of East Longmeadow today asked the legislative committee on Public Service to put the East Longmeadow chief of police under civil service. "How big a force have you got?" asked a committeeman. "All we got is a constable now," said the Selectmen, "but we expect to have a force this Summer." The committee decided to wait until East Longmeadow gets a force, and a chief.

INSTALLED AS BISHOP OF OGDENSBURG, N. Y.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Jan. 18.—The Right Rev. Joseph Henry Conroy was installed as bishop of Ogdensburg at St. Mary's Cathedral today by Archbishop Hayes of New York. Mayor Approves Council Order Transferring Funds to Law Department

Mayor Peters today approved the Council order transferring $10,000 from the reserve fund for the use of the law department in carrying on its investigation of the Edison Electric Company. Mayor Peters sent the order to the Council last Monday, where it was approved by that body.

A previous appropriation of $50,000, made last May, has been virtually expended.

After posing on the witness stand for five days as the "expert" of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, whose duty is to ascertain why the people of the other great American cities are able to get their electricity at much lower rates than are charged to the 140,000 customers of the Edison in Greater Boston, Superintendent of Sales Louis R. Wallis late yesterday afternoon declared that that is not his duty at all.

The admission was made by Wallis at the close of five days of constant examination by Attorney Grenville S. MacFarland, counsel for the Boston American.

Mr. MacFarland, examining Mr. Wallis, had put into the records a list of 200 cities, in all sections of the country, in which the rates are lower than here in Boston. In scores of cities, the rates are but half those charged in Boston.

Mr. MacFarland had asserted that the Edison enjoys a monopoly in Greater Boston and that, in return for the franchise granted to it by the people, it is the duty of the Edison to give the people the best service at the lowest possible rates.

He asked President Charles L. Edgar what the Edison did to keep in touch with the art of producing electricity and distributing it in order to install the same improvements here for the benefit of the Edison's customers.

President Edgar replied that the Edison kept a bureau for that very purpose and that Mr. Wallis was the head of it.

Attorney F. Manley Ives of the Edison described Mr. Wallis' duties as follows:

"If in another part of the country there appears to be a rate that looks a great deal better than ours, it is up to him to look into it far enough to satisfy himself either that we can be compared or that we cannot be compared."

Mr. Wallis had testified that his duty is to collect the facts and to pass them on to his chiefs.

When Mr. MacFarland had completed the reading of the 200 cities in which the rates are lower and after Mr. Wallis had admitted that the only city he had looked into at all was Cleveland, Mr. MacFarland said to him:

"Mr. Wallis, notwithstanding the fact that your counsel, Mr. Ives, has stated to the Department of Public Utilities that wherever it appeared that the price charged in another city for electricity was lower than the price charged by the Edison Company 'it was up to you' to investigate the cause of this difference in price, it now appears that out of more than 200 American cities you have investigated only one.

CHEAPER RATES SHOWN.

"What is the reason for this complete failure to make this investigation? Is it because you failed to do your duty or because Mr. Ives misrepresented your duty to the Commission?"

Mr. Wallis replied:

"Either Mr. Ives had a misconception of my duty or was misinformed." The hearing at once adjourned.

"Will you want Mr. Wallis any more?" said Mr. Ives.

"O, yes," replied Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill, "I have some questions to ask Mr. Wallis when the hearing goes on again Monday morning."

The Edison charges eleven cents per kilowatt hour. The city of Boston and the Boston American, asserting that all the rates of the Edison are too high, joined hands in the campaign to force down all the rates for benefit of the 140,000 consumers. The hearings are being held by the State Department of Public Utilities.

In comparison with the 11 cents per kilowatt hour charged here in Boston, these rates in other cities were read into the records as typical: Bridgeport and New Haven, Ct., 8½ cents; Wilmington, Del., from 6 to 9; Dallas, Tex., 6; Sandusky, O., 7; Hamilton, O., 6; Detroit, 9; Birmingham, 7.65; Phoenix, 8; Des Moines, 6.2; Indianapolis, 8; Toledo, 8; Vallejo, 7.

Mr. Wallis said he didn't think that Vallejo was comparable with Boston, it was so much smaller.

RAPS MISREPRESENTATION.

"When you were buying up these small plants around Boston," said Mr. MacFarland, "you gave as an excuse that you would be able to sell electricity at a lower rate because you would increase the business. The rates should be much higher in the smaller cities because they serve fewer people."

Mr. MacFarland charged that the Edison Company has failed to segregate the accounts of the customers in the various cities which the Edison serves. He also charged that the company has failed to tabulate the money paid in by the customers who are compelled to pay the "minimum charge" of 75 cents a month. The Edison promised to start the tabulation right away.

Mr. MacFarland asked Mr. Wallis what investigation he had made about the plant in Pasadena, where the rate is about half that charged here in Boston.

"It wouldn't be worth while," said Mr. Wallace, "that's a town of only 40,000."

"All right, now what about Los Angeles, where the rate is also much lower?"

Mr. Wallis said that Los Angeles was on the West Coast.

"Let's turn to Baltimore," said Mr. MacFarland. "That is on the East Coast, is a good-sized city and gets its coal by tidewater."

Mr. Wallis said he had made no investigation of Baltimore.

Mr. MacFarland charged that he

A committee of prominent women is arranging for the Professional Women's Club a musicale and whist party to be held in the Copley-Plaza ballroom on January 24, and which will be open to the public.

Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French of Brookline is chairman of the committee in charge and Mrs. Frederick L. Millikent has charge of the program.

Mrs. Marie L. di Pesa, prima donna soprano, formerly with the Boston Opera Company, will sing several songs. The other artists who have engaged to take part in the program are Alden Finkel, cellist; Mrs. Florence Terrill Mills and Mrs. Mabel Tucker Hirtz, pianists, and Mrs. Minnie Stratton Watson.

U. S. POLICY FOR CHINA UPHELD BY DELEGATES

Proposal to Redefine Open Door and Examine Concessions Approved

Washington, Jan. 18.—(By the Associated Press.)—The American proposal to redefine the Open Door policy in China and to create an international board to examine both existing and future concessions which appear to conflict with it was adopted in part today by the Far Eastern Committee of the Washington conference.

The portions adopted included the general statement as to equality of opportunity in China for trade and industry of all notions; the agreement in China for trade and industry of all nations; the agreement by which the eight powers declare their acceptance of that principle, and the provision for creation of the international board.

Action was deferred pending further discussion, on the fourth and final paragraph of the resolution by which the nine powers, including China, agree that any provision of any existing concession appearing inconsistent with those of another concession or with the principles of the Open Door, may be submitted by the powers concerned to the international reference board.

The Japanese and French delegations were understood to have interposed objections to the fourth paragraph of the resolution, the latter suggesting its amendment so as to prevent possible interference with existing concessions by the board.

DR. RUTH LAUDS WRAGG'S DRUG EVIL BILL

Advises Representative, However, to Change Wording to Make Possession a Felony

Dr. Erwin C. Ruth, chief of the narcotic division of the Internal Revenue Department in Boston, today praised the bill introduced by Representative Samuel H. Wragg in the Massachusetts House to provide stricter punishment for violators of the narcotic laws, and advocated its passage.

The Federal officer declared, however, that the officers enforcing the law could get better results in curbing the fast growing "dope" peril by making the first offence for illegally peddling narcotics a felony.

Boston social workers are sending letters to the Boston American, commending its crusade against the drug evil and declaring their support of the Wragg bill.

The Wragg bill, which has the support of the Boston American, provides a minimum penalty of one year in jail for persons who illegally sell narcotics, and the maximum penalty is five years in prison.

For those caught having narcotics in their possession illegally, the minimum sentence would be three months in jail, and the maximum would be two and a half years.

OTHER STATES AROUSED.

A three months' minimum and one year maximum sentence is provided for illegal possession of a hypodermic syringe or needle.

Whoever keeps a place where habitual users of "dope" partake of the deadly product is deemed keeper of a nuisance and the minimum sentence proposed is three months, with a maximum of two years.

In a letter to the Boston American, Dr. Ruth says:

"The bill filed by Representative Samuel H. Wragg of Needham for new anti-narcotic legislation has been carefully read with deep interest in the Boston American.

"It is sincerely hoped that the State Legislature will give this bill the timely and necessary consideration it deserves.

"Other States are awakening to the gravity of the steadily-increasing drug menace, and have passed laws which deal harshly with those who violate them.

"The Boston American's article likens the 'dope' pedlar to 'a murderer spreading slow death and chiefly responsible for crime.'

"'Dope' peddling is far worse than murder. Its victims are better off dead. Unlike immediate homicide, the slow disgraceful death of the 'dope fiend' affects the addict's family as well as the entire public, who must support and bear his misdoings or crimes for years.

RUTH GLAD TO HELP.

"I wish to encourage the bill presented to the House and would make one suggestion. It is the first offence of illicit drug peddling or illegal possession that should be constituted a felony.

"The efforts of officers enforcing the law and the attorney prosecuting offenders would thereby be more effective in bringing lawbreakers to justice.

"This office will be glad to lend assistance in furnishing information to the State Legislators, when the next bill comes up for public hearing."

Arthur R. Pearce, general secretary of the New England Home for the Deaf and Invalids, strongly commended the Wragg bill.

"The Wragg bill is a good one and should be passed," said Pearce. "It is high time something is being done to stop 'dope' peddling and save the lives of our citizens.

"We have been too indifferent on the drug peril. While we have been resting, the peril has grown to large proportions. It threatens our very civilizations. Violation of the narcotic laws is a serious offence and those who do so should be justly punished."

ALLEGED "DOPE KING" SEIZED IN ROXBURY

West End and Somerville Men Taken After Revolvers Are Flourished

Anthony Cacciola of Lowell street, West End, alleged "king" of the "dope" pedlars and now under indictment for violating the Federal narcotic laws, again fell into the hands of government agents on a charge of selling morphine.

Cacciola and Louis T. Little of Morgan street, Somerville, were caught by Federal officers on Hammett street, near Columbus avenue, in Roxbury, after considerable brandishing of revolvers, in which Frederick E. Miner, a policeman from the Roxbury Crossing station, mistook the agents for robbers.

A deal with Cacciola to deliver an ounce of morphine for $40 was made, according to a Federal agent. Cacciola was met in a doorway, the money was passed to him.

Just as Cacciola and Little were getting into the machine Federal Officers Fry and Scannell pounced on them and with drawn revolvers put them under arrest.

MISTAKEN FOR CROOKS.

The policeman then stepped into the party and ordered all of them to throw up their hands. After considerable difficulty in making their identity known, Agents Fry and Scannell proceeded to confiscate the automobile and an ounce of morphine and one dram of cocaine, which were on one of the seats.

The Federal officers claim that Little had a part in the attempted sale, because he is alleged to have transported the "dope" from Bowdoin square to the Roxbury meeting place.

Policeman Miner assisted the federal officers in bringing Cacciola and Little to the Roxbury Crossing station, where they were held in bail of $5,000 each for appearance before United States Commissioner Nelson.

A third man and a woman, who were in the automobile, were not taken in custody, because it was believed they had no part in the illegal transaction. They may be used as witnesses.

Cacciola is declared by Federal narcotic officers to be a notorious "dope" pedlar. They say he served time in jail in 1916 and again in 1918 for larceny; that one time he was a fugitive from justice in Rhode Island, and later returned there.

September 15 last Cacciola was arrested for peddling "dope" and is now under indictment for that alleged offense.

BODY OF HYDE PARK MAN FOUND IN WATER

The body of Thomas Nickelson, sixty-five years old, who had been missing since December 10 last, was found floating in the Neponset River near Harlowe's coal wharf in Hyde Park by George Cox of No. 81 Water street. Cox notified police officials, and the dead man's step-son, Michael Hines of No. 1510 Hyde Park avenue, identified the body. Nickelson, who lived at No. 101 Fairmount street, Hyde Park, is thought to have met his death accidentally. Police say that on the day of his disappearance a man was seen to fall from a bridge into the river. No trace of the body could be found at that time.

MOTHER BARES ROXBURY BOY'S ROMANCE

Thinks Son Fled Fort to See Pretty Belgian Girl He Met While in Coblenz

"He loves a girl he met while he was serving with the army in Coblenz," declared Mrs. Elizabeth A. Stern of No. 379 Dudley street, Roxbury, today, in explaining her theory of the escape from Fort Jay, New York, of her son Harold, twenty-two years old, who was serving a sentence for desertion from the American Army of Occupation in Germany.

"I believe he will attempt to return to Germany to see this girl, for he is infatuated with her. She is a Belgian," went on the mother, "and is said to be remarkably pretty."

It was for this girl that Stern was said to have deserted while in Germany. He was captured and sent to New York for court-martial as a deserter. There he repeated the story of his love for the girl to his mother when she visited him.

According to the army officials, young Stern took with him when he fled two automatic pistols, the property of Major Samuelson, and it was believed that he took them intending to put up a fight if captured.

Stern's latest escape is the second time he has eluded his army guards. He was captured the first time when he tried to re-enlist in the army.

How he got off Government's Island, where Fort Jay is located, and reached the mainland of Manhattan, as he is believed to have done, is still a mystery, according to army authorities.

If he is rearrested now, he faces a fifteen-year term of imprisonment.

Stern is five feet six inches tall, weighs about 160 pounds, has protruding gray eyes, dark brokn hair and a ruddy complexion.

TECH TO WELCOME NEW PROFESSOR TONIGHT

ALBERT FERRAN

As a welcome to Professor Albert Ferran, who has just arrived in Boston from Paris, to take up his work as professor of architectural design in the Institute of Technology, an informal smoker will be given in the "Common Room" of the Rogers Building on Boylston street this evening. Professor Ferran is a Canfornian, born of French parents, who lived in this country until 1902, when he went to Paris to study. He received his degree from the Ecole des Beaux Arts in 1910 and in 1914 was winner of the Grand Prix de Rome. A program of stunts has been arranged for the smoker.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Youngsters Aid Skating Carnival for Radcliffe Fund

By BETTY ALDEN

As a rule, the mother and "big sisters" are the chief figures at benefit affairs of the smart set, but most certainly did the youngsters do their share to make a success of the skating carnival in aid of the Radcliffe endowment fund.

Quite the entire social register made its way to the Arena last night, for the committee in charge, headed by Miss Martha Thacher Brown of Beacon street, had planned a most unusual program. Everyone, of course, was interested in the Boston Fancy, which was skated by a sextette of couples, all of whom are conspicuous among society folk for their skill in the gentle art of fancy skating. But the playlet, or pantomime, on ice, called "In Fairyland," made an especial appeal to the audience, and the youngsters who took part in it were proof that age is not essential to skill upon the ice. Of the element who skated merrily through "Fairyland" were the following: Miss Catherine Davis, the young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lincoln Davis; Mr. and Mrs. Nat Niles' son, Nathaniel; Thornton Lothrop Coolidge of Milton Academy, whose parents are Dr. and Mrs. Algernon Coolidge; Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Eustis' daughters, Polly and Edith; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brewster's daughter Polly, and Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Brewster's son, George; also Molly and Joseph Frothingham, Teddy Goodridge, Grace, John and Lester Madden, and Evelyn Ames, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oakes Ames.

Following the fancy costume skating, there was an exciting exhibition of speed skating, and before the close of the evening came there was general skating, so that there was something to interest everyone. Among those of prominence in the social world who had boxes were Mesdames J. Montgomery Sears, George R. Agassiz, Allston Burr, J. M. Forbes, Charles E. Mason, William T. Aldrich, Arthur Lyman, A. Winsor Weld, Arthur Cabot, Horace Binney, Edward W. Atkinson, Arthur W. Blake, Joseph T. Brown, Arthur G. Edwards, George U. Crocker and Joseph G. Thorp and Miss Eleonora Sears.

To judge by all indications, the fashionable world will be well represented at the concert by Fritz Kreisler, noted violinist, which will be given tonight at Symphony Hall in aid of the Simmons College endowment fund. Mrs. Alexander Henderson of Chestnut Hill is in charge of the tickets for the affair.

A partial list of patronesses for tonight's concert include:

Rollin H. Brown, Mrs. Paul A. Draper, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, George H. Ellis, Horatio S. Lamb, Miss Frances R. Morse, Professor James Hardy Ropes, Mrs. Eva Whiting White, President and Mrs. Henry Lefavour, Mrs. C. Minot Weld, Mrs. William Endicott, Mrs. Allston Burr, Mrs. Arthur N. Hood, Mrs. Sidney E. Shuman, Mrs. Stephen M. Weld, Mrs. John Nicholas Prown, Miss Helen C. Burnham, Mrs. Clement S. Houghton, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Mrs. Bayard Warren, Mrs. Abraham Koshland, Mrs. R. P. Shallig, Mrs. B. Devereaux Barker, Mrs. C. E. Cotting, Mrs. Edward L. Kent, Mrs. Robert Winsor, Mrs. William T. Councilman, Mrs. Robert W. Emmons, Mrs. Hobart Ames, Mrs. William A. L. Bazeley, Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, Mrs. Henry S. Hunnewell, Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, Jr., and Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman.

A luncheon will be given by Mrs. John L. Grandin tomorrow at 12:45 o'clock at her home, No. 54 The Fenway, to the volunteers who are to help in the campaign for the support of the Instructive District Nursing Association. Charles F. Weed will speak on the psychology of asking for money and Mrs. Ernest Amory Codman will be heard regarding district nursing in Boston.

Apropos of nursing associations—Mrs. Edgar Crocker and Mrs. Edgar Pierce of Cambridge are working together to arrange for the tables in banks in all parts of Cambridge where funds for the Cambridge Visiting Nurse Asociation will be asked during the present campaign.

Of those assisting in the work are Mrs. George W. Cram, Mrs. Winthrop Slade, Mrs. Stoughton Bell, Mrs. Henry Fuller, Miss Elizabeth Wentworth, Mrs. Willard S. Martin, Miss Dorothea Gilman, Mrs. J. B. Read, Mrs. Charles Talcott, Miss Anne Wright, Mrs. Abel Hall, Miss Katherine Crocker, Mrs. Huntington Saville, Mrs. Arthur Jackson and Miss Eleanor Watson.

Betty Alden.

Miss Polly Beale, a clever little skater, was included in the "younger set" which took part in the ice carnival held for the benefit of the Radcliffe College endowment fund. Miss Beale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beale of Chestnut street.

PRESS RADIO BILL REPORTED IN SENATE

Washington, Jan. 18.—The House joint resolution extending the authority under which newspapers and press associations may use the government's naval radio service for the transmission of news to trans-Pacific countries, was ordered favorably reported by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

The resolution was amended to extend the privilege for five years instead of one.

SENATORS AGREE ON PLAN TO KILL TREATY

Will Force Reservations to Pacific Pact Objectionable to Powers

By Universal Service.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A definite plan of attack on the four power Pacific treaty has been laid out and agreed upon by Senators who intend to oppose its ratification.

The policy of opposition, it is announced, will be to frame and force the adoption of reservations which will be so objectionable to the powers who signed the treaty that they will refuse to exchange ratifications with the United States upon such terms.

If the opposing Senators can get a majority for Senator McNary's reservation guaranteeing independence to the Philippines with a provision binding every nation in the treaty to respect the territorial integrity and independent sovereignty of the Philippine nation, it is not believed Japan would consent to be a party to the treaty. Such an amendment would be too severe a test of her sincerity in the Pacific region to be acceptable to Japan's rulers, it is contended.

A reservation providing that when the conference of the four powers is called there shall be no resort to force "to meet the exigency of a particular situation," similarly might prove offensive and objectionable to Japan and other powers in the treaty.

A report reached the Senate that Mr. Wilson had privately imparted to close friends his opinion that the four-power treaty means the creation of an alliance which would make for war rather than for peace. It was stated by a prominent Senator that there were good reasons for believing the former President will adhere to this view if he should choose to assume leadership over his party followers in the Senate.

COUNTY DONEGAL BALL IN ROXBURY TOMORROW

MRS. CATHERINE DOHERTY

The County Donegal Benevolent Association of Greater Boston will hold its 14th reunion and ball in Hibernian Hall, No. 184 Dudley street, Roxbury, Thursday evening.

There will be a concert of American and Irish airs from 8 to 9, followed by modern and Irish folk dancing. Mayor-elect James M. Curley and delegations from all the Irish county clubs and kindred organizations will be present, as well as former Donegal people and their descendants from all sections of Metropolitan Boston.

A unique feature will be the attendance of representatives of the Donegal clubs of New York and Philadelphia, who will come on particularly to meet their kinsmen and former neighbors in the homeland.

The committee of arrangements includes Michael Lynch, president; Mrs. Mary E. MacNeill, vice-president; John P. McEleney, secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth McLaughlin, treasurer; Mrs. Michael Lynch, Mrs. Michael McLaughlin, Margaret Douglass, Margery Boyce, Mrs. Catherine Doherty, Miss Mary Doherty, Miss Winifred Doherty and Mrs. John Farren.

SOUTH IRELAND DISTURBED BY UNREST

Large Bodies of Armed Republicans Still Refuse to Accept Treaty

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 18.—Unrest prevails in Southern Ireland, says the Dublin correspondent of the London Times, who intimates that followers of De Valera may be engaged in stimulating disturbances.

"A spirit of extreme Republicanism," the correspondent declares, "still flames in the south, where large bodies of armed men refuse to accept the treaty between Ireland and Great Britain. There has been an epidemic of robbery and other crimes of violence in Dublin and in rural districts, which demands strong measures from the government.

"The whole country will heartily support the provisional Irish government in any measures taken to re-establish order, but the next few weeks, while English forces are being withdrawn, may be a difficult time in the island."

A newspaper published in the interests of the followers of De Valera is said to have appealed for funds for the purpose of organizing popular opinion in favor of the republic.

O'Duffy Chief of Staff of Republican Army

Dublin, Jan. 18 (By the Associated Press).—The appointment of Owen O'Duffy, as chief of staff of the Irish Republican army, was announced today. He succeeds Richard Mulcahy, the present Minister of Defence.

O'Duffy, who is thirty years old, has been Sinn Fein liaison officer in Northern Ireland since the truce.

STEFANSSON SUES LECTURE MANAGER

New York, Jan. 18.—"Over press agenting" by issuing extravagant stories of his exploits which discredited him in the scientific world, is the basis of a suit for $10,000 brought by Valhjalmar Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, against Lee Kendrick, manager of lectures. Mr. Stefansson also asks $10,000 because he was booked when too ill to appear. The suit was brought as a counter claim against the manager, who sued the explorer for $20,000 for alleged breach of contract.

GOVERNMENT READY TO EQUIP BOSTON AIR POST

As soon as the proposed site at East Boston is obtained for an air port, the War Department at Washington sent notice to the headquarters of the First Corps Area that hangars and other equipments for an airdrome would be furnished free by the government.

The site has not yet been purchased by the State and a bill for this purpose is now pending before the Legislature, asking for $30,000.

HERMES IS FAVORED AS GERMAN AMBASSADOR

Berlin, Jan. 18 (by the Associated Press).—After deciding to inform the United States that the appointment of Alanson B. Houghton as American ambassador to Berlin would be acceptable to the German government, the cabinet is understood to have discussed the question of an ambassador to Washington. It was rumored that the appointment of Dr. Andreas Hermes, now Minister of Food, was regarded with favor.

FEMALE RAFFLES CONFESSES TO 13 ROBBERIES

Manchester, N. H., Woman's Arrest Solves Perplexing Series of Thefts, Say Police

Mother of Five Young Children Held as House Thief

MRS. KATHERINE MARSTON

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 18.—Police declare that Mrs. Katherine Marston, thirty-six-year-old mother of five young children, is the clever "female Raffles" who has for three years baffled detectives in the perpetration of scores of robberies in apartments and homes in this city.

The woman, who is now lodged in jail in default of $1,200 bail on four counts of breaking and entering, is said to have confessed to committing thirteen robberies here during the past three years.

The thefts were so cleverly planned, the officers say, that for a long time they were entirely in the dark as to the possible identity of the guilty person. Several months ago suspicion was directed to Mrs. Marston, and an investigation of her activities started that resulted two days ago in her arrest.

MOVIE FAN.

Mrs. Marston is said by neighbors to have been a consistent moving picture fan, and to have stayed away from home late at night on many occasions on the pretext of going to a theatre. It is thought that she utilized this excuse for being out at night to cover her alleged thefts in the homes and apartments she is said to have visited.

The woman went about her work with great care, police say, taking pains to assure herself that the occupants of the house she intended to purglarize were away from home before she attempted to enter. Most of her thefts involved money only, police say.

She was finally arrested after a number of gold pieces, missing from one of the homes which had been robbed, were traced to her possession.

MUST STAY IN JAIL.

Mrs. Marston's five children range in age from nine to sixteen years. The oldest child, a boy, is said by neighbors to have been missing since the middle of December, although no such report has been made to the police.

Her husband, Edward Marston, is a member of the city fire department. He was ignorant of his wife's alleged thefts up to the time of her arrest. Mr. Marston claims that his wife's mental condition following three accidental "gassings" in 1919, caused their married life to be one series of troubles.

"But," he says, "I never thought that she was a burglar. I gave her and the children a good home, and there was no financial reason why she should break into homes for money."

She is at present being held for the grand jury at the May term of the Superior Court. As she cannot furnish the required bail, it is probable that she will have to remain in jail for several months before her case can come up for trial.

WHY WOMEN GET DESPONDENT

Are not women naturally as light-hearted, brave and hopeful as men? Yes, certainly; but a woman's organism is essentially different from a man's—more delicate, more sensitive and more exacting. Women in delicate health are more dependent, more nervous, more irritable and more despondent. When a woman develops nervousness, sleeplessness, backaches, headaches, dragging-down pains and melancholia she should lose no time in giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial, as it will quickly dispel such troubles. This root and herb medicine contains no drugs and has been the standby of American womanhood for nearly fifty years.—Advertisement.

2 BURGLAR SUSPECTS CAUGHT IN BRIGHTON

Patrolmen Lundy and Warren of the Brighton police station were sent on a bury call to an apartment at No. 1126 Commonwealth avenue when neighbors reported that something seemed to be wrong at a flat there. Arriving at the apartment, the officers forced the door after being denied entrance and seized two men, whom they claim were collecting valuables from the rooms. The men were taken to the station, where they gave the names of William Carnell, eighteen years old, of No. 76 Huntington avenue, and George F. Grace, twenty-nine years old, of No. 1 Templeton way, Dorchester. They were booked on charges of breaking and entering and attempted larceny. The apartment was occupied by Miss Dorothy Clark, who was out at the time of the break.

STATE OFFERS HELP TO INCOME TAX PAYER

Help for the troubled income tax payer is offered in the State university extension course which is to open at 7 o'clock Friday evening, January 20, in Room 15 of the State House. The course deals with methods of making income tax returns according to the most recent provisions of the Federal income tax law. The class will meet weekly on Friday evenings for eight weeks under the direction of John T. Drury, a practicing public accountant and member of the Massachusetts Bar, who has been appointed instructor by the State division of university extension.

WOMAN CAUSES STIR IN FALL RIVER MEETING

Fall River, Jan. 18.—During a meeting of the Board of Health held in City Hall the members had to call in the police when Mrs. Catherine Barlow of Atlantic boulevard, a petitioner for permission to keep pigs at the premises, berated the members individually and collectively, accusing them of unfairness and discrimination. Two police officers were sent from police headquarters and escorted the woman from the building.

FIVE PRISONERS FLEE PENNSYLVANIA JAIL

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Jan. 18.—Forewarned that an attempt would be made to deliver Anthony Puntario and Peter Enrico, gunmen, convicted of the murder of Detective Sam Lucchino in Pittston sixteen months ago, Warden Whalen and officials of the Luzerne County jail were taken completely by surprise when five prisoners, three of them under sentence, broke jail and escaped. One has been recaptured, but the others are still at large.

$300,000 PAID OUT TO RHODE ISLAND INJURED

Providence, Jan. 18.—Nearly $300,000 was paid out in the State during the year ending September 30, 1920, to injured workmen or to beneficiaries of employes killed in the course of their employment, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, according to Commissioner of Labor George H. Webb. The statistics were taken from the reports of twenty-six companies selling compensation insurance.

CHILD PRAISES UNKNOWN HERO OF ITALY

American Ambassador Delivers Oration at Tomb in Rome

Rome, Jan. 18 (By the Associated Press).—America today paid tribute to the Italian unknown soldier, who sleeps beneath the nation's shrine in this city. American soldiers, forming a composite battalion, participated in the ceremonies incident to the bestowal of the congressional medal of honor upon the Italian warrior. Richard Washburn Child, United States Ambassador to Italy, delivered the oration at the tomb.

"We come to do honor to one who, though nameless, shall glorify through the ages the nation that gave him birth," said Child. "By this tribute we lay upon this altar, we hope in some measure to add to the tokens of love, faith and trust flowing from the people of the United States to the people of Italy.

"It is proper at this moment, when we stand together at the last resting place of one who made the ultimate sacrifice to a high cause, that we, who are living, should pledge to each other the fulfillment of the high purposes held in common by our two governments and our two peoples. It is fitting we should pledge to each other devotion to justice and tolerance; faithful labor and unselfish service to truth in all our words; loyalty in our lives and honesty in all our deeds.

"It is for us, in whose veins the coursing life blood flows, to keep always in our hearts the memory of the last moment of this soldier's life—that sudden spasm of pain, that twisting body, that tightening of the muscles, that last agony, that last moment, before he who gave all to his country and to his fellow men fell into the eternal peace of death and received from the hand of God his measure of infinite mercy.

"To the honor brought to this spot by the unknown warrior himself, my government and my people, and we who represent them can today add little. We have faith, however, that we can bring here a high resolve. With the hearts and minds of our two nations in accord, we may together pledge here a service of self-sacrifice less complete, but no less valuable and immortal, than that we honor in this unknown soldier.

"Nation and nation, we share that virtue, that bravery, that dedication, that spirit of devotion which we now honor in this soldier of Italy. He is not alone Italy's soldier, for, by the virtue that is in us, we Americans have earned the right to call him ours."

A Home Recipe for Gray Hair

Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 2 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for use and a $100.00 gold bond come in each box, guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coaltar products or their derivatives.

It is safe, does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger.—Advertisement.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and Calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

MILFORD DRY RAIDERS SEIZE STILLS AND MASH

Milford, Jan. 18.—Federal Officer Charles R. Stearns of the Wilson prohibition forces, accompanied by Milford police, conducted four raids in search of liquor and were successful in two instances. At the premises of Raffaele Bartorelli, on Pond street, a milk can perforated and used as a still, but containing no mash, and a glass container in which there was one half-gallon of moonshine, were seized. At the home of Hade Nein[illegible], on Depot street, a fifty-gallon still, jugs containing five gallons of moonshine, and five barrels of nearly 300 gallons of mash were seized in a room leading off the cellar. The other places visited were those of P. J. Gallagher, Central street, and Joseph Corelli, East Main street.

ACCUSED OF LOCKING VICTIM IN ICE CHEST

Three months ago Richard Akmekjian, who conducts a grocery and provision store at No. 1 Warren street, Charlestown, was locked in the ice chest of his store by one of two men, who entered to purchase a ham. Akmekjian went to the ice chest to get the ham, when they locked the door, on the night of October 27, and left him there. The two men then rifled the cash register of $65. Akmekjian got a look at the men and remembered them, with the result that Vincent Ryan, thirty-one years of age, of No. 39 Belmont street, Charlestown, was arrested on a warrant, charging him with robbery. He pleaded not guilty, but Judge Sullivan in the Charlestown Court found probable cause and held Ryan in $2,000 for the February term of the grand jury.

LENOX STREET TO NORTH STATION LINE TO RESUME

General Manager Dana of the Boston Elevated Railway announces that beginning Thursday, January 19, the former service between Lenox street and North station via Tremont and Northampton streets, Columbus avenue, Berkeley and Tremont street subway will be substituted for the present Columbus avenue service which operates between Lenox street and Park square. The local five cent fare will be discontinued and the ten cent fare established.

WATTS WITNESS IN CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CASE

Buiness Manager of Publishing Society Questioned by Dane in Supreme Court

John R. Watts, business manager of the Christian Science Publishing Society, was further cross-examined by Walter A. Dane, of counsel for the directors of the Christian Science Church, at a continued hearing today before Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court on a petition of the trustees of the publishing society asking that their accounts may be allowed.

Watts was inquired of specifically as to the equipment of the San Francisco depot, the payment to twenty-three employes of the publishing society of an extra three months' salary, and the voucher and check for $2,500 paid to himself for services in connection with the bill in equity brought by the trustees against the directors of the church and other legal services. He explained that the $2,500 was given to him by the trustees in recognition of services he had rendered.

Asked by Dane if he had criticized the board of directors established by Mrs. Eddy as an "ecclesiastical hierarchy," Watts replied he had not used those words as applying to Mrs. Eddy's directors, but he had criticized the present interpretation by the board of directors of their authority as an ecclesiastical hierarchy.

LETTER IS READ.

Dane then introduced the following letter sent by Watts to Charles E. Jarvis secretary of the board of directors:

"Having volunteered to send you a memorandum copy of our conversation today, I am inclosing it, together with a memorandum of our previous conversation.

"Having parted with one's birthright of individual responsibility and thinking for subjection to an ecclesiastical hierarchy, it is of course discouraging to have the pottage withheld. But grabbing for it does not help the situation. I told you I would relinquish the office only upon an order of the court indicating that our responsibility had ceased, and resignating those to whom the responsibility should be given. Until that time, may I ask you not to come over again in continuance of this ridiculous farce."

Watts said Jarvis had visited him twice recently and demanded that he surrender the publishing society to him. The last visit was made on Saturday of last week after Judge Crosby had accepted the resignation of the trustees.

Judge Crosby remarked he did not consider the correspondence of much value as affecting the issue before the court, but permitted it to be introduced.

ROWLAND'S PAY DISCUSSED.

Herbert W. Eustace, senior counsel member of the board of trustees, having been appointed on December 2, 1912, said the situation was very acute when the San Francisco depot was established. This depot was deemed necessary because of a deliberate attempt to destroy the periodicals of the publishing society, and the apparent stopping of the works of Mrs. Eddy.

There were other considerations, Eustace said, which led to that action.

One of these was the zone system established by the postal department, and the necessity of getting the publications to their destination as rapidly as possible. Eustance said it had been planned eventually to have such depots in all parts of the world. Unless that depot in San Francisco had been established, Eustace said it was his opinion that the sale of publications would have stopped.

An admission by Eustace that Lamont Rowlands, a trustee, had been paid $500 a month from the time he was removed by the directors (under advice of counsel up to the day when the full bench of the Supreme Court rendered its decision in the suit of the trustees against the directors, led to an argument by counsel on both sides as to the value of services rendered by Rowlands.

Judge Crosby said that, if Rowlands did the work of a trustee, he was entitled to the full salary, if he were entitled to any salary at all.

In answer to a question by Judge Crosby, Eustace said that $500 a month was a very meagre salary for the services of Rowlands and certainly was reasonable.

PASSENGER SUED BY BROCKTON CONDUCTOR

Brockton, Jan. 18.—Hugh V. McKenny, motorman-conductor of a one-man trolley car, has brought suit against Willis B. Littlefield, foreman of a Brockton shoe factory, asking $2,000 because, as he alleges, Littlefield damaged his reputation and "caused suspicion to be directed toward him" following an altercation on McKenney's car.

So far as is known here this is the first time an employe of a street railway company has brought legal redress following a dispute with a passenger.

LAWRENCE MAN FINED $225 FOR 81 P. C. DRINK

Lawrence, Jan. 18.—Corado Guglino, proprietor of a food shop on Jackson street, was fined $225 in District Court today on charges of illegal exposing and sale of liquor. An analysis of the moonshine Guglino was said to have sold was made by the State chemist and, according to a report submitted at the hearing today, the stuff contained more than 81 per cent alcohol.

PERSHING ASKS RETENTION OF CAMP DEVENS

Would Have Ayer Base Kept as Military Training Centre for Corps Area

By Associated Press.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Retention by the War Department of nine main training centres, one in each corps area, and of a number of other special camps was recommended today by General Pershing, chief of staff, at a hearing before the House Military Committee.

His recommendations included retention as military training centres of Camps Devens, Massachusetts; Dix, New Jersey; Meade, Maryland; McLellan, Alabama; Knox, Kentucky; Custer, Michigan; Fort Riley, Kansas; Travis, Texas, and Lewis, Washington.

As supplementary camps for mobilization and training of National Guard, reserve units, and special detachments the general urged retention of Camps Upton, New York; Lee, Virginia; Jackson, South Carolina; Sherman, Ohio; Grant, Illinois; Pike, Arkansas, and Dodge, Iowa.

NEWTON GIRL HOME FROM THE NEAR EAST

Miss Annette L. Munro of Arundel terrace, Newton, has arrived in New York after service of more than a year and a half with the Near East Relief in various stricken regions of the Levant. She declared that in Talas, Central Asia Minor, where she was stationed during the latter part of her stay, there was widespread suffering among the Greek and Armenian deportees sent away from the areas near the Graeco-Turkish battlefront. Miss Munro is a graduate of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

MERCHANTS CONVICTED IN ROXBURY COURT

Francis Fallon of Hillside street, Roxbury, and John Glynn of St. Alphonsus street, charged in Roxbury Court with breaking and entering in the daytime the homes of Winifred Burke of No. 135 Calumet street and James Killian of No. 95 Hillside street, were found guilty by Judge Hayden and sentenced to six months each. Sentence was suspended and they were placed on probation. John Peretzin and Mark Zararkian, storekeepers, who, it is alleged, received some of the stolen goods from the two boys, were sentenced to six months each and ordered to make restitution in the sum of $200.

$1,500,000 Pearl Chain Owned by Mrs. Dodge, Auto Man's Widow

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 18.—The $1,500,000 pearl necklace which recently centred attention upon a suit brought by Paris antique dealers against Cartier, Inc., is the property of Mrs. Anna Thompson Dodge, of Detroit, widow of the automobile manufacturer, it was learned today.

The necklace, said to have been the property at one time of Catherine II., of Russia, was given to Mrs. Dodge by her husband, just before his death.

The necklace is said to have been sold by the house of Cartier for $800,000. Benguinat Brothers alleged that they received only $500,000 of this amount, although they put the necklace in the hands of Cartier for disposal, with the understanding that they were to participate equally in any profits.

AGENT WILSON WILL FIGHT TRANSFER

Speaking to an audience in Worcester, Harold D. Wilson, prohibition enforcement agent for this territory, declared that his enemies were trying to obtain his transfer to another State.

"Come what will, I will not submit to such transfer," he declared. "I intend to finish the work I have undertaken here. All this talk that I should be sent to some other territory, in order that the work might be carried on here with 'less friction,' is just so much 'wet' propaganda."

Wilson has obtained several concessions from the office of Prohibition Director Haynes in Washington, but is still dissatisfied with the way things are going here. He was permitted to "fire" seven sub-agents, whom he did not want about him, and to hire others to take their places. Other changes in the personnel of his force which he wants to make have been denied.

He has been ousted from his former commodious quarters and placed in an office connected with that of District Director Elmer C. Potter, and his telephone wire goes through Potter's switchboard.

According to Wilson's friends the dry agent will fight a transfer, and will continue his work as best he can under the conditions imposed upon him, but will resign before he will accept a transfer to some other region. If he is compelled to resign, they say, he will make a State-wide speaking campaign in the interest of prohibition enforcement. He is an effective speaker, long associated with evangelical church work, and has a wide acquaintance among church people.

'DRY' LAW CLEAR; HAYES PRODS OFFICERS

Federal Commissioner Dismisses Cases Against Five Somerville Men

"If the prohibition law is to be enforced, it must be enforced according to law and not according to the whims of police officers and ignorant prohibition agents," said United States Commissioner Hayes today in discharging five defendants charged with unlawfully possessing liquor on Christmas Eve.

The defendants, all residents of Somerville, were James P. Kane, Bow street, proprietor of a near-beer saloon, accused of possessing ten ounces of whiskey; Thomas F. Sullivan Partridge street, proprietor of near-beer, five quarts liquor; Fred Bosner, possessing four ounces of liquor, and Dewey Fairbanks, Medford street, possessing one ounce of liquor, both men serving as bartenders for Sullivan, and Ritchie Vincento of Medford street, proprietor of a barber shop, possessing one ounce of liquor. Vincento's barber shop is next door to Sullivan's saloon.

Police, armed with State warrants and accompanied by Harold D. Wilson, prohibition supervisor, and two of his agents, raided the Somerville stores. Commissioner Hayes found fault with the prosecuting officers for bringing the cases for trial in the Federal Court following search and seizure on State warrants. He instructed the officers that in the future arrests on State warrants should be followed up by prosecution in State courts.

Commissioner Hayes ruled in substance today that a prohibition agent's only right on the premises is that of an ordinary citizen who might have been asked to assist a police officer. He stated that prohibition agents cannot act as prohibition agents under State search warrants. The only lawful way for them to be there, he said, was under a Federal search warrants.

SAYS SMALLER BOATS TOOK ALCOHOL FROM SHIP

The trial of five defendants charged with conspiracy in landing 2,200 gallons of alcohol from the schooner Golden West in Massachusetts Bay was resumed today in the Federal Court. Lawrence Adams, member of the crew, who is being held as a material government witness, gave testimony which was in corroboration of testimony by two members of the crew that drums and casks of alcohol were unloaded from the Golden West into smaller boats, which were manned by certain of the defendants.

Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—Advertisement.

QUEBEC CLEARS $4,000,000 IN LIQUOR PROFIT

Government Monopoly Reaps Fund for Roads and Schools; Big Sum to Lift Debt

Quebec, Jan. 18 (By the Associated Press).—Profits from liquor sales in the Province of Quebec will pay off the public debt in twenty years, maintain roads and provide funds for education, according to a report prepared by Premier Taschereau for submission to the Legislature at its present session.

Basing his findings on the business done since May, 1921, when the liquor trade became a government monopoly, the Premier estimated that the yearly profit would be $4,000,000.

Besides $28,000,000 loaned municipalities for road-building and provided for by sinking fund, Quebec's debt is $23,000,000. By setting apart $1,000,000 a year from liquor profits, Premier Taschereau maintained the Province would be able to retire its outstanding loans in twenty years and still have $3,000,000 a year left for other purposes.

$2,000,000 FOR SCHOOLS.

This balance M. Taschereau would divide between roads and education—one million for the roads and two millions for the schools.

The government sold $9,325,727 worth of liquor from May 1 to December 31, 1921. During May, the first month of government control, the dispensaries took in $280,173. In December, the last month covered by the report, this had grown to $2,470,295.

"Much of the liquor," explained the Premier, "was sold to outsiders, hundreds of thousands of visitors coming into the province to enjoy a little liberty. It has been estimated that 81 per cent. of the liquor sold in the city of Montreal was purchased by people from other parts of the country."

From the moral, as well as financial standpoint, Quebec liquor laws have proved successful, Mr. Taschereau claims.

ALWAYS DRUNKS—EVERWHERE.

"No doubt," he admits, "some drunken men are to be found. They will always be found, and there are more of them in prohibition communities, New York, for example."

The Premier announced the government planned to encourage the consumption of wine, rather than push the sale of spirits. To that end a purchasing office will be established in Paris, to buy wines directly from the producers in France, Italy, Spain and Portugal. These supplies will be delivered to consumers in Quebec at little more than cost.

The government's ordinary profit is 20 per cent. The liquor commission maintains 59 liquor shops, 15 store houses and three departments for shipping. The monthly pay roll is $71,000.

CLAIM ASYLUM INMATE SET FARM FIRES

Owners Ask State to Reimburse Them for Damage Near Grafton

How an inmate of the Grafton State Hospital, suffering under the delusion that he was being persecuted, fired three neighboring farmhouses, from which the occupants barely escaped with their lives, was described to the legislative Committee on Ways and Means today.

Joseph T. Atchue of North Grafton testified that his son arrived at their farm late at night and found the barn in flames. A man was running away at the rear of the barn. The son shot twice at him. The family was aroused just in time to leave the burning farm buildings.

Young Atchue drove to the colony, where the records showed that a paroled inmate had arrived shortly after the fire was discovered.

Irving R. Nichols said his barn was destroyed by fire. He built a new one. That was also fired, many of the remaining farm buildings going along with it. A farmer named Davenport testified that he found a box, full of straw, up against one of his barns.

Former Senator Francis Prescott, a trustee of the hospital, said the inmate, Dana Leighton, had confessed to firing the three buildings. He has been sent to Bridgewater.

Atchue and Nichols ask the State to reimburse them for their loss.

SHE LOOKS SO WELL AND HAPPY

See the rich, red blood, the sign of health, showing in her lovely cheeks

Some women have naturally beautiful complexions that tell you there is plenty of richness in their blood. Their figures become well formed, supple, rounded, and graceful. Those are the results of rich, red blood, and plenty of it. There is no need of being thin and scrawny from poor blood. Get a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan—take it with your meals for a few weeks. It will give you plenty of red blood. By building up the blood, you give the entire system a chance to restore itself naturally, and that brings natural bloom and beauty and all the effects and joys of good health. Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist's in liquid or tablet form.—Advertisement.

Many Eyes Ruined Beyond All Hope

Which Might Have Been Saved by Proper Attention in Time

Simple Home Treatment That Strengthens Eyesight in a Week's Time in Many Instances.

Do you wear glasses? Do you hold your newspaper or the needle you wish to thread at arm's length? What would you give to strengthen your sight so you could do without glasses and forget your eyes? We use our eyes every waking moment, day and night, but seldom do anything for them. No wonder vision grows blurred and dim and that eyes grow bloodshot, watery and inflamed; no wonder that glasses are worn by tens of thousands yet in their teens, or that headaches and pains caused by weak, weary, work-strained eyes drive thousands to distraction and make failures of them.

How can human eyes work incessantly if nothing is done to relieve the strain and repair the waste of constant use? If you want to save your eyes before it is too late; if you would like to discard your glasses; strengthen your eyesight; ward off the dim vision of increasing years, ask your druggist for a Bon-Opto Home Treatment Outfit for the eyes. It contains everything you need. The first application of Bon-Opto—cooling, healing, soothing—brings comfort, rest and relief from strain and overwork. Thousands now hopelessly blind might have saved their eyes if they had cared for them in time.

Note: When the above article was shown to a prominent city physician, he said: "Yes, Bon-Opto is truly a wonderful eye remedy. I have used it very successfully in my practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or the wearing of misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in cases of weak, strained, aching, itching, smarting, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision, and for eyes inflamed from exposure to sun, dust or wind." The manufacturers have such confidence in Bon-Opto that they guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50% in one week's time in many instances or they will refund the money. Bon-Opto is sold by all good druggists.

SALES TAX FOR PAYING BONUS FAVORED

Would Be Used to Bridge Gap Until Revenue Came From British Bonds

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A sales tax, combined with a British bond issue, is the administration plan for financing the soldiers' bonus, it was revealed today by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, and Senator Curtis, Kansas, Republican whip before a conference embracing practically the entire majority membership of sixty in the upper chamber. The conference was called by Senator Lodge for the express purpose of considering the pending foreign debt funding bill, and for providing if possible united Republican support to insure its early passage by the Senate.

It was understood that differences of opinion prevailed among Republican Senators participating in the conference as to the length of time which would be required to float the proposed British bond issue and to bring sufficient cash from the sale of the proposed bonds in this country to finance adjusted compensation for ex-service men.

Senator McCumber of North Dakota, the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, was understood to have expressed the opinion that, in view of the administration's avowed desire to start soldiers' bonus payments as soon as possible this year, some form of taxation would have to be found to bridge over the gap which would exist between the time the British bond issue may be authorized and cash from the sale of the bonds may be realized.

HARDING FAVORS TAX.

Senator Edge of New Jersey, in expressing his unqualified approval of the British bond issue proposal, estimated that the bonds could be made to bear a substantial return within a year.

Several administration spokesmen, who took a leading part in the conference, were authoritatively represented as stating that the President is favorably inclined toward a sales tax being employed for the purpose suggested by Senator McCumber, if it were found that at least a year may elapse before a substantial return on the proposed British bonds could be regarded as a certainty.

Senators favoring the sales tax were reported as urging that such a tax be coupled with the proposed British bond issue as a means of not only insuring the early financing of the soldiers' bonus and the adjustment of the British debt, but of securing the adoption of a sales tax as a permanent basis of taxation.

Senator McCumber was of the opinion that some form of taxation probably will have to be found anyhow to finance the soldiers' bonus until the money that might accrue from the proposed British bond issue became available and the sales tax advocates urged that no better form of taxation could be found for such a purpose than the form of taxation which they favored.

TO RUSH DEBT BILL.

The first step toward carrying out the plan of linking the soldiers' bonus with the foreign debt, it was explained by Senator Lodge, was the immediate passage of the foreign debt funding bill.

It was also stated that amendments would be offered by either Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin or Johnson of California, both of whom absented themselves from the conference, to require congressional authorization for any adjustment of the foreign debt which might be found necessary by the whigh might be found necessary by the pending bill.

Early passage of the bill, in the form desired by Republican leaders, was confidently predicted by them.

DETAILS OF GOVERNING FREE STATE DISCUSSED

London, Jan. 18 (By the Associated Press).—Details regarding the handing over of power in Ireland to the new Irish Provisional Government were discussed here today by representatives of the Irish Provisional regime and the members of the British Cabinet Committee which is handling affairs in connection with Ireland headed by Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies.

The Irish representatives were Eamon J. Duggan and Kevin O'Higgins.

Other questions considered included the release of Irish political prisoners in England not covered by King George's recent amnesty proclamation.

BAY STATE NEEDS NEW PRISON, SAYS WARDEN

Massachusetts needs a new State prison, according to Warden Lewis E. Lawes of the Sing Sing prison, New York, who made a tour of inspection of the State prison in Charlestown today. The present location is bad, in his opinion, the prison yard being small, and a new building would improve the ventilation. The shops and kitchen are in a clean and well-kept condition for such an old antiquated institution. He said that the morale of the prisoners was good.

FAVOR APPOINTMENT OF STATE POLICE HEAD

A bill to permit the appointment of a superintendent of the metropolitan district police was today reported by the legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs, notwithstanding the objection of Commissioner of Civil Service Payson Dana, who protested that the bill is merely intended to "cover" Captain Herbert West, who was on the payroll as superintendent and was reduced to captain on complaint of the Massachusetts Police Association.

BAY STATE ASKS RIGHT TO ISSUE $922,000 BONDS

The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway today petitioned the State Department of Public Utilities to approve a proposed issue of $922,000 of bonds, to redeem obligations incurred by the street railway in improving its property and service. The company also asked the department to certify that the $2,000,000 raised through the sale of bonds to upbuild the property under the public-control act has been properly expended.

Earnest Student of the Stage Is Also an Artist in Oils

ADELE KLAER.

BEGINS TO ACT BEFORE SHE GETS ROLES

Adele Klaer Says Managers With Craze for Types Are Often Won Over

By FRED J. McISAAC, Dramatic Editor.

"No," said Adele Klaer, "this white band I wear under my chin is not a double chin reducer, but the regular costume of ladies in Sicily in the thirteenth century. I'll admit it interferes with my profile, but it's all for art."

We were chatting back stage at the Hollis, and Miss Klaer, who is the thirteenth-century wife of the Wandering Jew, was wearing the unusual costume which was the style of the period.

Miss Klaer is a serious little lady, an earnest student of the stage and also an artist in oils when she isn't working in grease paint. In fact, she doesn't know whether she is an actress first and a painter afterwards or vice versa. We talked about a lot of things, but the most interesting thing she said was how good actors get around the craze of managers for "types."

LACK IMAGINATION.

"A good many managers do not seem to have any imagination," said Miss Klaer. "They do not give actors credit for knowing anything about their business. For example, if I apply for a part, and I do not look, walk, talk and behave exactly as the part requires, they say I am not the type and send for somebody else. That system has been largely responsible for hurting the art of acting.

"Now I do not wish to be a type actress. I try very hard not to be cast for the same kind of roles season after season. So this is what I do. I try to find out in advance what kind of a girl is wanted for a certain part, a part which may be quite different from me as I actually am.

OFTEN PASSES MUSTER.

"Then I try to make myself like the type which is needed, and I call on the manager. If I went as my natural self he would probably say:

"'Oh, you wouldn't do at all. You are not the type.'

"Having made myself the type in advance I often pass muster.

"Lots of performers do the same thing. We begin to act before we get the roles instead of afterwards."

ONLY BEER AND WINE TO BE SOLD IN QUEBEC

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—The Quebec Liquor Commission has issued order forbidding all clubs in the Province of Quebec to sell anything but beer and light wines. The order is effective February 1.

WILL RADIUM AT LAST OPEN THE DOOR OF THE GREAT UNKNOWN?

If you are sick and want to Get Well and Keep Well, write for literature that tells How and Why this almost unknown and wonderful new element brings relief to so many sufferers from Constipation, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout, Neuritis, Neuralgia, Nervous Prostration, High Blood Pressure and diseases of the Stomach, Heart, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys and other ailments. You wear Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad day and night, receiving the Radio-Active Rays continuously into your system, causing a healthy circulation, overcoming sluggishness, throwing off impurities and restoring the tissues and nerves to a normal condition—and the next thing you know you are getting well.

Sold on a test proposition. You are thoroughly satisfied it is helping you before the appliance is yours. Nothing to do but wear it. No trouble or expense and the most wonderful fact about the appliance is that it is sold so reasonable that it is within the reach of all, both rich and poor.

No matter how bad your ailment, or how long standing, we will be pleased to have you try it at our risk. For full information write today—not tomorrow. Radium Appliance Co., 269 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.—Advertisement.

ARMOURS SEE NEW YEAR OF PROSPERITY

Optimistic Despite Packers' Total Losses Running to $31,709,817

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Emerging from a year of financial depression during which losses mounted into millions, Armour & Co. greet the new year confident of a turn to the better, according to the annual report of President J. Ogden Armour.

Losses sustained by the Armour and allied industries during the year just passed aggregated $31,709,817.52, according to the statement of President Armour. That officials of company look for better things during the current year is evidenced in Armour's statement that "with losses completely written off and with inventories at current market values, there is every reason for looking to better times."

Further liquidation of prices, one of the chief factors in the business depression, according to the statement, is "unwarranted and hardly probable."

Need of stabilization of foreign exchange is given emphasis. Huge losses to the industry resulted from this monetary instability, the report asserts.

That the company, despite its heavy losses, is well prepared to enter upon the new era is evidenced, the report states, in th fact that in face of these losses regular quarterly dividends have been paid on preferred stock at the rate of 7 per cent., and that on December 29, 1920, a dividend of $2,000,000 was declared and paid on commonstock.

"Conditions do not warrant further dividends on common stock," he report adds.

Total assets of the company are given at $480,536,274.32.

During 1921 the total volume of business done by the company amounted to $600,000,000, the report shows.

ASSESSOR QUITS DESPITE BILL TO SAVE JOB

Lebowitch, Target in Curley Campaign; Mayor-Elect Protests Measure

Deputy Assessor Jacob Lebowitch of the city of Boston Assessing Department, who was made an object of attack by Mayor-elect James M. Curley during the recent campaign, has handed in his resignation.

The announcement was made today during the course of the hearing by the legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs on the bill to allow the principal assessors to hold office for the full term for which they are appointed and to place the deputy assessors under civil service, thereby retaining them in office.

Lebowitch had been charged by Mayor-elect Curley with piling the taxes too heavily on all the property in Dorchester.

William H. McMasters of the Curley forces said the bill was evidently intended to handicap the incoming administration. When told that the deputy assessors had all held office for seventeen years, McMasters said he did not object to the section of the bill intended to protect them, as he felt Mr. Curley would not disturb them.

Senator Casassa of Revere later read a letter from Mayor-elect Curley, protesting against the entire bill.

State Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long testified that assessing in Boston is nearer an equal basis than ever before and the assessors should be retained wherever possible.

The committee later voted to report that section of the bill which places the deputy assesors under civil service.

ALL SET FOR SECOND BIG THEATRICAL BALL

Everything is in readiness for the theatrical ball which is to be given by the Theatrical Stage Employes at Mechanics Building tomorrow night. The event is the second annual affair to be given by this prominent organization comprising a large number of men prominently identified with the leading Boston theatres. A record-breaking crowd is expected to attend and enjoy the festivities of the evening, which will begin shortly after 7 and conclude at 2 in the morning.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

HORSERACING holds the centre of the screen at the Park Theatre this week, where the Fox production, "Thunderclap," is the feature attraction. The companion picture is Messmore Kendall's farce comedy, "Pardon My French," starring Vivian Martin.

The two high lights of "Thunderclap" are the racing scene and the scene in which the hero is carried down a roaring river to a falls that, by a camera trick, looks like Niagara. This rescue closely rivals the famous one in "Way Down East" and quite outshadows that so loudly extolled by Universal in their picture starring Priscilla Dean, "Conflict." One thing apparent is that there can be no trickery in it. The river was rushing fast and the hero was fighting constantly.

Aside from those two incidents, and the racing scene is more or less conventional, the picture has no particular value. It is the story of a gambler who used everyone and everything to further the success of his "crooked" game. In a fit of anger he strikes down his wife and cripples her. He uses his stepdaughter as an attraction to his rooms, and even offers to let another gambler marry her for $40,000, a sum he owes a man who caught him cheating.

This is where the poor Jack-of-all-trades comes in as the hero. He has trained his horse, Thunderclap, for the big handicap race and proceeds to walk off with the money the gambler was counting on to win the heroine.

NOTHING UNUSUAL.

It is not an unusual story nor has it been put on in an unusual way. If one likes that type of action, then he should see it.

Mary Carr, who scored as the mother in "Over the Hill," is seen as the mother again, this time as a woman who can neither move nor talk. Fox has a weakness for such a character in his films.

Marc McDermott played the role of the paralyzed father in "While New York Sleeps," while more recently Tyrone Power played the part of the blind old man in "Footfalls." The fewer senses a character is given, the more attractive it is to Mr. Fox's scenario department.

Mrs. Carr does very well as the old mother. She was given only her eyes to express her feeling and used them effectively. She has not come up to her playing of "Over the Hill." J. Barney Sherry is seen as the gambler. The part lacks the element of chance that most gamblers seem to have. He is hard throughout. This, however, is not to be laid to Mr. Sherry. He has played the role as consistently as the script would let him.

"PARDON MY FRENCH."

MR. KENDALL has titled his film starring Vivian Martin "Pardon My French." We find ourselves pardoning the manners of some of the characters. By this I don't mean the intentional crudeness of the newly rich family from Cyclone Centre, Kansas, but the unintentional rudeness of some of the supposedly well-bred guests of Tar Harbor. For instance in a ballroom scene one of the men is seen strolling about with his hat on. It's a small point, but it brings up the question of social mentors for the studios.

In seeing the social films that so many producers feel draw the crowds, one notices more and more such incidents as the one I just mentioned. In a recent picture I saw the heroine, supposedly a lovely, cultured girl, make it a point of preceding her mother wherever they went. Such small things may not affect the action of a story, but they frequently make an impression that mars the entire make-up of the production.

"Pardon My French" is the story of an actor and an actress who cannot get engagements. As a tideover they consent to become butler and French maid in the home of newly rich people from Kansas who are out to "change the four hundred into four hundred and three." There are a bogus marquis and his accomplice, the Countess of Carstairs, and a jewel robbery. The maid is arrested, while it develops that the marquis is "London Joe" and the countess is "Frisco Lizzie."

Vivian Martin fares rather better than she did in "Mother Eternal," for she is given a role more suited to her age and appearance. Though she is a superficial player, still she has charm and plays with delicacy.

The titles of the film have been written by Irvin Cobb and are, therefore, highly colored and entertaining. The direction is good though at times the lighting does not come up to expectations.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent resuls.—Advertisement.

REED, IN IMPASSIONED ADDRESS, ATTACKS THE MOTIVES OF STATE

DECLARES INFERENCE IS USED INSTEAD OF EVIDENCE

to confine his argument to other things.

The right given the defence to question Detective LeClair regarding his employment by the Morgan Detective Agency in 1918 was extremely important.

Through this privilege Senator Reed will be able to open up a line of questions designed to show that LeClair was also in the employ of Godfrey L. Cabot, one of the officials of the Watch and Ward Society.

The second ruling was a severe blow to Attorney-General J. Weston Allen, as it denied him the right to appoint a second commission to procure the deposition of Mrs. Roehl.

This barred the Smith divorce case, as the deposition of Mrs. Roehl was considered absolutely necessary by the Attorney-General to prove his charge that Pelletier and Daniel H. Coakley conspired to force Albert T. Smith to pay his wife $37,500 alimony.

Attorney-General Allen announced definitely that he would drop some six or seven minor cases, as a result of the court's ruling. He said he would complete the Charles E. Corkran case, now under way, and would then take up the second bill of information dealing with Pelletier's alleged campaign utterances when a candidate for Mayor.

Allen also stated that he may take up the case of William Cobb, former head of the Collateral Loan Company, who was indicted for larceny on eighteen counts, but was not prosecuted by Pelletier.

Senator Reed announced that District Attorney Pelletier would take the witness stand and personally refute the charges preferred against him by Allen.

Senator Reed stated that he could not forecast when Pelletier would be introduced as a witness as that would depend on developments. District Attorney Pelletier's friends have known for some time that he was eager to take the witness stand and deny the multiple allegations of official misconduct lodged against him. Pelletier was not in court yesterday owing to a slight cold contracted on Monday.

The defence will open tomorrow. Ten days or two weeks will be consumed in the introduction of evidence in Pelletier's behalf. Attorney-General Allen announced before adjournment yesterday that the Commonwealth would rest late today.

The case of Corkran, alleged to have embezzled $35,000 by check-kiting from the American Woods Corporation of Malone, N. Y., while acting as Boston manager, was continued today. Pelletier is accused of having nol prossed Corkran's case from improper motives.

SCORES TWICE.

Senator Reed scored twice in rulings made by Chief Justice Rugg when court convened.

The court granted him the privilege of interrogating Detective Andrew LeClair concerning his employment by the Morgan Detective Agency in 1918.

The court also granted a ruling in which Attorney-General Allen was denied the right to appoint a second commission to procure the deposition of Mrs. Agnes Roehl of St. Louis, mentioned in the bill of information as Agnes L. Smith.

Chief Justice Rugg stated that the State must complete its case when it rests and have all its major evidence in.

That ruling barred the deposition.

The court said, however, that Attorney-General Allen might introduce, out of order after the defence had started, consequential evidence the necessity for which might develop.

This decision by the court barred the Smith divorce case, as Allen depended entirely on Mrs. Roehl's deposition to prove his charge that Pelletier and Coakley conspired to force Albert T. Smith, under threat of criminal prosecution, to pay his wife, Agnes L. Smith, now Mrs. Roehl, alimony amounting to $37,500, half of which is alleged to have gone to Coakley.

WOMAN GOES AWAY.

Attorney-General Allen did his utmost to induce Mrs. Roehl to appear as a witness and when the first commission went to St. Louis last week to obtain her deposition they were unable to locate her.

At her home it was learned that she had gone away for an indefinite stay.

It was on the motion of Allen for the right to send a commission to St. Louis again to procure the deposition while the defence was under way that this ruling was made.

The court, in passing on the detective's right to stand on the privilege of not imparting confidential information, made the most important ruling secured by Senator Reed for the defence today.

LeClair, head of the National Detective Agency, testifying yesterday in the Emery-Chase conspiracy case, declined to answer Reed's questions concerning his employment by the Morgan Detective Agency in 1918.

LeClair had testified freely concerning his employment in the Emery case, but flatly declined to give testimony relative to his employment by Morgan in 1918. Senator Reed had asked him if it were not true that he was employed by the Morgan Agency to work for Godfrey L. Cabot. He wished, by this inquiry, to show that the Morgan Agency had been engaged by Cabot to investigate Pelletier and Coakley, and that LeClair did this work.

When asked by the court, after Attorney-General Allen had objected, what he had expected to show by this line of inquiry, Senator Reed stated that he would link it up with various important evidence.

REFUSED TO ANSWER.

It was then that LeClair declared there was a statute passed in 1918, or thereabouts, which imposed a severe penalty upon anyone employed by a detective agency who divulged information obtained while working for such agency. On this ground LeClair refused to answer Senator Reed's question, as a matter of self-protection.

LeClair popped a puzzler when he mentioned that statute. The court had not heard of it, and Attorney-General Allen admitted that he didn't know it, council for the defence could not remember it. The court asked that the statute be produced.

In the race to locate the law, Assistant District Attorney Daniel M. Lyons discovered it several minutes before the prosecution could locate it.

The court then took the matter of the detective's privilege under advisement. In making the ruling today Chief Justice Rugg read the statute, showing that the detective might be required by law to produce pertinent testimony.

The court said this clause destroyed LeClair's privilege and granted Senator Reed the right to inquire about his employment in 1918, with the qualification that he might, for purposes of cross examination, question the witness relative to his work in that year, but not in a general way.

By this ruling the door was opened by Senator Reed to grill LeClair concerning his investigation of Pelletier in 1918.

STONEMAN TESTIFIES.

Senator Reed asked the court if it had come to any conclusion concerning the court records of Robert P. Matches in the Emerson Motors Case. Chief Justice Rugg said the court had given a great deal of consideration to these records from Washington and New York, which were offered last week by Senator Reed, and treating it as a complete record of the District Court of New York.

Attorney David Stoneman, Boston counsel for the American Woods Corporation of Malone, N. Y., was the first witness today in the Corkran case. Corkran was charged with the embezzlement of between $35,000 and $70,000 while acting as Boston manager for the American Woods Corporation of Malone, N. Y.

Pelletier is charged with having failed to prosecute him from improper motives, by stopping the case while it was still in the Municipal Court.

Stoneman was cross-examined by Attorney Louis C. Boyle. He admitted that he and Attorney Daniel H. Coakley, who represented Corkran, had agreed to a written memorandum made by District Attorney Pelletier in their presence.

The entry read: "And I recommend that Corkran be released on nominal bail in order to enable him to clear up certain matters which will make the case a purely civil action. Both counsel agreed to this. (Signed) Joseph C. Pelletier."

Q.—You agreed to that, didn't you? A.—That memorandum was drawn by Pelletier in his office in the presence of Coakley and myself and I asked him to withhold it until I got in touch with my employers.

Q.—Was it finally agreed to by Mr. Boyce? A.—He offered no objections and left it to my judgment.

Q.—And you agreed that such an arrangement was the best way to hope to recover the money? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you have any reservations as to the matter? A.—I can't recall that I had. I thought it was a good idea. At least, I thought that it could not hurt if Corkran were released from jail and tried to locate some of the money.

Q.—Did you ever see Pelletier after that about the case? A.—No.

Q.—You entered suit on behalf of the company in the Corkran matter? A.—Yes, I brought suit for $50,000 against Corkran and trusteed seven or eight or nine banks and brought a bill in equity against Florence Carter, sister of Corkran, to enjoin her from transferring certain bonds which were in her possession. We claimed she had assisted Corkran in the embezzlement of this money. I also brought minor suit against the corporation.

Q.—Was it Corkran's claim in this controversy that there were errors in his account and that money was due him from the company? A.—He made claims against us.

ATTITUDE HOSTILE.

Q.—Was that discussed by you and Coakley in Pelletier's presence at the time you asked for a reduction of bail? A.—I recall that Coakley made the claim that we owed money to Corkran instead of Corkran to us, which of course I denied.

Re-direct examination by Attorney-General Allen:

Q.—Were you at any time advised that unless Corkran was admitted to a minimum bail the case would be nol prossed? A.—Not in so many words. Pelletier's attitude was against the case and was distinctly hostile. I think at one time he said he might nol pros the case, which I asked him not to do.

Q.—Did you call Pelletier's attention to the fact that the civil suit was for the purpose of preserving any remaining assets to prevent their being lost? A.—I did.

Q.—Were the continuances in the lower court made at the request of the defendant? A.—The first two or three were made at the request of the defendant's counsel in connection with proposals of partial restitution.

Q.—Did you tell Pelletier that Corkran had admitted his activities in check kiting? A.—My brother may have told Pelletier, but I do not know. I know that he stated the case very fully.

Q.—At that time Corkran had confessed to this check kiting? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Pelletier say where he got his information which made him hostile? A.—No.

CONSIDERING SETTLEMENT.

Q.—In the second conversation with Pelletier, did you tell him the extent of Corkran's defalcations? A.—I think $35,000 was mentioned as the amount.

Re-cross examination:

Q.—In your first conversation with Pelletier, in which you say Pelletier's attitude was hostile, was that before Coakley entered the case? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the reason for the other continuances in the lower court? A.—Attorney Woodman and I were considering a settlement and once or twice he saw Assistant District Attorney Webber and consulted with him about a judgment. Webber said he would not permit any settlement which would pauperize Corkran's sister for the benefit of Corkran.

Q.—That disposes of the other eight continuances? A.—After Corkran was admitted to bail the other continuances were to allow him to aid us in getting back some of the money.

In response to a question by Senator Reed, Attorney-General Allen announced that he would state whether he was going to take up the William Cobb case, after he had examined a few witnesses from banks. He then called Emerson W. Bosworth, assistant cashier of the Old Colony Trust Company, to the stand. Bosworth had with him the account of Pelletier's deposits in the Old Colony Trust Company from the year 1916 on.

Attorney James J. McCarthy:

PELLETIER DEPOSITS.

Q.—Will you now tell us in detail what deposits were made by Pelletier in cash amounting to $1,000 or more?

Senator Reed: "I object."

Attorney McCarthy: I desire to show that Peleltier in 1916 deposited $28,000 in bills, $21,000 of which has already been testified to. In fact from October 13, 1916, to November 8, 1916, Pelletier deposited $21,000 in bills in the following amounts: $2,000, $5,000, $9,000 and $5,000. I desire to show that in 1917 he deposited $26,550 in bills in amounts of $1,000 or over, and that on January 23, 1917, he deposited $20,000 which I will show from his safe deposit vault. I will show then that on February 8 he deposited $2,500, $3,000 on July 5, Coakley having withdrawn a like amount on July 3.

Chief Justice Rugg: What is the purpose of this evidence? We have admitted previous evidence showing deposits following withdrawals by Coakley.

Attorney McCarthy—I will show that the deposits were made during the time of these matters which we have introduced here, and they have a direct tendency to show relations between Coakley and Pelletier, and they show the character of the respondent. Here is a man with a limited salary of $7,000, then $8,000 and later $9,000, and we will show that these immense amounts of bills were far in excess of his salary.

FOUGHT BY REED.

Senator Reed:

"May I ask the counsel on the other side one question. Does the counsel claim that he has a solitary bit of evidence to show that Coakley or anyone else ever gave Pelletier a single dollar except the fact that Coakley put money in his bank and drew out money, and that Pelletier put in money and drew out money, and except he will claim that some sums came out of Coakley's account and went into Pelletier's at points of time ranging from one day to fourteen or fifteen days?

"Has he any link except that supplied by his own inference which connects Pelletier with Coakley? I think it is time for the court to know what the State claims. They have introduced first evidence in this case on the express understanding that they would later connect it with Pelletier.

Will Tear Evidence to Tatters, Says Reed

"I haven't any doubt that the Attorney-General's account will show that he has deposited more money than he has received in salary; but that does not show that he has accepted bribes.

"The pledge has been made by the State, not once but many times, that they would go further than the bank accounts and produce evidence directly to connect Pelletier.

"Whatever has been said about the evidence in this case, which we will tear to tatters when the time comes, has still been far short of proving that there is a single financial transaction between Coakley and Pelletier."—James A. Reed today at the trial of District Attorney Pelletier.

"After failing to show one particle of connection, they proceed to bring in Pelletier's whole bank account, and simply because he deposited more money than his salary, proceed to find some evidence of suspicion. We will not be trying Pelletier for this case but for all the money he has ever received.

"What kind of monstrous proposition is that? The deposits in a bank may equal forty times over a man's income. I have a very small and insignificant bank account and yet the amount of my deposits will far exceed my salary or income. By that rule anyone in this courtroom, even the high officers of this bench, might be charged with receiving money improperly.

"I haven't any doubt that the Attorney-General's account will show that he has deposited more money than he has received in salary; but that does not show that he has accepted bribes. The pledge has been made by the State, not once but many times, that they would go further than the bank accounts and produce evidence directly to connect Pelletier.

TEAR TO TATTERS.

"Whatever has been said about the evidence in this case, which we will tear to tatters when the time comes, has still been far short of proving that there is a single financial transaction between Coakley and Pelletier. That connection rests on an inference which is in the air, and wild imagination and innuendo, on nothing more than a promise to connect. I maintain the State has not kept its faith with the court."

Attorney-General Allen: I challenge that statement. It reflects on the good faith of the State. I charge you to confine your argument to other things.

Senator Reed: I am entirely polite. I do not mean any offence to counsel on the other side. In one instance the very account they put in, $37,250.59 from Meyer Berman——

Attorney McCarthy: You have got that wrong, at least.

Senator Reed: Well, 32,000 odd dollars, then. It has been shown that Coakley withdrew exactly the same amount on the same day he deposited it, and that the $5,000 which the State claimed went to Pelletier was actually withdrawn by a check payable to Daniel Sugrue. The State did not offer that check at first, but when I demanded it, it showed that the money went to Sugrue.

"I insisted that it was the duty of the State then to put Sugrue on the stand and let him tell what became of that money. The reply was that they had been searching for Sugrue for two weeks and could not find him.

"Within twenty minutes Sugrue came into this very courtroom, coming from a sick bed, and said he had never been away from his house or office. In face of this direct evidence they propose to resort to inference and guesswork. Guesswork should not be introduced into courts of justice, and when it is introduced then the temples of justice will crumple into dust.

"How far this wild guesswork will go is shown by Attorney McCarthy's statement that Pelletier deposited money which he withdrew from his safe deposit vault. All they will show is that Pelletier left his safe deposit vault a short time before he deposited the money. They will not dare——I withdraw that they will not dare—they will not state that there is any other link of connecting evidence.

"I will say now for the benefit of the State that Pelletier did have money in his safe deposit vault, just as Senator Penrose, who lately died, kept money in his safe deposit vault, just as every real man in these days of danger keeps money where he can get it.

"If you were to put such evidence as that on me six months ago, I could not answer it. I might be able by diligent search to tell the source of one or two deposits, but I could not learn the source of all of them. If when I retire from the Senate some one would say that I had deposited more money that I had received in salary they could prove it many times over.

WILL QUIT CASE.

"Malice might conceive, hate might conjure up, that I receive the money illicitly while serving the country. Men's characters in a court of justice are secure against that kind of an innuendo.

"When it is proven by creditable testimony that Pelletier ever in his life got a cent that did not belong to him by every legal right, I will step out of this case.

"If there is a scintilla of evidence that he ever got a dishonest dollar in his life—yes, in his whole life—when that is proven I will step out of the case. They attempt by the introduction of items of his bank account, with innuendo and flights of imagination, to fill gaps which they cannot fill with direct evidence.

"The court has ruled against me on matter of what I consider points of law. I have assumed that I was wrong and that the court was right. This court has held that this trial is not an inquisition, that it is not a board of censors, that it is not an investigation. It has held that this is a trial of a proceeding in law, under rules of law, and that the pleading must be based on specific charges and supported by proper evidence.

"This is not a roving commission to examine into every act of Mr. Pelletier's life. I know and every lawyer knows that the court was right when it made these rulings. This is evidence being produced and reviewed in a court of law. The casting of innuendos cannot be allowed. The charges must be specific.

MUST BE PROTECTED.

"The life and the character and the reputation of the respondent must not only be respected, but protected. On that ground I stand squarely. Such evidence as they attempt to offer concerning Pelletier's general bank account is not admissible in a court of law.

"If such a thing is permitted any man with a bank account might be convicted on a general charge, if he could not explain where he got every dollar. Such a theory is false and dangerous."

Chief Justice Rugg—The court understood, Mr. Reed, that you waived objection. And that now you do object.

Senator Reed—I said I would not object to items directly connected with these cases, specifically set forth, other than the general objection which I have made throughout the trial. But since they have attempted to offer the general bank account of Pelletier I do most strenuously object.

Attorney-General Allen:

"Mr. McCarthy is prepared to show the admissibility of this evidence and is prepared to cite authorities in support of our contention. I notice that the respondents have not cited any cases in support of their contention. We do not contend that the bank account is admissible because it is larger than his salary, but because of the relation between Pelletier items of deposit and Coakley withdrawals.

"We have shown in four specific instances that significant deposits by Pelletier immediately following withdrawals by Coakley. We offer this evidence to show that the respondent's bank account was irregular as to certain deposits and not in accordance with the ordinary course of business.

SOMETHING DEFINITE.

"We will show that the respondent deposited large sums in bills in amounts contrary to the ordinary course. We will show money received by Coakley and succeeding deposits by Pelletier which bear a definite relation. We will show that the respondent received fractions of these sums paid to Coakley of one-quarter, one-third and one-half.

Reed's Dramatic Offer to Quit the Case

"Malice might conceive, hate might conjure up, that I receive the money illicitly while serving the country. Men's characters in a court of justice are secure against that kind of an innuendo.

"When it is proven by creditable testimony that Pelletier ever not belong to him by every not belong to him by every legal right, I will step out of this case."—From Senator James A. Reed's address to Supreme Court today at trial of District Attorney Pelletier.

"We will show that it does not require any flight of imagination to connect these transactions, but that a person can stand with his two feet upon the ground and see money received by one conspirator and a fraction thereof passing into the hands of his co-conspirator.

"We do not expect the co-conspirators to produce witnesses to show when the money passed. We will show something definite in this respect."

Senator Reed—Something definite—in the imagination of counsel.

Attorney-General Allen—This evidence will be based upon the allegations and need not be connected by witnesses who may have seen the money pass from the hands of Coakley to Pelletier.

Attorney McCarthy—"Mr. Reed has made a statement absolutely without foundation. In the Berman case we showed that money was obtained by the Bermans on November 6, that Coakley deposited a similar sum on November 7, and that a certain sum was deposited by Pelletier on November 8.

CHALLENGES REED.

"I promise to connect Pelletier with the Coakley withdrawal. The court ruled that the evidence was competent. That meant that an inference might be properly drawn as to the connection between the Coakley withdrawal and the Pelletier deposit. I challenge Mr. Reed and say that he did not honestly state the facts as presented in the Emerson case.

"Senator Reed made much of the fact that nothing appeared between October 11 and October 25, when Coakley deposited a sum of money, and Pelletier deposited $5,000. We did not discover until later that the deposit by Pelletier was not made until October 25, but that he did make a visit to his safe deposit box on the 13th, at 1:30.

"We also know that Coakley's factotum, Sugrue, whom Mr. Reed may not know, but whom we know well, got that $5,000 by cashing a check over the counter at the Beacon Trust Company, taking the money in bills, and that Pelletier deposited $5,000 in bills.

"We will show that when Pelletier wrote his ingenuous letter to Simpson concerning the Emerson Motors investigation, that he had in his safe deposit box at that very time, $5,000, secured by Sugrue.

"These significant things were forgotten by Mr. Reed in his argument. We will show that these transactions are abnormal, and out of the course of ordinary business transactions.

"It is possible that such a state of doubt may exist West of the Mississippi, in the State which Mr. Reed so ably represents, and require such proof. But we do not need it here in the face of such evidence.

GENERAL CONSPIRACY.

"It is necessary for the State to consider the everyday life of Pelletier and Coakley, in order to show a general conspiracy. Such a conspiracy has run all through this case, as shown by the relationship between the two men, but we have not alleged a general conspiracy."

Attorney McCarthy then read citations in support of his contention that general items of Pelletier's bank account over a period of three years was pertinent.

He also read citations handed down by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts in support of his contention, among them the Mulrey-Finneran teaming fraud cases in Boston, in which the court authorized an investigation of Mulrey's bank account, showing unusual deposits, etc.

Attorney McCarthy—"We will not attempt to show Pelletier's intricate bank deposit, but we shall show that Pelletier deposited between $50,000 and $60,000 in amounts ranging from $1,000, $2,000, $5,000, up to $10,000 and $20,000 chiefly in bills.

"It may be that an honest man made such deposits, or that an honest man keeps a safe deposit box, but we will show that bills were deposited, and bills used by dishonest hands.

"We wish to offer this evidence, bearing on the relations between Coakley and Pelletier, because it may chance to show conditions of some other offences or crimes.

REED'S REPLY.

Senator Reed—"The place of my birth and residence has been called in question by counsel for the State. It is true that I come from West of the Mississippi River as he has stated, but I have always assumed that wherever the American flag flies is the home of an American citizen.

"I do not make any apology for the place of my birth. My only comment and I will not characterize the counsel's remarks, is that if he will come to our State West of the Mississippi that we will assure him that he will be received with all courtesy and that we will not stare at him for the place from which he came, nor question his right to appear in a court of justice.

"As the counsel read the citations in support of his argument, I could clearly see, without having had time to read his authority, the line of demarkation between these cases and his, which is as plain as the broad road. In all of the cases read by him, the crime was first established before the subsidiary evidence of bank account or property was allowed."

Senator Reed then rehearsed evidence offered by the State in this matter, which he said had not been properly connected, and further accused the prosecution of attempting to bolster its case with imagination and innuendo.

After recess Chief Justice Rugg requested Attorney McCarthy to file with the court a list of the items which Attorney McCarthy wished to introduce in evidence.

DROPS COBB CHARGE.

Attorney McCarthy said he wished to call attention to about ten deposits of cash by Pelletier and a few deposits by Coakley, together with a few Coakley withdrawals.

It was announced that the court would take the matter of the bank accounts under advisement, and hand down a ruling tomorrow on whether or not they were admissible.

Attorney-General Allen announced that he had a doctor's certificate showing Louise F. Cobb was unable to leave her home, and, inasmuch as she was a material witness in the William Cobb case, Allen said he would not prosecute that case.

Further evidence was then offered by the State in the Emery case. Pelletier is charged in this case with having conspired with Daniel H. Coakley and William J. Corcoran, then District Attorney for the northern district, and other persons, to extort money from Curtis W. Emery, his wife, Elizabeth Emery, and her mother, Jennie S. Chase.

Victor D. Papineau, divorced husband of Mrs. Emery, whose employment of Daniel H. Coakley to press criminal and civil charges against Mr. and Mrs. Emery has been testified to before, was recalled to the stand.

He testified in regard to a report of the detective who was employed by Emery to shadow him and learn what he was going to do. This report related that Papineau had been intimate with several women.

Papineau today denied everything in the report with a single exception, and declared that the report in substance was absolutely false.

UP ALL NIGHT.

The one exception was the story of a visit made by himself and Detective Snow to the home of Mrs. Thayer. He declared, however, that he left her home about 11:15 that evening. He denied that he stayed there all night as was alleged in the report.

Under cross-examination he admitted that the night he called on Mrs. Thayer was the night he stayed up all night.

Attorney Dodge said he was ready to recall Andrew LeClair, the detective employed by Emery and who in turn employed Snow.

Attorney Dodge—I understand that part of LeClair's testimony, which Senator Reed requests, involves a

THIN, FADED HAIR NEEDS "DANDERINE" TO THICKEN IT

35 cents buys a bottle of "Danderine." Within ten minutes after the first application you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping your hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant.

Girls! Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin, scraggy. A single application of delightful Danderine will double the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant.

Uric Acid Solvent

If Stomach is Out of Order —"Diapepsin"

Every year regularly more than a million stomach sufferers in the United States, England and Canada take Pape's Diapepsin, and realize not only immediate, but lasting relief. This harmless antacid helps digest anything you eat and overcomes a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach in five minutes. If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion. Get from your druggist a sixty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no gas or heartburn, no fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, no nausea, headache or intestinal griping. Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this food fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or indigestion.—Advertisement.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Advertisement.

WHICH comic series in the Boston American do you like BEST?

Which comic series in the Boston American do you like LEAST?

The Boston American will give fifty original drawings to its readers who write the best letters on the above subject.

Each of the fifty winners may designate his favorite series and an original drawing by that artist who created this series will be given each winner.

Everybody is eligible.

The letter must be divided into two parts—the first part devoted to the writer's opinion of the comic series which the participant regards as best and the second part to the comic series which the voter regards as least meritorious.

A voting blank is printed herewith.

Use that with your letter. The test will end on February 1. Men, women and children are eligible. Only one vote and letter permitted to each participant.

All letters should be addressed to the Comic Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Letters may be either written in pen and ink or typewritten on one side of paper.

Pimples and boils

—caused by errors of diet

A well-known skin specialist says that pimples are "signal flags of danger" often indicating errors in diet.

Indeed pimples are so frequently associated with faulty habits of eating and improper digestion that the first thing to do is to see that our food is right.

Fresh yeast is a wonderful corrective food for these skin disorders. Fleischmann's Yeast is rich in the elements which improve appetite and digestion and which keep the intestines clean of poisons.

Physicians and hospitals all over the country are recommending Fleischmann's fresh yeast for pimples and boils. It gets right at the basic cause of these complaints.

Eat 2 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's fresh yeast daily before or between meals to keep your skin healthy. Be sure it's Fleischmann's Yeast—the familiar tin-foil package with the yellow label. Place a standing order with your grocer.

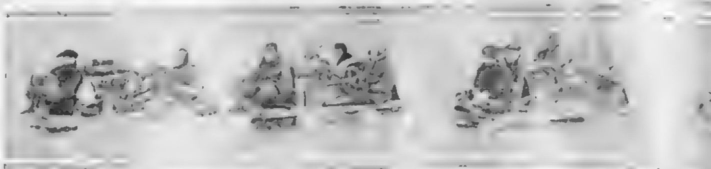
GRIEF STRICKEN BOY SHOOTS HIMSELF WHEN HIS PET DOG DIES

STILL DIVING INTO THE LIMELIGHT! Little Helen Wainwright, not yet 16, has added further laurels to her crown by winning the diving championship of New York city. She is now ready to defend her title against all-comers. The camera man caught her training (International)

BEAUTY IS AS BEAUTY DOES! And from the flock of pictures received there is every assurance that most beauties drive an automobile. At least, here is Mrs. Lewis E. Brown, 34 Florida St., Dorchester, today's winner in the test. A check for $5 will be mailed her



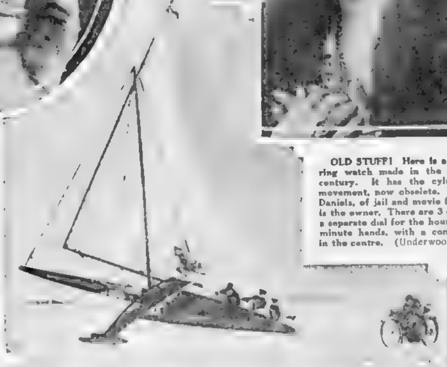
WATCHA DOIN' WITH YOUR MOTOR BIKE THIS WINTER? Here's an ideal way for keeping it from getting rusty and having barrels of fun. Build a sled around it, like those above, and have one of the fastest motor sleds on the ice. Chains or a wooden tire with teeth provide the propelling power. Attach them to the rear wheel.

OLD STUFF! Here is a tiny ring watch made in the 17th century. It has the cylinder movement, now obsolete. Bebe Daniels, of jail and movie fame, is the owner. There are 3 dials, a separate dial for the hour and minute hands, with a compass in the centre. (Underwood.)

SOME SWEETIE! Hasoutra, named by the Queen of Burma, who was delighted with her dancing. She is a real chocolate girl, for at least once a day she covers her body with chocolate as one of the Java dancers in a N. Y. show.

SHE VAMPED FAST! In fact she vamped so fast she vamped herself right into jail. Pretty Helen McGinnis of Chicago is the first "lure" to be convicted in the U. S. It is alleged she flirted with a married motorist, rode with him, and then lured him to a spot where her confederate struck him down and robbed him. Helen faces 10 years in jail.

A SPRING SUGGESTION FOR YOUR NEW HAT! Large petals of straw braid form the crown of this charming hat, set off by the taffeta facing and the long, straight feathers drooping far below the shoulder.



YOU CAN GET A THRILL by Merely Looking at This! More excitement was created by this race between a motorcycle and an ice-boat than any other Winter sport on Lake Ontario. The cycle led for a long distance, but when the boat picked up speed she passed her rival. The photo was snapped just as the craft started to forge ahead of the motorcycle. See the dangerous tilt of the little boat. Some thrill, eh? (Gilliams.)

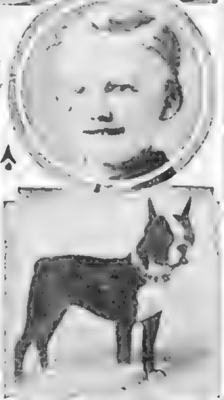
WE'LL BET This Young Lady's Husband Doesn't Stay Out Late Nights! "Mrs. Hercules," as she is called, is astounding Berlin with her feats. Here she is supporting three heavy men on her chest and knees. Even a man has never before performed a stunt exactly like this.

DEAR LADY, Are They Goin' to Rob 'Em Next Year? Meet Mme. de Teleme, Paris astrologer, who tells you what is going to happen whether you want to know it or not. Her "dope" is cabled to all parts of the world. Many folks believe her predictions. We don't know what part the gent plays in her "doping." (Wide World.)

SENOR FELIX PAIVA, former Vice-President of Paraguay, was, at the time we went to press, the new President of the turbulent little republic. He succeeded Senor Condre, who resigned to prevent a revolution.

GIVE US A LIGHT, MISTER? This curious device, lighted by D. E. Brown, a chemist in the Bureau of Plant Culture of the Department of Agriculture, imitates and reproduces the effect of a carefully made cigar on the lungs, smoked under varying conditions. In this manner poisons are eliminated by proper culturing. (Underwood.)

GEN. GREGORIE SEMENOFF, once head of all Russian Cossacks, has been granted permission by State Department to visit U. S. for 6 months. It is rumored he is coming to finance loan for anti-Bolshevik purposes. (Underwood.)



TILL DEATH DO US PART! "Peggy," bull terrier pet of little Russel Mueller of Chicago, went to Dog Heaven, and the boy was heart broken. While his parents were sleeping, he shot himself. His aim was bad and the bullet entered his hip. He will live. (International.)

A PAIR O' DASHING CUTIES! Indoor girl messengers of the Western Union at Cincinnati have set an enviable record for message dispatching—all because they are equipped with roller skates. From the time the written message is filed with the desk clerk to the finish of the actual transmission just 1 minute 30 seconds elapse. (International.)

MRS. ELIZABETH STEPHENS, Ohio's oldest woman, who insists upon still doing her own housework. She reads her Bible without the aid of glasses, and expects to live many years longer. She is 97 years old. (International.)

DOGGIN' ALONG AT A FAST CLIP! Although one doesn't see many of these single dog sled races down Greater Boston way, up North they are providing the sport lovers with unlimited fun. It is the most popular of all sports at Quebec, where this photograph was taken. On a good track the dogs can travel with considerable speed and they become so excited and take such an altogether human interest in the race that it is often difficult for the drivers to handle them. Spills are quite frequent as a result. However, it's a part of the fun.

MASSACHUSETTS SCHOOL MEET ON MARCH 4 LOOMS UP BIG

By FRED C. LANE

The Massachusetts Athletic Association track meet, which takes place at the East Armory March 4, promises to be the biggest event in which the schoolboys of New England have ever taken part. At a meeting of representatives of the leading prep schools of New England, held at Commerce High School, the plans offered the coaches of these schools by the committee met with the approval of all.

[illegible] possibility that not all [illegible] presented will be able to [illegible] year, but judging from the manner in which the program was approved 1924 will see Boston the Mecca for schoolboy track sports.

* * *

The New England Prep School meet is the name adopted by the coaches who assembled. Representatives from Exeter, Andover, Huntington, Roxbury, Latin, Moses Brown, St. James, St. John's, Powder Point, Scheffield School, Country Day made plans for 1921.

* * *

It was decided that these schools would compete in the following events: 40, 300, 600 and 1000 yards runs, hurdles, shot put, high jump and relay. The number of entries for each event has [illegible] with entries [illegible] taking place on February 18.

Of these schools [illegible] there is a possibility [illegible] able to [illegible] this year, [illegible] dates making it impossible [illegible]

[illegible] have voted [illegible] the withdrawal of the [illegible] Boston schools from the meet will have any effect on the interest. As matters now stand it will be only a matter of time before those in charge of affairs must seek a larger hall to accommodate the crowd that [illegible]

Dorchester High School.

Dear Sir—As a former competitor in Boston high school athletics, I wish to protest an attempt to keep Boston boys out of State meets. I believe the State meet is the best means of helping track athletics in Boston. As it is now, the indoor regimental meet is the only real chance a Boston boy gets, as the outdoor meet always has been a farce. If we had the State meet to count on Dorchester High would have more interest and we could get more than 10 Juniors, 25 Intermediates and 50 Seniors out of a school of 1,500 boys.

Very truly yours,

H. N. M.

NEW YORK Commission rules that Johnny Wilson must fight Harry Greb to get suspension lifted. Looks like life suspension for Johnny. Battling Greb is just about as agreeable to him as gargling arsenic. Johnny made original contract, never intending to keep it. Still has same intentions.

Wilson still has middleweight title. Probably will have it twenty years from now. Just as useful to him as a tennis racquet to a stone mason.

All the commissions must now get together and call somebody else a champion. Fans will call him something else, but that's neither here nor in New York. Commissions can then wait another month before suspending new champ. Brooklyn Bridge used to have the suspension record, but Wilson is going to get that title now.

Syracuse had a freshman crew last year which won from the Navy plebes hands down—four lengths of open water separating the shells.

SPORT EDITORIAL

By GILL

FRAZEE'S FRENZIED FINANCE.

Mr. H. H. Frazee has announced in a New York interview that "those people up in Boston have just got to stop kicking me around."

It has been pretty soft kicking for Handsome Harry.

The Red Sox team is a regular gold mine for Mr. Frazee—and he has proved himself the greatest little gold digger in the history of the diamond game.

The few bush league fans who favor the soft pedal treatment for the Captain Kidd of baseball might do well to study the following figures and dope it out for themselves just why the Athletics are sizing Boston up as their real rivals next season.

The Red Sox were taken over by Mr. Frazee in 1916 for $1,000,000, which included both the team and Fenway Park.

In various trades to date Mr. Frazee has cleaned up some $467,500, while in his six years at the helm he has not spent more than $100,000 for players obtained from minor leagues, either by trades or draft.

Mr. Frazee puts himself down for $15,000 a year as salary—a nice little nest egg of $90,000.

Taking it all together—annual profits and trades—the New York owner of the Red Sox has cleaned up in the neighborhood of a million dollars.

And that is not all—Mr. Frazee now has Joe Dugan—another nice little nugget—all salted away in the safe—and a Boston star until the Yankees get ready to cash in for him.

And Mr. Frazee adds—"the club is for sale when I get my price."

CHAMPION WILSON MUST FULFILL CONTRACT

New York, Jan. 18.—Middleweight Champion Johnny Wilson, who was suspended for failure to fulfill his contract to box Harry Greb at Madison Square Garden, had a hearing before the boxing commission. After listening to both sides of the case the board continued the suspension until such time as Wilson fulfills his contract with Promoter Tex Rickard.

Marty Killilea, manager of Wilson, and Rickard appeared before the commission and submitted their arguments. The meeting lasted two hours, at the close of which the only thing given out for publication was the verdict, which reads as follows:

"Wilson and Killilea are suspended until they fulfill the original contract with Madison Square Garden to box Harry Greb on a date to be mutually agreed upon."

Rickard and Killilea informally discussed other matches in which Wilson would meet Mike Gibbons and Mike McTigue, but these matters were not placed before the commission.

It may be that if Wilson agrees to meet some other opponent at the Garden his suspension will be lifted, provided he agrees to meet Greb at a later date.

B. U. PISTOL TEAM MAKES MATCHES

Will Meet Dartmouth, Georgetown and Several New England Colleges

A pistol team has been formed at Boston University which will compete with a number of New England institutions this Spring. Elliott C. Faull of Waltham has been elected captain. William H. Perry will act as manager.

Meets have been arranged with Dartmouth and Georgetown and tentative matches have been arranged with a number of New England institutions. Since the university has no indoor range, however, the team must wait until Spring for its home matches.

The rifle team, which has won out in the first three encounters with Vermont, Gettysburg, and DePauw Universities will enter the United States of New England matches which begin this week and continue until April 8. The [illegible] be [illegible] this week [illegible] for college teams only.

The teams will shoot once a week and in April the New England championship will be awarded. The rifle team gave a good account of itself last year, having won five matches out of six on the outdoor range.

The Boston University team will shoot with M. I. T. on February 4, at the Bay State Rifle Range.

The schedule for the team has been arranged as follows:

[illegible] Norwich, Feb. 25, Ohio State, Feb. 25, Dartmouth, March 4, University of Maine

A number of other dates are pending.

PRO SKATERS TO MEET IN FOUR RACES FOR TITLE

Saranac Lake, Jan. 18.—Bobby McLean and [illegible] of New York; Edmund Lamy, of Saranac Lake, and Eddie Day, of Canada, will compete in a meet of professional skaters here Friday.

The meet will be the first of a series of four leading to the American professional skating championship.

Arthur Staff, the present titleholder, now at Lake Placid, will defend his rink, and the winner of the meets later will compete with Oscar Mathiesen, of Norway, the world's champion, in a match which will probably be [illegible] Saranac Lake.

Winchester vs. Pere Marquette

Pain's enemy

FANS DECLARE THEY ARE DONE WITH RED SOX IF FRAZEE STAYS

It becomes plainer, and more evident, every day that if Frazee sticks with the Red Sox, to continue his wrecking campaign of selling Dugan to New York, or Cleveland, or Chicago, and to dispose of any player that may develop into a star or a near star, that the Red Sox will play to empty benches. Fenway Park will be like Oliver Goldsmith's famous poem, "A Deserted Village." It doesn't take the seventh son of a seventh son nor a Daniel to read the handwriting on the wall.

That the baseball fans not only of Boston, the Metropolitan district and the whole State, but also all New England are bitter, is saying it mildly. They will not patronize the Red Sox while Frazee is owner.

More letters on the subject follow.

Sporting Editor:

Dear Sir—I am very interested in baseball. Frazee thought he made very good trades for his players but he is very much mistaken. Some of them were good and others were fair. When he traded Scott and McInnis both good men on the team he should have resigned from organized baseball altogether. I think you will see many Boston fans at Braves Field this season. To my [illegible] I think Frazee has completely ruined the Red Sox. Sincerely,

Sporting Editor:

Dear Sir—I have been reading the letters in the Boston American and in my opinion Frazee ought to be sent out of Boston and then some men buy the team and build up a team worthy of the name Red Sox. I think he did fairly well in the deal with Cleveland because Harris, Burns and Scott are all good hitters and also good fielders. But the deals with the Yankees and Senators were rotten although Dugan is, and will be, a fine ball player when he has a little more experience. I am looking forward to see the Red Sox win the championship. How Can Red Sox Be Saved for Boston?

Boston fans have their own ideas about the Red Sox. Some think Owner Frazee has completely wrecked the team. Others believe there is still hope of rebuilding a ball club from the ruins.

The American League situation is a big thing in sports here just now. A consensus of Fan opinion would do more to iron out the troubles than anything else. Harsh, but restricted, criticism hasn't helped much. A real show-down of sentiment might.

Write your ideas on the matter in to the sporting editor. If you think the recent trades helped, say so; if you think otherwise, say so. Address letters to Sporting Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street. All letters will be published.

LONDOS DEFEATS GARDINI IN LONG MAT BOUT

Jimmy Londos and Renato Gardini wrestled for more than two hours (nine minutes and ten seconds, more.) at Mechanics Building, when finally Londos pinned Gardini's shoulders to the mat with a head scissors, toe hold and arm lock.

It was one of the most exciting mat contests ever held in this city. There was a very large crowd present and the spectators enjoyed a real wrestling treat.

The conditions called for one fall to decide if the bout lasted more than two hours and when Londos secured the first fall he also made himself the winner.

There were thrilling situations, and once Gardini had a toe hold on the Greek champion for more than seven minutes.

There was only one other bout, but that was enough, for John Kilonis and Charley Metro had a gruelling battle. Kilonis emerged a winner after a tempestuous struggle of 36m. 44s.

Captain Joseph Killoury was referee.

The N. Y. A. C. won the team championship with 47 points. Princeton was second with 15; unattached athletes accounted for 10, and Columbia took fourth place with 8.

FRIEDMAN AND MARTIN IN TITLE BATTLE AT PROVIDENCE

By Jack Conway

Abe Friedman, proud boss of our New England bantamweights, will defend his title when he battles Terry Martin in a ten-round bout at Providence tonight. As Friedman and Martin have both been travelling at a torrid clip, the fans are sure to witness a tussle crowded with all kinds of thrills.

Friedman recently upset Johnny Curtin at Fall River. Martin disposed of the same busy punch dispenser at Providence recently. All of which adds to the interest in tonight's conflict.

The rival bantamweights have already engaged in several torrid battles. They know each other's good and bad points and as a result will not waste any time in getting down to business when the bell sounds at the opening of the first round.

Eddie Mack, manager of Friedman, plans to invade New York with his protege if Abe finishes in front tonight. Now that Leo Flynn has ceased to rule at Madison Square Garden it will be possible for boxers not managed by [illegible] directly or indirectly, to show in New York.

* * *

A large number of entries have been received for the open amateur boxing tournament which will be staged at the B. A. A. clubhouse this evening. There will be contests at 112, 118, 126, 135 and 158 pounds. Tom Kanaly says that the class of our simon-pure glove men will be on hand to furnish the excitement.

* * *

The St. Joseph's T. A. Society will be on the [illegible] with an amateur boxing show at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin Square Friday night. The best of the amateur glove wielders as usual will [illegible] their wares. Reservations may be secured at Room [illegible] No. 18 School street.

* * *

The Chelsea A. A. will stage an amateur show Saturday night. There will be bouts at 108, 118 and 145 (muscle) pounds. Entries close Friday with Fred O'Brien, No. 75 Beacon street, Chelsea.

* * *

The Boxing Commission must realize by this time that a radical change in the system of judging boxing contests in this State is necessary. Conditions have got to a point where no champion will consent to risk his title here. Unless a change is made in the method of awarding decisions, it will soon be impossible to even get any of the near champions to show here.

* * *

Champions will fight for a referee's decision. They are willing to risk their titles if they know that a man versed in the fine points of the boxing game is to give the decision. You cannot blame titleholders, however, for refusing to box when the verdict can be controlled by two inexperienced judges.

* * *

The majority of the licensed judges in Massachusetts are inefficient. Most of them are honest, likeable gentlemen, but this alone does not qualify them to pass judgment on the ability of two boxers.

* * *

[illegible]

* * *

There are other gentlemen in much the same position as Fitzpatrick. This does not mean, however, that they are qualified to judge an important bout.

We are old-fashioned enough to believe in the referee system. Place entire authority in the hands of one man. If he has ability and is honest, he will make few mistakes. If he is dishonest, he will not be able to conceal this fact from the public for very long. He will then be run out of the boxing game.

* * *

[illegible] at the ringside when [illegible] and Fitzpatrick [illegible] the [illegible] proof of the inefficiency of his own officials other than what he saw with his own eyes. [illegible] is the working power of the Boxing Commission. We feel he has the best interests of the boxing game at heart and that he will act to remedy present conditions.

The Boxing Menu

Tonight — Providence — Abe Friedman, New England bantamweight champion, vs. Terry Martin, twelve rounds. Friedman will win.

Amateur bouts at B. A. A.

New York — Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia inter-city bouts.

Pittsfield — Woonsocket Joe Gibbs vs. Lefty Major, ten rounds. A cinch if you know how.

Friday—St. Joseph's A. A., amateur boxing tournament at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square.

MIDDLESEX SCHOOL FOUR WILL ROW WITH HARVARD

Middlesex School will be represented as [illegible] this Spring with several crews. There will be a varsity four-oared crew and a second four and probably a shell eight.

Two races with the Harvard [illegible] freshmen four have been arranged. The first will be rowed over the Charles River on May [illegible] and the other race will be staged over the [illegible] half-mile course on Bateman's Pond, North Concord, May 17.

WORCESTER LOSES ITS MUNICIPAL GOLF LINKS

Worcester, Jan. 17.—A mass meeting in the interests of municipal golf was informed that the owner of the present course would not renew his lease to the city. He asked the city to [illegible] and for $[illegible].

The meeting favored a refusal of the proposition and urged the Park Board to build a nine-hole course at [illegible] Park.

Says a Pullman Car Window Is Harder to Open Than a Bank Account

For years the Pullman company has been misleading the public by calling their trains sleeping cars.

In the first place, they charge so much for riding in them that you couldn't go to sleep anyway.

You stay awake all night trying to figure how much it's going to cost you to go to sleep.

Then after you decide to go to sleep you lie there the rest of the night watching your clock to see how long it's going to take you.

A[illegible] is a man who gets into his [illegible] the porter to wake [illegible] in the morning.

The berths are so small and you're so cramped that your foot is the only part of you which goes to sleep.

When a man has to get up in the [illegible] to work his brain [illegible] needs the rest [illegible] all night [illegible] feet to [illegible] if you're a professional [illegible].

Every berth has two windows in it, but they're harder to open than a bank account.

[illegible] slept with his arm out of [illegible] all night and the next [illegible] when he woke up he found three [illegible] bags and a trunk on it.

The only reason he got to sleep was because he heard the couple in the next berth fighting and he thought he was at home.

Each berth has two little lights which shine about as brightly as a piece of licorice in a coal [illegible].

Most of the time you've got to strike a match to see if the lights are on.

The berths are heated by hot air and the hot air is supplied by the [illegible] office.

A pair of long trousers cover a multitude of shins, but that's more than a Pullman blanket will do.

They're made out of very [illegible] material, but they're good [illegible] blankets. In Summer you don't [illegible] over you and in Winter you can't stand them over you.

Nobody really knows who manufactures them, but they're probably made by Toss & Turn of Chicago.

There's only one way to [illegible] Pullman berth. Buy a [illegible] and sleep in a hotel [illegible].

"BACK PAY"

The Story of a Girl's Soul Redeemed Through Love

A Serial of a Country Girl Who Seeks Happiness in the Maelstrom of the Metropolis

Read This Story in the Boston American Day by Day, Then Watch for It in Motion Pictures in the Leading Theatres

Selna Owen and Matt Moore in "Back Pay." The lure of the city had taken possession of her and love was the master of her suitor. A scene from "Back Pay," a Cosmopolitan production.

SYNOPSIS

"BACK PAY" is the story of Hester Bevins, a country girl with a "crepe de chine" soul, and Jerry Newcombe, who loved Hester with a love that surmounted every obstacle.

Hester lives in a small town where the people with whom she is compelled to associate at Mrs. Simmons' boarding house annoy her with their stupid ideas. Her one friend in town is Jerry Newcombe, who drives the delivery wagon for Finlay's general merchandise store. Jerry has fallen very much in love with Hester, but the narrow, dull life of the country town is so boring that she cannot bring herself to promise to marry him and settle down for life and become like her table companions at the boarding house.

Hester's nerves are tried to the breaking point, and she finally decides that she must give up the deadening life which she has endured for eight years and try to get along in New York city. She parts with Jerry and leaves the town.

("Back Pay" has been created into an unusual photoplay by Cosmopolitan Productions; direction of Frank Borzage; scenario by Frances Marion; it will be released as a Paramount picture.)

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

THE man saw the smoke as the [illegible] toward [illegible]. It [illegible] nothing to him. "Yes," he said, wondering a little; "she's on time."

Hester pulled at his arm. "Can't you see [illegible]? It's going to New York, and I'm going on it—oh how I wish I were on the way now."

"That's not very complimentary," he half groaned.

"I didn't mean it that way, Jerry, dear. You know [illegible] it would [illegible] like a [illegible] to the [illegible] of [illegible]."

Jerry Newcombe walked to the carriage [illegible] the [illegible] him the rain [illegible] pot of gold lay right [illegible] [illegible] dred and fifty dollars a month seemed to him a splendid start [illegible] laid out for himself and Hester.

To [illegible] the crepe de chine [illegible] at all not [illegible] had been accustomed [illegible] because she had [illegible] them so [illegible] that they seemed essential in her scheme of things.

For one hundred and fifty dollars a month Jerry had seen love prosper and grow glorified; on one hundred and fifty dollars a month Hester saw in these same instances nothing but drudgery, sameness, commonplaces. Their views of life were as different as views could be. Hers was expressed in her desire for the city and his in his desire for the country.

If Hester had any regrets for her refusal of the man who had loved her for so long she did not show them on the drive back to Mrs. Simmons' boarding house. Jerry stopped the horse to let him drink at the [illegible] fountain on the public square. Hester was dreaming of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street.

It was only when he was turning toward the boarding house that he made one last effort. "You have made up your mind, Hester?"

"I'm going next week, Jerry."

He helped her down and held her hand. On the veranda the Misses Clipp strained curious eyes to see and curious ears to hear.

There was silence just as there is silence when some one telephones but the gossips heard nothing but prosaic good nights.

Jerry walked back to the roundabout and drove away. Hester went to her room. She felt elated as though she had attained a great height. She had announced her departure, she was going finally. [illegible] in a week she would be in New York, where ambition counted for something, where a girl could earn plenty of money and dress as she ought to dress. No more ginghams for her—crepe de chine, soft things, luxuries—things she would earn these, revel in them, enjoy them.

Thinking It Over

For Jerry she had a fleeting thought of regret. Any girl could not fail to be touched by devotion that is willing to wait and wait and be [illegible].

For a long time she sat at her window looking through the night. In the stars she saw lighted signs to New York; the night noises, [illegible] little sounds that [illegible] so well with quiet thoughts, awoke in her only echoes of thousands of hurrying feet pushing on and on.

Across the street was a small house. She knew the man and the wife. A baby had arrived recently and the mother was rocking it to sleep on the porch.

And the father—he got $150 a month. Hester shuddered. To do housework, to care for children—was that happiness?

Oh, no, no—to live in a grand home with servants and nothing to do, with wonderful clothes—a car, money to throw away, that was happiness. She began to undress, slowly.

Aloud she said: "He'll marry someone else. I'm not the girl for him, anyway. He'd find it out if I gave him the chance and he won't ever earn more than two hundred a month."

The idea brightened her; she went to bed telling herself she liked Jerry too well to deceive him. What she had done was really a kindness to him.

Jerry put his horse in the stall and came out into the open crestfallen.

"I'm not good enough for her," he said to the night. "[illegible] on hoping [illegible] answer [illegible] worth waiting [illegible]."

The unresponsive [illegible] made no reply. Perhaps it was a good thing for Jerry in his heart to believe that Hester was worth waiting for. [illegible] still they referred the whole question to Father Time, who has a way of settling such affairs.

Mr. Pansie and the Misses Clipp received the news of Hester's proposed departure for New York with unrestrained disapproval.

"What are you going to do when you get there?" asked Mr. Pansie.

"I haven't decided," said Hester grandly, as though almost any occupation were open to her countryfied experience.

Reminiscences

"Who ever heard of anything the equal of that?" remarked Miss Clipp the elder. "My dear, [illegible] do you know New York is quite a little different from Demopolis—I've been there?"

"Many years ago, though," interrupted Mr. Skerritt.

"It's not any smaller," insisted Miss Clipp. "I was [illegible] and we got lost on Fourteenth street—all the big stores [illegible] there."

Miss Clipp did not say exactly what [illegible] expected for Hester, but she hinted at the danger of any young girl trusting herself to the [illegible] of a big city.

Miss Skerritt [illegible] amazement. "I thought [illegible] was going to settle down here and marry Jerry——"

"I'm not going to marry anyone," Hester replied, [illegible] by this interest in her [illegible] actions.

"You could do worse," said Mrs. Skerritt. "Jerry's a [illegible] lad—he's interesting [illegible] and he'll do well. [illegible] worse."

The subject [illegible] inexhaustible for the remainder of the week, increasing [illegible] up to the very time when Hester had packed her small trunk and sent it by Mr. Pansie's wagon down to the station tagged for New York.

And when the moment came for her to follow the trunk, the whole boarding house clientele appeared on the steps to wish her farewell and good luck.

Jerry Newcombe was on hand to take her to the station in time for the seven ten; the women and the men she had disliked so violently seemed to take on another and less hateful aspect as she turned for the last time to thank them for their good wishes.

Out of Their Lives

They watched her drive away and returned to a dinner enlivened by conjectures as to what would become of Miss Bevins in that hive of activity to which she was bound.

On the way to the train neither Hester nor Jerry had much to say. He hitched his horse and helped her out, and they walked back and forth on the platform waiting for the whistle of the engine.

"You'll write to me, won't you, Hester, and if you ever need any help; if you ever need anything you won't forget I'm waiting, will you?"

"Oh, Jerry, you're too good — I know I am ungrateful—I know I'm not worth thinking so much of, but let me have my way and maybe after that I'll be coming back."

"You'll be back," said Jerry, trying to smile, "there's nothing in the city can compare to the life here—after you've tried it you'll see." He spoke with all the earnestness of one who had sampled both and weighed their respective attractions in the balance.

The whistle of the engine at the station below gave warning of the moment of parting.

"She's coming—she's on time," said Jerry lamely.

The engine rolled into sight, seeming to his eyes like a juggernaut waiting to crush the life out of the girl he loved. The train slowed up—the baggage was all aboard—the conductor shouted——

In that last moment Hester impulsively threw her arms about Jerry's neck and kissed him; her voice was near sobs as she said good-bye, at that second it seemed she could not go—only for a second—her foot was on the step—the train was moving; Jerry was waving to her.

He stood looking at the last car growing smaller and smaller with the tense concentration of the man who hates to lose sight of the girl he loves.

"Tough luck," called the station master.

Jerry went back to his runabout and started homewards; for the first time since he could remember Demopolis seemed an empty place and life without hope.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

OF PRACTICAL VALUE IN THE HOME

If tinware when first bought is rubbed all over with lard and thoroughly heated in the oven before being used it will never rust, no matter how much water is put in it afterwards. This is a great help for lids of kettles and tin lids of all kinds, as they soon become rusty [illegible].

• • •

Very often filament electric lamps are thrown away when one of the wires has broken. This however, is unnecessary waste. After switching on the current, gently knock the lamp to force the two ends of the broken wire to join. When they touch the lamp will light as usual.

• • •

After washing day always thoroughly [illegible] each tub. Water left [illegible] will make them rot.

• • •

A scrubbing brush should never be left in the water even for a few minutes, as this loosens the bristles and makes them soft. A piece of tape should be fastened to the brush, so that it can be hung up and allowed to drain.

An Easy Way to Make a New Kind of Jelly from Grapefruit

By Ann Proctor

A friend introduced me to grapefruit jelly the other day. We were "teaing" at a charming combination restaurant and gift shop where they make a specialty of this unusual delicacy. And my friend knowing the proprietress got the recipe for me. It is not at all difficult to make and Oh! how good it is!

The recipe calls for 3 cups of grapefruit juice, 7 level cups (3 lbs.) of sugar and a bottle (scant cup) of Certo.

To get three cups of juice you will need three or four grapefruits according to size. Grate off the yellow part of the rinds into a [illegible] fruit into halves and squeeze out the juice. Mix fruit and grated rind and squeeze through strong, fine cloth to remove rind and pulp. Place [illegible] in jelly bag and squeeze out [illegible]. Then measure the sugar and juice into a large saucepan, stir and bring to a boil. At once add Certo, stirring constantly. Continue to stir and bring again to a hard boil over the hottest fire for one-half minute, stirring continually. Remove from fire, let stand one minute, skim and pour quickly into jelly glasses.

I had used Certo before so I was not surprised to find that with it the [illegible] "jelled" immediately and perfectly. Certo, I might add, contains no gelatin or preservative; it is a pure fruit product, well described as "Mother Nature's Jelly Maker."

With my bottle of Certo, I was given the Certo Book of Recipes, full of directions for making the most appetite-tickling jams and jellies and marmalades at any time of the year. There are directions in it for orange and grapefruit marmalade, much simpler than any I have tried before.

I advise you to make these while grapefruits are so good and plentiful. [illegible] find that the marmalade will more than take the place of fresh fruit for breakfast and the grapefruit jelly is delicious with a meat course.

You can get CERTO at your grocer's or druggist's and the recipe book comes with every bottle. For extra free copies of the recipe book write Pectin Sales Co., Inc., Dept. 3, Rochester, N. Y.

If your grocer or druggist does not have Certo, please call Miss Dwyer, [illegible] 1014 to learn where to obtain it.

AT one time the exclusive use of raw foods was quite a fad. The theory was that the heat [illegible] to cooking destroyed [illegible] vital principle in the [illegible] and thus interfered with nutrition. It is true that great heat does destroy vitamines, but this fact alone does not justify us in using nothing but raw food.

Most of the people who adopted the raw food system did not flourish [illegible] and after a time re[illegible] natural method of eating. Those who derived benefit were doubtless persons whose diet had formerly been deficient in vitamines—that is, they had lived too exclusively upon cooked food.

A rational system of eating involves the use of a certain amount of cooked food and the [illegible] raw food as well. A [illegible] quantity of natural food [illegible] must be taken in order to insure a supply of vitamines, but good cookery also makes [illegible] substances available for [illegible].

It is a fact that the art of cookery has been the means of preserving the race under circumstances which tended directly to extermination [illegible] which emphasizes how essential it is to practice that art properly.

As a Woman Thinketh

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THERE are two kinds of fat men—natural and incorrigible.

A fat man of fifty is a victim of Nature and nobody blames him.

No woman resents the pardonable, if unbecoming, plumpness that gradually envelopes her Youthful Ideal and transforms him into a nice, comfortable Middle-aged Husband.

But the fat man of thirty, forty, or even forty-five is HIS OWN FAULT!

And if "nobody loves" him, it is—

Because he looks as though he had a roast-beef soul!

Because he is so maddeningly complacent and self-satisfied.

Because he is too chubby to be decorative, and too clumsy to be useful.

Because he cheerfully lets everybody else do his worrying for him.

Because he takes up two seats in a street car, and seems to want three.

Because he sleeps so soundly that it gives you insomnia just to think of him; and his appetite is so good that it takes away yours just to watch him eat.

Because, wherever he may be, the biggest chair and the most comfortable spot are always ceded to him by divine right.

Because you suspect that he MUST be either lazy or self-indulgent, or utterly spineless—or he wouldn't BE fat!

That is WHY he is fat!

And IF, by chance, any woman does love him, it is—

Because he never has dyspepsia, nerves, temperament, tantrums or grouches.

Because he is too cheerful to be bad-natured, and too lazy to be bad-tempered.

Because he is not finicky, touchy, morbid or sensitive—but just comfortable—SO comfortable!

That's why he is FAT!

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

AN ABSORBING SERIAL OF LIFE IN THE CITY

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

"I AM talking very frankly with you. You will be with mother so much that you must understand how things are. And, while we are on this subject, the reason I insisted on a companion for mother was so that I could get some relief.

"I am only nineteen. By the way, how old are you?"

"Nineteen, too," Adelaide told her.

"Well, anyway, at my age I have a right to take my fun where I can find it. It would be ridiculous for me to waste my youth and miss my good times staying with mother just because she gets a whim that she wants me. And Dick is no good at that kind of thing."

"Dick?"

"Yes, Dick—Richard—my brother. He is more fond of his own way than I am of mine—if that is possible," with a light laugh. "Dad is devoted to mother, and throws fits about her being left alone with Estelle. So I was determined to engage some one who would be like a daughter to mother. At first Dad was a bit opposed to it, but I soon talked him around. Then, when he saw you and heard your story and that your mother was blind, too, that clinched the bargain. And here you are!"

Exculpation

"I like to be here," Adelaide said. She chided herself for feeling a little shocked at the callous tone in which the rich girl mentioned her mother's affliction and that of Mrs. Brown. For, of course, it was only her manner, not her heart that was at fault.

"Another thing," Patricia said, as she rose, preparatory to conducting Adelaide down to Mrs. Hollingshead, "mother has to be helped quite a bit at table, for she cannot find her food easily on her plate. It is a bit of a nuisance having Estelle standing by her chair, and mother does not like it. So will you sit by mother and see that she manages her food all right?"

"Of course," Adelaide said promptly.

Then she was to sit at the table with the family after all, she mused. She had wondered about that—whether a companion ate with her employers or was served afterwards at a second table. She was relieved that, without asking a question on the subject, her doubts on this point had been settled.

"Come on and see mother, now," Patricia suggested. "She knows you are here and will be fussing until you go to her."

It took Adelaide Brown only a short time to discover that Mrs. Hollingshead was not only ill in body, but much depressed in mind. In fact, that the invalid was very sorry for herself.

Finished Dressing

Her maid had finished dressing her this morning when Patricia and Adelaide entered the room.

"Mother," Patricia said, "here is Miss Brown."

"Oh, my dear, I am glad you have come!" The invalid greeted her new companion eagerly. "I hope I may now have fewer lonely hours. It is hard—losing one's sight when one has always enjoyed going around and seeing things."

"Indeed it is!" Adelaide began, but Patricia cut in with

"Really, mother it is not necessary to explain all this to Miss Brown. Her own mother is as blind as you are."

Again Adelaide flinched at the matter-of-fact reference to a trial that seemed to her tragic.

"Oh, yes, I do remember that your mother has lost her sight, too," Mrs. Hollingshead said. "But didn't you say an operation may restore it?"

"Yes, it may," Adelaide answered.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and [illegible], and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will [illegible] and [illegible] thoroughly. [illegible] with water [illegible]. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which [illegible] every particle of dust [illegible]. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

MOTHER!

Open Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, billious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Home-made, but Has No Equal for Coughs

Makes a family supply of really dependable cough medicine. Easily prepared, and saves about $2.

If you have a severe cough or chest cold accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes a pint of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

Foolish of them, wasn't it? An important manufacturing concern had a man who run things for them. He possessed knowledge which none of the others had.

The other day he died.

And the company finds itself in a most awkward position.

* * *

How many are there who pride themselves upon being "indispensable" to their organizations?

How many companies are more or less at the mercy of one "key" man?

In the olden days there were employes who took great pride in the fact that no one else knew how to do their job. These men guarded their knowledge and the facts and figures they handled with the utmost rigidity and secrecy. They gloated over the thought that the place could not be run without them. They would commit to writing no details of how to handle each task, nor would they train an assistant to take their place.

There are still some of this type left.

* * *

Any organization which tolerates this sort of foolishness is unwise. No important employe, either official or workman, should be allowed to keep zealously to himself how to handle his job. Every concern ought to compel every member of the force to train a substitute. If any of these old-time bigots should refuse to open up and teach their duties to an understudy, then the sooner they are fired, the better for the company. No enterprise should allow any employe to jockey it into a position where his withdrawal, for any reason whatsoever, could embarrass it by throwing the smooth functioning of its operations out of gear.

* * *

Teamwork is absolutely essential today to the successful running of any enterprise of magnitude. There is only one thing to do with any worker or any official who cannot be induced to become a team-worker, namely, fire him. The employe who revels in the thought that he carries indispensable information up his sleeve and who delights to contemplate the confusion his dropping out would cause, isn't giving his first and chief thought to helping his concern, but to himself. With such an employe the well-being of his organization comes second. Such a man is not an asset; he is a liability, a dangerous liability. If he is small enough to follow such a course, he is small enough to plunge his employers into a hole should he happen to get the chance.

* * *

One of the most remarkable organizations in this country is Stone & Webster, the electrical engineers, builders and operators of huge power plants, public utilities, factories, etc. I once asked Charles A. Stone to name one chief reason for their success and he immediately replied:

"We teach all our important men to organize themselves out of a job." That sounded funny. Then he explained that as soon as a man in authority mastered his job his first duty was to train someone under him to fill his shoes. Then, when, as was constantly happening, the concern branched out and took on some big new work, there were capable men to step in and take charge, as the latter could hand over their jobs to their understudies. In this way, the enterprise had been able to go on growing and growing without weakening the organization. All, each who was not big enough to organize himself out of a job was a misfit in the organization and had either to play ball or get off the lot.

* * *

I was talking only the other day with a Chicago man very familiar with the different meat packing organizations. Of one of the "big five" he remarked: "That's a one-man organization. If anything were to happen to ——— the concern would be in a terrible hole." Later he remarked that Swift & Company proceeded on a very different track, that any one of the six Swift brothers could fall out without crippling the organization and that the place of any other important head could also be immediately filled from within the company's own force.

* * *

The "one-man organization" criticism used to be made of the Bethlehem Steel Company until Schwab took pains to emphasize and reiterate that he had a man as its active head who knew more about steel than anyone else in America and that the company could get along just as well without him—that is, Schwab.

* * *

When you think of it, it is a crime for any company or corporation that sells its stock to the public to expose itself to being seriously crippled should any one figure in it be removed. Corporations that issue stock are supposed, like Tennyson's brook, to go on forever. Clearly, therefore, they should be organized with this basic thought in mind.

The incident related at the start of this column should be accepted as a warning and acted upon wherever similar conditions exist.

SUGAR ISSUES ADVANCE IN AFTERNOON

Leathers Strong in Last Hour; Profit Taking Halted Morning Upswing

By W. H. ROSS
Financial Editor

At the close in New York most stocks were showing gains, the market ending with a rally. It was active on the advance. Transactions approximated 900,000 shares. National Enameling was a feature of the last hour, climbing almost six points. American Sugar was up three at its highest. Crucible recovered and showed a small gain. Both steels and rails displayed considerable improvement. Studebaker ended with a trifling gain.

The market reacted to some extent in the second hour, and largely because of profit taking. Among issues to recede the most were Chandler, Mexican Petroleum, Corn Products, American Ice, Atlantic Gulf and Crucible. Gains in general were reduced and by noon the list was rather heavy. There was a brief rally at midday. Irregularity prevailed in the afternoon, when sugar issues became strong. Several advanced one or two points. Later in the session leathers went to a higher level. Burns Bros., Sears Roebuck weakened in the last hour, the former falling more than two points. Specialties featured today's trading. Pools were active. Call money opened at 4½ per cent. Foreign exchange had an irregular start.

SMALL GAINS AT START.

The market had a strong start but gains were small at the opening and throughout the first hour, with a few exceptions. Among the latter were Baldwin, Studebaker, Gulf States Steel, Car and Foundry, Anaconda, International Motor, Pierce Arrow and Railway Steel Spring. They had advanced from one to five points by mid-morning. Gulf States Steel made the largest gain and sold at its highest in more than a year. Other issues to rise above the best figures for 1921 were Railway Steel Spring and Adams Express. Highs for 1922 were established by Studebaker, Pierce Arrow, Chandler, International Motor and Stromberg. In fact, motor issues were stronger and more active than for some time. The bulk of early trade trading was in them, oils, rails and equipment. Rails did not receive quite as much support as before this week. Much of the recent demand for these stocks has been of Western origin. Among issues to recede a point or more were Pullman, American Tobacco and Computing Tabulating. Crucible soon sagged nearly a point. Independent steels had a good tone during the first hour. Coppers and tires were firm.

SENTIMENT BETTER.

Sentiment is better in financial districts and enthusiastic bulls say the stock market has begun to discount a revival in business. According to comment in some quarters a speculative spirit is incubating in the West with railroad stocks especially in favor. Eastern demand for securities of late has been more of an investment character. The buying of bonds has not been checked by higher charges for money this week, further reductions being expected soon. Government withdrawals from New York banks tomorrow will total $8,000,000. In the stock loan market after the close yesterday American Sugar preferred commanded 1-16 per cent. premium. Industrials loaned generally at 4½ per cent. and railroads at 3½.

Zinc Stock Reduced

The surplus stock of zinc in this country is being slowly reduced, being cut nearly a thousand tons in December and amounting to 56,000 tons on January 1 this year. On July 1 last the surplus was 39,062 tons, the largest ever known.

Dividend Declarations

American Manufacturing Co. declared quarterly dividend of $1.50 on common and semi-annual dividend of $2.25 on preferred, both payable Feb. 2 to stock of record Jan. 17.

Mohawk Mining Co. declared quarterly dividend of $1, payable Feb. 28 to stock of record Feb. 1.

New River Co. will pay a dividend of $1.50 a share on preferred on Feb. 1 to holders of record Jan. 20 on account of dividend No. 18, due May 1, 1918.

American Telegraph & Cable declared quarterly 1¼ per cent. dividend, payable March 1.

American Brass declared a dividend of $1.50 a share, payable Feb. 6 to stock of record Jan. 31.

Producers & Refiners Corporation declared quarterly 1¾ per cent. preferred dividend, payable Feb. 6 to stock of record Jan. 27.

Jersey Central declared quarterly dividend of $2 a share, payable Feb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 27.

Stafford Mills Corporation declared quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent., payable Feb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 16.

MUST PUT LAZY MONEY TO WORK

Spillane Tells How One Big Business Man Has Got Wheels Started

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 18.—Lazy money is like a lazy man, of little service.

There's a lot of lazy money in America today. It is represented in part by the bank deposits of large corporations that are rich and powerful, but which are operating on only about one-half capacity. Money such as this on deposit brings small returns, 2½ per cent. generally, 3 per cent. in unusual instances. Various of these corporations have established dividend records, the United States Steel, for example, of 5 per cent. on its common and 7 per cent. on its preferred.

Dividends must be earned from business, not from deposits in banks.

A lazy man waits for something to turn up. So does lazy money. There's nothing lazy about the head of one great industry in America. The business of that concern is both national and international. He thinks the way to get business is to go after it, and the way to demonstrate confidence is to give proof of your faith.

LOOKS FOR BETTERMENT.

He has not a doubt in the world that liquidation is over and real improvement is not far distant. He doesn't look for pronounced activity, but he doesn't look for decided betterment. His concern makes a great variety of articles, some of which sell for a few dollars and some of which sell for hundreds of thousands of dollars. The world has need of his products.

Where corporations and individuals of reliability want his goods but are doubtful or troubled because of their losses in the last two years, he stands ready to accept their contracts on the basis of 25 per cent. cash and the remainder spread out over a year or eighteen months, as they desire.

The 6 per cent. on their notes will be at least double what the funds in the bank pay and, in addition, there is the profit on the machinery sold. When he had reduced his bank deposits to a decided degree he can float the notes of his customers easily with the corporation's endorsement of them.

That corporation normally does a business running into the hundreds of millions a year. It is doing less than 45 per cent. of normal today. It probably will be at 75 per cent. or more before the end of the year.

OTHERS CAN DO IT.

Why shouldn't all corporations with surplus funds do likewise? What this man is doing is much easier to do than what Samuel M. Vauclain has done and is doing. Mr. Vauclain has traversed Europe twice, gone to Mexico, and has been ready to go anywhere to get business and aid in financing it where the credit seemed sound.

Money rates have been declining. That is an invariable sign of improvement in business. When money is cheap it is forced to seek employment. The lower the interest rate on loans the more urgent the quest of money for avenues in which it can find work.

If the loan rates keep down to present or lower levels for a few months there will be little or not lazy money in America.

That will mark the definite return of better conditions in practically every branch of business.

Boston Financial Notes

John D. Woodfin, director of the Lincoln Iron Works, and Henry van Der Wyke, formerly sales manager of the Standard Oil Company's East Cambridge station, have been elected directors of the Metropolitan Filling Stations in place of Arthur Wright and Dr. Victor H. Carpenter, who have resigned.

The latest New River Company dividend has reduced accumulated dividends to $22.50 per share.

First Boston Savings Bank has declared a semi-annual divident of 2½ per cent, making two years' payments at 5 per cent rate. Its deposits total $8,501,000, an increase of $295,000 during last year.

Domestic coal stocks in Massachusetts on January 1, 1922 totaled 934,770 tons as compared with 251,995 tons in January last.

Superintendent John D. Pope of the Boston & Montana Development Company, for many years superintendent of the North Butte Mining Company, is in Boston and will talk on mining operations in the Butte district at the City Club this evening.

Organization articles as Massachusetts corporations have been filed by: The Valvcraft Products Corporation, Boston, 4,000 shares of common without par value; Millett-Woodbury Company, Beverly, $100,000; The Seven Oils, Inc., Boston, 4,000 shares preferred, par $25, and 5,000 shares common of no par value; D. Henry Cram, Inc., Boston, $250,000; Cedak Company, Springfield, 1,000 shares preferred, par $100, and 12,000 shares common of no par value.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Today's stock market developed a good deal more of strength and activity than was suggested either by Monday's closing or the character of trading in the first hour of the morning. There was a fair display of strength in the forenoon when it became evident that the reaction produced by Monday's advance in the call money rate would be short lived.

TRADING features were furnished by advances in the motors, a few of the rails, some recovery in the oils and intensive activity in a few of the specialities. Studebaker and Chandler advanced sharply on a large turnover. Higher prices are being confidently predicted for both, particularly the former. General Asphalt made the best showing among the oils, although Mexican Petroleum at one time was more than a point above the Monday closing. The leaders among the rails were Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western. Among the low priced rails, New Haven advanced more than a point and a half. The Hoover conference at Washington furnished the basis of more or less optimism on the railroad labor situation.

THE speculative character of the market was shown by the manner in which specialties were advanced. Gains of one to more than three points were established by the stocks of the leading express companies. Sharp upturns were recorded by United States Industrial Alcohol, Computing, Tabulating and Recording, Pullman Company, Gulf States Steel and Sloss Sheffield.

NOTWITHSTANDING the increase in activity and the improvement in tone, there was little news bearing directly on the market. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent. and remained at this figure throughout the day. Commodity markets after early weakness moved higher.

FOLLOWING the reactionary tendency of Monday afternoon with indications of a higher renewal rate, the professional element expected a declining market. A number of orders were placed somewhat under Monday night's close in the speculative favorites. Contrary to expectations, the market opened higher and advanced throughout the day. Attempts to bring reactions met with little success.

CAST IRON PIPE issues were strong on accumulation reported to be for powerful banking firms. The common was more active than in many months at advancing quotations, and the preferred also scored a substantial gain. Buying of both issues is based on the knowledge of great improvements in the company's business, and there is every indication that the present year will prove one of the most profitable in its history. There is some talk of the common being restored to a dividend basis in 1923. Before a dividend can be declared on the common, the preferred must pay 7 per cent. It now pays 5 per cent., and there is every reason to believe that the increased declaration will be made very soon.

UNITED STATES INDUSTRIAL Alcohol has been under accumulation for some time, but on the recovery a large block of stock has been in the market at 41. This selling order was withdrawn Monday and on Tuesday the speculative pool advanced the quotations despite a reduction in the price of alcohol. There is understood to be a large outstanding short interest below 40. The buying is of a most confident nature.

THE express stocks all were strong, Wells Fargo, American and Adams scoring gains of from two to four points in the first two hours. The buying is based largely on improvement in package business, although in the case of the American Express there is a special reason. Buying of this latter stock is for the account of very wealthy individuals.

THERE was active trading in rights of the North American Company at between $4 and $5. These rights are unique in that they are rights to subscribe to North American Company stock at $50 a share as that stock may be offered to holders for subscription. Holders who do not exercise their privilege on the first offering are barred from participating in future offerings, so that the present rights are a safeguard for the future. They amount practically to a call on North American stock good for six months at $50.

AN offering of $3,894,000 of Pennsylvania Railroad 6 per cent. equipment trust certificates, due January 15, 1925, will be made by Freeman & Company. The issue was bought from the director-general of railroads last week and will be put out under the "Philadelphia plan" under an agreement dated January 15, 1920 with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York as trustee. The certificates are secured by a direct lien on standard railway equipment including locomotives, box, gondola and hopper cars.

A DIVIDEND of $1 a share was declared on Dome Mines stock. The regular dividend of 25 cents per share was declared last month, the present payment being on account of capital investment. Par value of Dome is $10 per share, and it is understood that these payments of $1 will be made from time to time until the full capital has been repaid to stockholders. The payment is subject to the sanction of the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, whose assent, it is understood will be given promptly. Under the income tax law, payments on capital account are not subject to tax. The stock sold at a new high price for the present move on the announcement, but reacted to a point of profit-taking.

EUROPE GAINING LITTLE, SAY EXPERTS

Evans Reviews Situation Abroad, and Marvels Especially at Italy's Progress

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—The Association of Commerce in this city has appointed a committee on international finance and a representative of that committee will attend the meeting of a committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States presently to be held in New York.

The national organization is represented in Europe by the International Chamber of Commerce with headquarters at Paris. Financial interests of this city will thus be brought in touch with the powers that be in Europe and will become a part of the undertaking of which the proposed international financial conference at Genoa is the expression.

Among the members of the Chicago committee are Professor Moulton of the University of Chicago and John F. Bass, authors of the recently published book "America and the Balance Sheet of Europe." No action has yet been taken by the United States government regarding the economic conference now being organized by European statesmen, but it has been given out from our executive department that we will participate if invited.

ONE NOVEL OBSTACLE.

Mr. Bass has nothing extensive to say regarding the situation in Europe beyond what is said in the book just mentioned, but he does mention one obstacle to recovery of European countries which few people think of.

Noting specially France, he says that country cannot place its money on a gold basis because such action would make that debt greater than all France is worth.

This is one way of stating a situation which has been set forth in all sorts of other ways, and it makes the difficulty of resumption look like a decidedly strong stonewall. Nobody knows just what a country is worth, inasmuch as countries are not bought and sold, but the estimates of wealth are based on investigations made by census authorities, and in times past there has been a schedule of the values of all leading countries.

The only alternative he can see is to do what a private bankrupt does, plead his condition and ask his creditors to let him out. A method soothing to the sensibility of the debtor would be that of redeeming the currencies in the ratio of 1 to 100 or such rate as would be suggested by the discount on the money at the time of redemption.

CANCELLATION NECESSARY.

It would probably not be necessary to apply this sedative to the funded debts. As to the debts of these nations to the United States, voluntary or involuntary cancellation within a period of a few years seems inevitable and some of the most influential of our rulers favor that action as to all or a portion of the indebtedness.

Among the unfavorable conditions which are little noted by the ordinary American is the unprofitableness of the mining of coal in the Saar Valley. In the first place the German miners there are at no pains to enrich France by means of a full day's work. Then the coal comes in competition with that of England, which can be sold at a lower price. Italy is a customer except in those portions that can be served readily through the ports of that country from England.

But France has not lost her place in the foreign markets. At times since the armistice a balance of exports over imports has been scored. In some lines of production France has no competitor, notably in certain objects of art and the elegancies of fine clothing. Doubtless the artistic instincts of her people will operate to maintain her lead.

EUROPE GAINING LITTLE.

On the whole one must conclude from the statements of Mr. Bass that Europe is gaining little. On the continent Italy makes a fair showing under the circumstances, and one is surprised at the maintenanse there of anything like business stability when he remembers that the Banca Italiana di Sconto, which recently failed, was one of the three leading commercial banks in Italy.

Germany is kept from one grand collapse only by the tolerance, not very liberal tolerance either—of the entente powers. Even her foreign commerce, on which she counted so much to relieve her fortunes, has latterly turned against her with an excess of imports over exports. The condition of Poland is characterized as agonizingly grotesque.

This country appears to be making some progress in its unconscious effort to segregate itself in large degree from unfortunate Europe. The strength of the stock market is evidence of the independent attitude we have assumed. This will be safe enough for a time perhaps, but most of us little appreciate the peril of the world as shown by the condition of Europe. It is on the edge of a precipice and one cannot see how it will be rescued otherwise than by beginning over anew in economic matters. The conference may be a step in that direction.

LOCAL MARKET WEAKENS A LITTLE

Firmer at Opening Than Later in the Morning; Mixed Trend on Curb

The Boston market was stronger at the opening than later in the morning, becoming irregular in the second hour. It was fairly active. Trading did not broaden, however. John T. Connor sold at a new record high. Allouez sold at its highest since 1920. The market had no outstanding feature. Among active issues were Gray & Davis, Carson Hill and Waldorf. Point or more gains were made during the morning by American Sugar, Calumet & Hecla, Allouez, Boston & Maine A and B, and Agricultural Chemical preferred. St. Mary's Land dropped a point and Boston Elevated preferred 1½.

By afternoon the market had weakened further. Mayflower-Old Colony responded to assessment news by selling at its lowest for more than two years. Allouez increased its gain by a point and other especially strong issues were Gardner Motor and Amoskeag. St. Mary's Land recovered its loss and Agricultural Chemical common receded a point. Boston & Maine B lost its early advance.

CURB MARKET MIXED.

Trading was active on the Curb and it had a mixed price movement all the morning. Leaders were Boston & Montana and Eureka. By noon Boston & Montana was up 3 cents at 75 cents, First National 15 cents at 80 cents, Gadsden 5 cents at 45 cents and Verde Mines 2 cents at 22 cents. Among declines were Eureka 1 cent at 31 cents, Boston Ely 4 cents at 69 cents, Hecla Divide half a cent at 3 cents and Southern States 5 cents at 35 cents. Consolidated Copper Mines recovered an opening loss and Mutual and Verde Central lost early gains.

Corporation Reports

The Lindsay Light Co. reports net for 1921 of $3,848, and a total surplus of $288,706 compared with $304,094 on Dec. 31, 1920.

The income account of Alfred Decker & Co., Inc., of Chicago for 1921, shows net profits of $108,589, a deficit of $32,484, and a total surplus of $164,801.

For the November fiscal year the Denver Gas & Electric Co. reports increases of $687,935 in gross and of $28,950 in net.

Marine Oil Co.'s net earnings of $91,224 are equal to approximately 18 per cent. on the capitalization of $500,000, as against dividend requirements of 8 per cent.

Total	$5,000

The $5,000 Book Title Test closes today with the printing of Test Drawing No. 60.

Sets of answers must be in the mail not later than midnight next Sunday night.

Participants who prefer may bring their sets of answers to the Boston American office in person or send them here by messenger. Hand them to a clerk in the business office on the street floor at No. 80 Summer street.

Make sure that, in addition to the address of the Test Editor, your own name and address appear on the outer wrapper. Write your name and address plainly in the upper left-hand corner. If you have changed your address since the Test began write your PRESENT address on the wrapper.

BE SURE TO USE SUFFICIENT POSTAGE. READ THE RULES. PARCELS WHICH COME TO US MARKED "POSTAGE DUE" MAY BE EXCLUDED FROM THE TEST.

The post offices classifies these parcels as "First Class Mail." They must be paid for at Letter Rates. Take nothing for granted. Ask them about it.

In addition to carrying your name and address in the upper left-hand corner the parcel should be addressed carefully as follows:

BOOK TEST EDITOR,
BOSTON AMERICAN,
NO. 80 SUMMER STREET,
BOSTON, MASS.
P. O. BOX 239.

Participants will understand, of course, that today's List of Titles contains the Correct Titles of both No. 59 and No. 60.

On Monday next the Boston American will begin the re-printing of the Book Test pictures, each with its Correct Title. The drawings will be half the present size and at least two will be printed every day. This will help pass the time while checkers are at work comparing your titles with the Official List. The results of the Test will be announced in the Boston American at the earliest date possible.

Rules of Contest

The Boston American Book Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by this newspaper to its readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the sixty pictures to be published one each day for sixty days consecutively (Sundays excepted) in the Boston American.

All employes of the Boston American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The test will consist of sixty pictures, each representing the title of a well-known book, to be printed, one each day, in the Boston American, the first picture on Monday, November 7, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every title must be written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American; or on a page of some book form of itself, accompanied by the picture furnished by the Boston American, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, that is, do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting on basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American title headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Book Title Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all the pictures of the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed it is absolutely necessary that the packages be fully prepaid at postal rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which charge for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. List of Book Titles will be printed in the Boston American. The list appearing will contain among others the correct title.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Book Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American. If participants desire personal replies they should enclose stamped and self-addressed envelopes.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the American. If participants desire personal replies they should enclose stamped and self-addressed envelopes.

The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American Book Title Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be

If You Buy $100 Worth or More During January

Annual Event

And, startling though it may be, just once every year we make this extraordinary offer, because January is the slowest month in the year for sales, so we forget profit and think sales only. This year we are continuing our 5-Day-After-Christmas Sale prices. Look for the Red Tags. They mean a saving of at least 33 1-3%, and if you cannot take delivery now, you may make a deposit, paying along as you like. In this way your furniture will be all paid for when you need it. Let us show you what a big saving it is if you buy now, and it will be a pleasure to show you whether you buy or not.

More Evidence

1920 Price $125, Now $55

Of the tremendous values and wonderfully beautiful furniture that this big uptown store is offering you if you buy this month. This magnificent 8-piece solid oak Dining Room Suite is one that will furnish your room most attractively. Beautifully finished with substantial 8-foot extension Table, and 4 genuine slip seated Dining Chairs, it is by far the best suite, as well as the greatest value offered in New England. A fair price in 1920 would have been $125. Our special January price $55.

Other January Values

$50 Living Room Suite..$25.00
$55 Heavy Velvet Rug..$27.50
$140 Parlor Suite.......$72.00
$175 Bed Room Suite....$69.00

And so it is throughout our immense and attractive showing of good things for the home. Just one great bargain after another. Don't you believe it will pay you to buy this month? But

Look First All You Can

Then see us. You will more readily see just how much we can save you, as well as how much easier we can furnish your home.

SPECIAL PAYMENTS

May be arranged if you so desire. You may pay a comfortable amount at time of purchase and a comfortable amount each week until it is paid for. Six months' credit without interest.

It All Depends What KIND of an Ex-Convict You Are

For Instance, Compare John Guy and Mr. Morse

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

John Guy of Middletown, New York, stole three lead pencils, was caught, convicted and sentenced to five years in prison because he was AN EX-CONVICT.

What makes this sentence seem a little hard, even in these days when it is important to discourage crime, is the fact that the ex-convict did not steal to get property that he wanted. He stole that the State might be compelled to lock him up where he would be warm and have something to eat. The moment he had taken the lead pencils he gave himself up voluntarily. And the State gave HIM five years. Perhaps it suits him, we don't know. The theory of the long sentence was that he was unrepentant, because he had been in prison before.

Turn your eyes now to another case, in which the financial circumstances are different. A gentleman named Morse was convicted of crime on a scale that Mr. Guy of Middletown, N. Y., would never dream of. Mr. Morse went to prison, and he and his doctor succeeded in persuading President Taft that he was a dying man. The President, deceived, let him out of jail.

At this moment this very DIFFERENT type of ex-convict is under indictment. He goes to Europe, comes back. Nobody is in a hurry about him apparently, although it must be mentioned that the Department of Justice was quick and energetic in starting the proceedings against him.

It will be very interesting to see what happens to ex-convict No. 2, who got Taft to let him out of prison under false pretenses, in case of conviction.

If a man who steals three lead pencils because he wants a place to sleep and be warm, then gives himself up, gets FIVE YEARS IN JAIL, what sort of a sentence do you think should be inflicted upon a man accused of taking from the government millions that he did not need, after having been an ex-convict for financial crimes on a big scale at an earlier date?

In the United States, if you MUST be a criminal, take care that you are a BIG criminal.

For in our laws and our courts today, it is as it was in the famous story told by Rabelais 400 years ago, when he described the Court of Grippeminaud. The learned Grippeminaud tells how the big bugs fly through the net or web, but the little bugs are caught and punished.

It was so then; it was so 5,000 years before. It is so TODAY. How long will it remain so?

Pity Old China

Observe Why Nobody Pays Attention to Her.

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Those that think the United States should disarm to prove its sweet confidence in the good intentions of others, read this:

Dr. Tyau, of the Chinese delegation, resigns because the Conference treats China with contempt. China is treated with contempt by Japan, having 60,000,000 population; by England and France, having less population than Japan, and by the United States with 100,000,000 population. China alone has about double the population of the United States, England, Japan and France rolled all into one. Why do they treat her with contempt?

Because she has NO WEAPONS with which to defend herself.

Put the United States in China's condition and this country also would be treated with contempt. Why does everybody bow politely to Japan?

BECAUSE SHE KEEPS HERSELF WELL ARMED, and is ready to fight at the drop of a hat. We don't need to FIGHT, but we DO need to be ready. The hundreds of millions of Chinese are brave men, fearless of death, but nobody pays any attention to them. THEY HAVE NO WEAPONS.

Opportunity to Do Good

Help Those Who Are Helping Others

The American Jew has always been the freest giver to charities of any race in America. The amount of money for charity which the Jews are capable of raising has always been a source of pride to the race and astonishment to other classes.

The present campaign for $400,000, for the Federated Jewish Charities of Boston, which is now drawing to its close, is no exception to the rule that Jews give with extraordinary freedom to their poor. But they do not confine their charity to their own, and gifts to their funds ought not to come entirely from the Jews.

If there are any who feel that they can afford to make a charitable gift, this campaign for the Federated Jewish Charities offers them a fine opportunity. The campaign will close on Thursday, so that Thursday and today are the days when the contributions should be made.

Hear Borah's Speech

The Senator Is Coming Here to Tell About Devilish Entangling Alliances

United States Senator William E. Borah will speak at Faneuil Hall on Monday evening, January 23, on the Four-Power treaty, by which the United States is dragged into a devilish entangling alliance which Washington warned us against and prayed that we might always avoid.

The subject is important, and the speaker is one of the ablest we have in the country and one of the most distinguished of our American statesmen. No one who can get into Faneuil Hall to hear Mr. Borah on this subject ought to fail to do it, for a great occasion and a great man are combined to present to our people a great opportunity.

Arrests a Healthy Sign

The activity of the Federal officers in discovering and arresting those who are charged with the illicit selling of liquor and dope is a very healthy sign in this community. We hope it is not either spasmodic or sporadic.

We can no more stop the sale of liquor and of dope absolutely than we can stop murder or theft. But we can control it by laws so that it will be relatively harmless, if there is an honest effort to enforce the laws.

JAPANESE USE TACTICS OF GERMANY

Arrogant and Imperative in All Dealings With the Chinese, She Keeps Up Aggression While Handing Out Fair Words to People of the World.

By A. ESTELLE PADDOCK,
Universal Service Special Correspondent.

TSINANFU, Shantung, China, Dec. 4 (By Mail).—Not once, but often, Japan has asked the nations of the West to accept her sponsorship for China. She has repeatedly asked that her good faith toward China be not questioned. She has expressed, quite naturally, her displeasure when her motives have been called into question, and she has spent much time in explaining away situations which she has sought in no wise to correct. Her fair words and repeated promises have been a screen to hide the consistent progress of her aggressions upon the helpless Chinese.

Three months in China in close study of the question of Japan's activities in China have led to certain conclusions. It has been impossible to square the statements given out by Japanese leaders with the actual situation.

Without bias I have asked Chinese, high and low, north and south, male and female, "What about the Japanese?"

The reply has been given in identical words, "Their hearts are bad." People of the "robber heart," a group of educated men in Shantung called them.

Important Thing Is Concealed

Take Japan's letter in reply to China's refusal to deal with Japan directly on the Shantung question. The words as given to the public would lead the uninformed to think Japan most reasonable in her proposition. But as published, they do not contain her ultimatum to China, which says, in effect, that China must deal directly with Japan if she ever recovers Shantung. They do not explain that Japan's propositions are so preponderously in favor of Japan that China would be signing away her birthright.

It is in matters like this that Japan gives evidence of a "blind spot." She has been only seventy years a modern nation. Indeed it may be said that she has acted in that capacity for only twenty-one years. Not only have the forms and customs of the civilized world been new to her, but she has made many natural mistakes in learning even the rudiments of international relationships. She herself excuses many of the annoyances given to subjects of other powers on the ground of the inexperience of her subordinate officers.

Japanese are suspicious. Other nations have suspected them and they return the suspicion with interest.

Japanese arms are being supplied to the various Chinese insurgents. Japan warns China against importation of arms from other nations.

Japan wishes exclusive rights in the erection of wireless telegraphs in China. She protests against the erection of wireless stations by a United States firm.

Japan is spreading a wide propaganda of her own in China. She, therefore, considers the educational institutions of Americans in China as a form of organized American propaganda.

Follows Tactics of Germany

Japan learned her military tactics from Germany. She outdoes the Germans in arrogance. In territory where she places her subjects she unleashes this arrogance. "We could bear anything from the Japanese but their arrogance," said a prominent Chinese lady in Pekin. "That is what is so unbearable."

Against her declaration to preserve the integrity of Korea, Japan in 1905 annexed that country. Its acquisition was gained against the consent of Koreans. Japan still continues to misread the policy that should govern a nation that seeks to colonize. A member of the American educational commission that visited Korea last month told me of the pride with which one of the teachers in the schools pointed to the fact that all teaching of Koreans is in Japanese. It was noted also that while white is the Korean national dress, the Japanese have ordered that school costumes shall be black, a color detested by all Koreans. The desire to dominate transcends their desire to please.

The Chinese mind is given to compromise, often most vexatious. Japanese communications with Chinese smack always of the imperative. But when China uses imperative or even self-assertive language, Japanese are aggrieved. They are unable to endure from others that which they assume as their right.

These incidents and the repeated failure to get the other man's point of view reveal Japan's blind spot.

'I THANK MY STARS I WAS BORN ON A FARM,' SAYS SERVISS

By Garrett P. Serviss

ALTHOUGH I am not a farmer, I thank my stars I was born on a farm—an old-fashioned New York farm, in the days of pumpkin pies and milk, husking-bees and home-made maple sugar. I was a boy farmer for a short space of time, which was, I imagine, less fun that being a Boy Scout, not because the work was harder, but because it was not presented in the guise of play.

If it had been, I might have acquired unconsciously a mastering fondness for the occupation of agriculture that would have kept me at it in good earnest. What I did acquire for that occupation, however, was a great respect, which has remained with me all my days together with a perception of its pleasures, compensations and independence which has caused me always to champion the farmer and the farmer's life.

Now, in view of what I shall say a little further on, some reader may come at me with the sarcasm: "Why didn't you make farming your own business, if you think it is so good for others?" Many persons mistake this for argument, but the tu quoque style of riposte never touches the heart of a discussion. What I am about to say I am personally convinced is true, and my reasons for not becoming a farmer do not in the least affect the matter.

Ideas Change

If I had been able to see things when a boy as I see them now; or if the circumstances of that time had been those of this hour, possibly I should never have left the old farm.

The plainest truth is frequently the one that people are the most unwilling to see. Its very clearness is irritating to those who do not like it. One of the plainest truths of today is the fact that, while the millions of the earth's inhabitants are dependent for life upon the products of the earth's soil, and while those millions are constantly, and in many places rapidly, increasing its number, the total production of the fuel of life from the soil tends to decrease.

The soil will not produce food effectively, and with increasing abundance, without human intervention. This intervention cannot be supplied (at least not yet) in the absence of human hands. Invention has gone far toward releasing men from toil, and toward stimulating the productive forces of nature, but inventive genius, up to the present day, has been far more concerned with machines and methods for increasing the production of such things as clothes, adornments, conveniences of all sorts, manufactures partly useful and largely luxurious, than with the means of getting more provender out of the only source of provender—the ground.

To Perfect Life

There has been so much talk of what chemistry might do to feed mankind that some thoughtless persons seem actually to believe that that trick has been turned.

At the close of his delightful book, "The Naturalist on the River Amazon," Henry Bates wrote: "I hold the opinion that, although humanity can reach an advanced state of culture only by battling with the inclemencies of nature in high latitudes, it is under the equator alone that the perfect race of the future will attain to complete fruition of man's beautiful heritage, the earth."

Yes, under the equator nature requires almost no assistance to enable her to supply the wants of the simple, half-clothed, or unclothed inhabitants, among whom society life is more rustic than that of a Theocritean idyll. But the tropical lands and islands form only a broken belt around the waist of the globe, and when mankind, following Bates' dream, gathers there to enjoy its heritage there will have to be a terrible weeding out to reduce its numbers to correspond with the extent of territory to be occupied.

Advice to individuals is a ticklish and unsure thing, but to multitudes now flocking, nay, rushing blindly into the great, struggling centres of population, I do not hesitate to say: "Beware! Think well what you are doing before you cut yourself off from the direct nourishment of your mother earth's bread."

The farmer is the man who lives farthest from the gaunt shadow of Giant Starvation's grim castle.

LOVE GAME IS FOR YOUTH, NOT THOSE OF 50

By Winifred Black

"NOW, Now, Now!" said the Liberal-minded Man. "Don't you try to tell me that you are no longer interested in love!

"Every woman is interested in love. That's the way she's made. What are you trying to do—challenge me to interest you?"

And the Liberal-minded Man leaned across the table and did his best to look fascinating and irresistible.

"How narrow-minded you are," said the woman he declared narrow-minded, but she did not lean across the table at all. She leaned back in her chair and looked at her wrist watch and gave a little half-smothered sigh.

"Narrow-minded!" gasped the Liberal-minded Man. "What do you mean?"

"I mean," said the one called a Narrow-minded Woman, "that you are like all the Liberals—you don't even try to understand anyone who isn't exactly like you.

Pose of Heart-Breaker

"You want to argue about economics and altruistics and things and make love to every woman you see, if you are a man, and to every man you see, if you're a woman. No matter how old you are or how uninteresting or unattractive, you like to keep up the pose of being a heart-breaker.

"I saw two of you at it the other day. A man of fifty and a woman of forty-five. The woman, faded, wrinkled, defeated, a failure—the man, flat and bloated and very poor and not much of a success—but what a grand time they had pretending to have a desperate affair!

"They quite persuaded the waiter—I saw him shove a chair out of his way so that they would know he was coming near and not let him overhear too much. I suppose he's a pretender himself.

"Poor things, I should think they'd all be so tired of the same old game played in the same old way, sighs and quarrels and challenges—what a pitiful joke it all is—at fifty!

Smile From Child

"And the world so full of things that are really interesting—books and music and children, bless their hearts—one smile from a child is worth a thousand grimaces from a posing, elderly Don Juan, who never was much of a love-maker even at best.

"Theatres and concerts! People you pass in the streets, tired little women with brave eyes. Weary-looking men with resolute mouths. Shop windows, why, they're a regular theatre themselves—the windows these days.

"Waiters and bellboys and elevatormen and porters—what a different world they live in and what fun it is to get a peep into it once in a while.

"It's such a big place, this world of ours—how foolish and how narrow it is to try to pin it all down to the game that belongs by right to youth and to youth alone."

Yes, I think he's very narrow-minded, indeed, the man who calls himself liberal-minded and who can't think of a thing in the world to say to a woman unless it's about love or to a man unless it's about his love affairs.

What do you think about it?

Drop Jazz, Start Your Own Home

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—All joking aside, living with a mother-in-law, or father-in-law, one way or the other, is almost certain to cause trouble. The best way for a young couple to get along and enjoy life together is to start out in a businesslike way, getting a home of their own at the start and then taking care to see that the home is kept up.

This is the advice offered by Chicago men and women who have difficulties. One of them is Harry W. Shoyer, an attorney.

Twentieth century "jazz," says Shoyer, is the big factor in the problem. Mr. Shoyer thinks that the adoption of some of the ways of folks thirty years ago will help.

"They used to marry with the idea of running a home—in fact, buying one and paying for it out of the husband's wages. And they didn't have to run home in order to live, nor depend upon fathers and mothers-in-law to pay their bills like some of them do today.

"Now they rent a couple of furnished rooms or go home to live. Then the majority go out to jazz around, look for the high spots of life. It's this artificial life that does it."

HENRY'S LULLABY.

There, little battleship,
Don't you cry!
You'll be a flivver
Bye and bye.

English law prohibits a man from marrying his mother-in-law. This is our idea of the limit of useless legislation.

NEW VIRTUE AS OLD AS THE HUMAN RACE

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

THE race is self-doomed to everlasting growing-pains. Herein it is like the wisely humble individual, who knows that he never is, but always is to be.

After all these aeons of existence on the earth, mankind is still in the making. Though statistics for the first few millions of years are not available, it is a fair guess (one which, at any rate, exhibits optimism) that we are nearer the beginning than the end of Human evolution.

We are not now referring to the Darwinian theory; so that William Jennings Bryan—whose ratio of language and learning is as 16 to 1—needs not rush to defend his great-grandparents against the suspicion of Simian descent.

What we mean to suggest is: that Man even as Man (let alone any possible kinship with monkey or other lower orders of being) is still nearer the beginning than the end of his mental, moral, and spiritual development.

And that is really his distinctively human story—not the account of his physical achievements, his material splendor, his political might, his economic organization; but his attainment of spiritual stature.

Real Measure of Man

That is the genuine measure of Man.

Thus measured, Man is still a pigmy compared with the giant, the very god, that he is to be.

Even if human progress in this regard is to benefit from a steady acceleration we shall long be closer to our unmoral beginnings than we are to that complete moralization of human nature towards which we are surely, however slowly, tending.

Consider only one quality of character, which has been classically exemplified through its shining embodiment in Christ and Buddha, the two most widely recognized moral exemplars of mankind.

That is the quality of Love, variously manifested as goodwill, kindness, sympathy, friendship, or even the passionate mutual emotion between man and maid which commonly monopolizes that holy name.

When you compare the love-saturization of personalities like those of Jesus and Gautama with the casual, occasional, superficial manifestation of love in the average of us, you realize how rudimentary that quality is in us now as compared with the sometime full-fledged completeness of its promise.

Another moral quality, which is almost as old as the race, but whose personal value and whose social necessity we have only recently discovered, is Truth.

Warned to Tell Truth

To be sure, this ethical ideal also has long been enjoined upon humanity. For us of the western world it is a significant part of our rich Hebraic heritage. Injunctions against lying, deception, bearing false witness, against slander and defamation, abound in the Bible.

These are characteristically negative, but they find their positive summary and climax in the rabbinical teaching: "The seal of God is Truth." As always, so in this respect also, man's supreme function is to strive for Godlikeness.

We are the heirs also of the Greek ideal of the Good, the Beautiful, the True—which makes Truth the symbol of Order in the world of mind; as Goodness represents that same Order in the realm of moral relations; and Beauty is its physical phase.

And yet, it remained for our scientific age to re-discover Truth, as it were; at the same to exalt it as an ideal and to bring it into the sphere of the most practical concerns.

We have nothing to do with the conflict between science and religion. Both scientists and religionists ought to be content. Truth be its own best evidence.

Religion should eagerly say scientific age is fostering the habit, namely, of loving truth and of pursuing it FOR ITS OWN SAKE.

The average of us knows the unescapable importance of accuracy in all the calculations which must precede the building of a bridge, the construction of an engine, or the making of an electric bulb.

The wholesome respect, which we are thus developing for accuracy and fact and truth, is bound gradually to strike inward and to become a holy moral ideal. Towards this we shall duly feel some warmth of emotion, such as we are well on the way to feeling towards the ideal of Love.

Duly, the appreciation of Truth, which has taken up residence in our heads, will filter down as it were into our hearts.

As yet, we move in a welter of lies. We tell lies, white and black and off-colored. We act lies; cheat, trick, deceive. We live lies—even to the extent of being habitually self-deceived!

But Truth is marching on; not merely particular truths, but the love and the practice of Truth itself.

Be true to Truth, and you will not only shame the devil, but live to the greater glory of God and the more Beautiful Life.
